Board of Trade Asks Ban on Flight Activity At Bolling, Anacostia

Alternate Field To Restore 'Public Confidence' Also Vital, Report Says

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Elimination of flight activities at Bolling Field and Anacostia Naval Air Station was urged last night by the Washington Board of Trade's Aviation Committee.

As a further move to restore "public confidence" in commercial flying in and out of National Airport, the committee said immediate steps should be taken to acquire an alternate airport in the Washington area.

A bill, sponsored by Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) would authorize another airport here, and National Capital Park and Planning Commission recently approved an airport site at Annandale, Va.

The powerful Board of Trade group also announced strong backing of the Civil Aeronautics Authority's action in banning "combat type" military flights from National Airport.

These recommendations were advanced by Jesse M. Hadley, aviation committee chairman, at the Board of Trade's general membership and pre-Christmas meeting at the Statler.

The three-point proposal has the approval of the organization's board of directors and will be presented to the National Aeronautics Association board meeting which opens today at the Statler.

Citing the recent series of air disasters and near-disasters at or near the Washington airport, Hadley told the more than 500 board members:

"The recent accidents have caused the public to lose confidence in flying as it involves National Airport, and several airlines have indicated they would prefer to fly out of Baltimore if this crowded condition continues."

An alternate airport to relieve congestion at National, Hadley said, would "furnish an adequate answer to the new Friendship Airport at Baltimore, which is pushing vigorously" for overseas routes.

"Should they obtain these," he said, "it would be at Washington's expense."

The trade member cautioned against the assumption that the three-pronged airport proposal would be a "cure-all," but would be a "step in the right direction," he said.

Hadley supported his recommendations with this explanation:

"First, the banning of 'combat type' military aircraft from National Airport and the closing down of Anacostia and Bolling military fields would aid materially in clearing the air around the Gravelly

Coal Owners Urge Truman To Invoke T-H Act Clauses

By The Associated Press

Southern coal mine operators asked President Truman yesterday to force John L. Lewis' miners back on a full work schedule by means of a Taft-Hartley Act injunction.

The Southern Coal Producers Association also asked that Lewis and his United Mine Workers be prosecuted on antitrust charges for their three-day weekly limit on the mining of coal.

If present laws don't cover labor unions, Mr. Truman should ask Congress for new legislation to meet the situation, the Southern producers said.

In a seven-page letter to Mr. Truman SCPA President Joseph E. Moody said that "if the coal operators, acting in concert had imposed a three-day work week on the coal industry, there is no doubt that the Government would have proceeded against them under the antitrust laws."

Moody told Mr. Truman that negotiation of a contract with Lewis and the UMW "is impossible under existing conditions."

The Taft-Hartley Act provides for emergency steps to be taken by the President, including an 80-day injunction, in labor disputes threatening the national health and safety. The President has refused thus far to invoke the act, which his party is pledged to repeal. He has insisted that no emergency exists.

Moody, however, called the situation critical and said it "gravely threatens the national economy."

"Experience has convinced us," Moody told the President, "that Mr. John L. Lewis is determined to use his monopoly control over labor as a substitute for genuine collective bargaining.

"It is apparent that the union is prepared to disrupt the coal industry and the national economy itself in its effort to enforce unjustifiable demands, demands which cannot stand impartial public examination."

Lewis' new contracts with a small percentage of soft coal operators are said to provide for a 35-cent royalty on every ton for

Pressmen's Local Wins Court Order

The AFL International Printing Pressmen's Union and its affiliate, Washington Local No. 1, took their differences into District Court yesterday.

Local No. 1 filed a suit against the International and the International replied with a countersuit.

The local asked the court to block the parent union from lifting its charter. On Tuesday the International said it was ousting Local No. 1 and Local No. 31 of Newark, N. J.

The two locals have for some months been engaged in a controversy with officers of the International over the estate of the late George L. Berry, president of the International for more than 40 years.

The locals contend that assets of the union are included in the Berry estate. The estate has been estimated to be between $500,000 and $750,000. The locals filed a suit in Tennessee asking an accounting.

In its petition, Local No. 1 had also asked a temporary restraining order against the International, and Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut issued such an order effective for a period of 10 days.

The temporary order restrains the International from taking or attempting to take charge of possession of the affairs of the local, or its property, books, records and finances.

It restrains the International from urging members of Local No. 1 to apply for membership in the newly chartered Washington Local

18 Known Dead In Sioux City Plant Explosion

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 15 (AP).—Tangled debris in the explosion-shattered Swift & Co. packing plant yielded up two more bodies this afternoon.

This raised to 18 the death toll in the tragedy.

The bodies were found in a section of rubble-strewn basement which had been combed once previously by search workers.

There were nearly 1000 persons in the plant when it was rocked by a blast yesterday.

Contingent on definite identification of one of the last two bodies recovered, company officials said they now had accounted for everyone.

Sixteen of the nearly 100 persons injured in the explosion remained in serious condition in hospitals.

Four of the dead were identified as First Lieut. Richard Leggio, First Lieut. Robert Vandermuellen, Capt. Charles A. Whitlock and S/Sgt. Tomas O. Royal, all of Roswell.

Those on the serious list were listed as S/Sgt. Glen Howard Stoddard, jr., of Stoughton, Mass.; Capt. John Richard Simonson of Roswell, and S/Sgt. Adria L. Edgell, of Bristol, W. Va.,

Adm. Conolly Chosen Head Of Annapolis

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Admiral Richard M. "Close Up" Conolly, now commander of naval forces in Europe, definitely will become superintendent of the Naval Academy, the Navy said yesterday.

More than a month ago, the Navy said that Conolly would relieve Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., in the Annapolis post if Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, ousted as Chief of Naval Operations, accepted Conolly's job as commander in the "Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean." Otherwise, it was said then, the latter would continue in his European post.

Now, however, Conolly will relieve Holloway early in the new year, it was stated. This is despite the fact that Denfeld is reliably reported to have turned down the Conolly post.

Friends of Denfeld said he informed Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews while here last weekend that he wasn't ready to accept the job.

Denfeld is reported to have asked for more time, but Matthews

24-Hour Strike By Italian State Help Gets Action

Rome, Dec. 15 (AP)—A 24-hour strike of state employes brought quick action in the Senate tonight to give more money to Italy's civil servants.

A Senate committee of the Christian Democratic majority approved an additional $2,130,000 to previously agreed yearly wage increases of 40 million dollars.

The additional increase would go to the lowest paid among the one million or so state workers. The committee's action still must be approved by the full Senate and then the chamber of deputies to become effective.

The government said the strike was 30 percent effective. The unions claimed a 70 to 90 percent success.

The nation felt the strike mainly in the complete interruption of mail service. Railway workers were not involved. But schools were closed, with teachers absent. Telegraph and long-distance telephone services were closed down.

High Court Ponders Reversing Itself in Christoffel Case

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday pondered whether or not to reverse its 5-to-4 decision of last June in the Christoffel case involving Congressional committee quorums.

Actually the court was hearing lawyers' arguments in the case of two joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee officials who were convicted in District Court on charges of contempt of Congress in 1946. They had refused to produce the group's books at the House Un-American Activities Committee's demand.

But since the case largely hinges on the Christoffel decision both Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman and O. John Rogge, attorney for the two refugee committee officials, concentrated on the June decision.

Perlman said it should be overturned in acting on the new case. Rogge, who successfully argued the Christoffel case, said it was sound and argued for its retention.

Christoffel is the left-wing former head of an Auto Workers Union local involved in a lengthy 1947 strike at the Allis-Chalmers plant in Milwaukee. The court freed him because the Govern-

Iraq Talks Of Sanctions Against Israel

Lake Success, Dec. 15 (NYHT).—On behalf of the Arab states in the United Nations, Iraq raised the question today in the Trusteeship Council of possible U. N. "moral and economic" sanctions against Israel in retaliation for the Jewish state's move to make the modern part of disputed Jerusalem its capital.

The Iraqi move was not a formal one in today's proceedings but it was a possible forerunner of stern Arab demands that the Security Council—the U. N. body theoretically entrusted with sanctions—enter the field to bar Israel from annexing Jerusalem in the face of a U. N. decision to internationalize the Holy City.

Meanwhile, in today's closed session of the Council, France formally proposed that the Council call Israel's attention to the "very grave consequences" of any Israeli action running counter to the U. N. decision to impose a strict international regime on Jerusalem.

The Philippines, for lack of instructions from home, asked and was granted, a 24-hour delay in voting upon the French proposal and, as a result, the debate will not be resumed on that point until tomorrow.

Under the decision of the U. N. General Assembly to internationalize Jerusalem, contrary to the wishes of both Israel and Jordan, the Council is charged with the job of drawing up the details of the internationalization plan and putting it into effect.

As a practical matter, however, the Council is extremely mindful of the difficulties with which it is confronted in the Jerusalem situation. It can complete a perfect plan on paper; but it has no power to impose its plan upon Israel and Jordan—the countries which are in physical possession of Jerusalem, with announced intention to keep what they have.

The 12-member council, as a result of this situation, has no clear path before it. It is assigned to do a job in which many of its mem-

Threatened With Firearms, Ward Reports

By The Associated Press

Consul General Angus Ward reported yesterday that he and his staff at Mukden were threatened with firearms and denied medical services by the Chinese Communists for months before they were freed.

Ward is now en route to Japan aboard an American merchant ship, after being ordered out of China by the Communists. He radioed a detailed 1500-word report to the State Department, in which he again denied he or his aides had assaulted a former Chinese employe at the consulate. The charges were used by the Communists to jail Ward and four staff members for a month.

Ward said in his report they were kept under "atrocious conditions" and were subjected to "perversions of justice."

His recital of more than a year's apparently studied mistreatment began with the invasion of the consulate offices by Communist soldiers on November 20 last year.

Following is the text of Ward's report:

"On November 20, a year ago, without warning, Chinese Communist Party soldiers cordoned the American consul general's office and both residence compounds, blocking all egress. Telephones and electricity were cut, disrupting office water supply and all lighting. The delegation of the military control committee of Mukden presented a letter addressed to me without title, stating: 'Your failure to surrender radio station constitutes an intentional defiance; the personnel of the former American consulate general are hereafter forbidden intercourse with the outside.' Notwithstanding my suspension of radio traffic and offer to place radio equipment under seal or guard, and that I had insisted only upon communication with the United States Government before surrendering Government property, the Communist authorities refused permission to reactivate our station to request department

Santa Now a 'Sugar Daddy,' Not Saint, Catholic Editor Says

"Santa the Saint has been lost in Santa the Sugar Daddy," an editorial in today's issue of the Catholic Review, official publication of the archdiocese of Washington and Baltimore, declared.

Entitled "Unholy Fraud," the Christmas editorial was written by the Rev. John Sinnott Martin, editor in chief of the publication.

"The Santa Claus of our age and of some ages past is not the ancient and holy Bishop, St. Nicholas, sometimes regarded as a kind of almoner of the Babe of Bethlehem," the editorial asserted.

"Our Santa has become a rival of the Holy Child, often enough to the complete exclusion of the latter from any place in the minds of children who learn about the reindeer but have never heard of the ox and the ass."

The editorial said that "it is untrue that our blessings come from a jolly old toymaker at the North Pole; but completely true that they do come from the birth of a Savior who is Christ the Lord."

"The Catholic story of the Christ Child is truth and can grow with children in understanding and realization," it said.

"Santa is a myth; but not half as sensible a myth as Jupiter, Baal, Mr. Elwood P. Dowd's Harvey or Barnaby's fairy godfather," the editorial said.

The complete text of the editorial follows:

Don't read this if you are an incurable sentimentalist, if you prefer a foolish fiction to a sacred fact, if you would rather fool innocents with a fable than inform and form them with the truth. Don't read it if Santa Claus means more to you at Christmas than the Child Jesus. Don't read it if you prefer tinsel and cotton snow and a red stuffed shirt to the manger, the straw and the swaddling clothes. Don't read it if you'd rather follow the crowds to their Christmas shopping than go with the shepherds to Bethlehem.

For this is definitely not meant for those whose idea of the Nativity is fixed on perpetuating the unholy fraud of Santa Claus. It is meant for those who want to keep Christ in Christmas, or at least are willing to give Him back the place He deserves on His birthday. It is meant for those who would like to rid themselves and their children of the painful, unnecessary and dangerous disillusionment that, sooner or later, will take from Christmas the cheap enchantment that gave it a hazardous happiness, founded upon a lie and ending in the loss of childish confidence and trust and faith.

For the Santa Claus of our age and of some ages past is not the ancient and holy Bishop, St. Nicholas, sometimes regarded as a kind of almoner of the Babe of Bethle-

U. S. Steel Prices Up Average of $4 a Ton; Inquiry Is Demanded

Chain of Inflation Seen

O'Mahoney Urges Other Firms Not to Follow Big Steel's Lead

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Congressional investigation of the 4 percent average increase in steel prices announced by the United States Steel Corp. was called for last night by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

O'Mahoney, chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, blasted the increase as "irrational," predicted it would start "a chain reaction of inflation" and urged other steel producers not to follow United States Steel's lead.

The Wyoming Democrat wrote letters to other members of his committee suggesting public hearings shortly after Christmas and directed his staff to "gather information" in preparation for it.

He said he thought his committee would want to challenge Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel, and other steel executives, to prove their case for a price rise.

Citing United States Steel's high earnings record and "especially favorable" profit position, he said:

"In the face of this profit, it chooses to increase the price and, of course, it will be reflected all along the line. The impact will be felt by every business user of steel and by every consumer . . .

"Millions of people were counting on decreased prices of automobiles this Christmas. They won't get them now."

O'Mahoney said the American public has a stake "whenever a big industry like this steps out of line."

"The public is entitled to know what considerations have entered into the decisions of United States Steel," he added. "This is doing more harm to United States industry than all the crackpots have ever done."

It was O'Mahoney's second press conference and fourth blast at the steel company in the course of the day.

Even before the increase was formally announced O'Mahoney and a CIO witness before his subcommittee hit hard at a Wednesday

New Pay Demands From CIO Workers Now Are Considered Virtual Certainty

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15 (AP).—United States Steel Corp. today boosted the price of steel about $4 a ton and put the blame on higher operating costs.

The increase also made it probable that many consumer products, such as automobiles and refrigerators, will carry higher price tags.

New demands by the CIO United Steelworkers for wage increases are a virtual certainty.

Philip Murray, CIO United Steelworkers president, said in Washington he will not comment on the steel rise until he sees the full list of price changes.

United States Steel President Benjamin F. Fairless said in a statement that the new prices "reflects actual and approaching changes in the cost of production."

He said mounting expenses of operation include "the substantial higher cost to result when our new insurance and pension programs become effective."

He referred to pensions and insurance granted the CIO United Steelworkers to settle their 42-day-long strike November 11.

The increase is the fourth general price hike in the steel industry since the war. Like the others, it comes on the heels of new contract benefits to its steelworker members.

The last increase was in July, 1948. At that time prices were upped an average 9 percent. Previous increases were in March, 1946, and August, 1947.

The $4-a-ton estimate for the latest increase is an average figure. There are so many different kinds of steel that it is difficult to give specific figures for the cost of steel.

The new steel prices in all United States Steel subsidiaries

$7 Is Added to Cost Of Steel in An Auto

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Here is how a $4-a-ton increase in the price of finished steel would affect the cost of steel used in manufacture of some common articles made from the metal:

Cost of steel in an automobile would be increased about $7, in a mechanical refrigerator, 40 cents; in a metal office desk, 60 cents; in a medium farm tractor, $3; in a lawn mower, 5.7 cents; in a large kitchen cabinet, 27 cents; in a garbage can, 4 cents.

The figures are based on estimates by the American Iron and Steel Institute of the amount of steel used in the various articles.

Loyalty Check To Halve AEC Fellowships

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Atomic Energy Commission's research fellowship program for the coming academic year will be cut almost in half because of the loyalty investigation requirement imposed on the program by Congress.

The reason for the curtailment is that the National Academy of Sciences, whose National Research Council administers the fellowship program, so strenuously objects to the loyalty requirement that it refuses to participate in a large part of the undertaking.

It has agreed—and only temporarily, at that—to continue to administer new fellowships only for researchers whose work gives them access to secret atomic data. With respect to these persons, the National Academy of Sciences does not dispute the propriety of the loyalty requirement.

But for fellowships held by scientists doing nonsecret atomic work, the National Academy feels that the restriction imposed by Congress is so unwise that it has divorced itself from that phase

'Frame of Dame' Not Too Confusing, U. S. Court Rules

Boston, Dec. 15 (U.P.)—The United States Court of Appeals, quoting the current musical "South Pacific," ruled today that in advertising "there is nothing like the frame of a dame."

The statement was made in a ruling establishing the right of a manufacturer to use illustrated advertising unless it so closely resembles that of a competitor as to be confusing to the public.

The Court of Appeals ruled that the use of the picture of a woman on advertising was not likely to make prospective customers confuse two products.

"Clearly in advertising, to quote from the current musical play 'South Pacific,' there is nothing like the frame of a dame," the court said, "and we cannot see why the defendant is not as much entitled to take commercial advantage of pulchritude as the plaintiff."

Field Officers Hit for Lag in Education Plan

A Presidential commission yesterday criticized the operation of established Army, Navy and Air Force programs to educate enlisted men and inform them on democracy and the "obligations of citizenship."

President Truman's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces submitted to him a 59-page report on the success of the Defense Department's "information and education" program. They called for greater emphasis on teaching servicemen the democratic ideals "by which we live and for which we may be forced to fight."

The nine-man group of distinguished educators, clergymen and civic leaders praised the department's educational plans as being "comprehensive and of high quality" but asserted they were not being adequately carried out in the field.

"Information and Education Programs" in the Army are the best of the three services, said the commission. The Air Force is spotty and has declined since the USAF became separated from the Army, while in the Navy there appears to have been comparatively little realization at the higher levels of the need for I and E."

Commanding officers in the field, however, are largely responsible for the defects of the programs, it was said. Many are skeptical of its worth or subordi-

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—A big oil slick was all that could be found today to show where the Dutch motorship Doros burned and sank with the bodies of 10 of her crew.

Thirteen men saved themselves and were picked up by oil tankers. One other, the cook, Bruyn Van Rosenburg, died of burns in a lifeboat and was buried by shipmates at sea.

Five of the rescued are aboard the Texas Oil Co. tanker Williamsburg, en route to Philadelphia. Eight others were lifted from a lifeboat by the Richfield Oil Co. tanker Sparrows Point, handed on to the Coast Guard, and flown to a Miami hospital.

'War Chest' Started to Finance Drive for Home-Rule Action

Washington suffrage groups have quietly started a "war chest" here to underwrite a full-scale drive for House action on the Senate-passed home-rule bill, and today will appeal publicly for contributions.

A home-rule luncheon at 12:15 p.m. today in the AVC Clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw., will kick off the fund drive which will be headed by attorney A. Lloyd Symington.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (N. J.), long-time Republican leader in the home-rule battle, is expected to attend the meeting.

The Central Suffrage Conference and the several other citizen groups sponsoring the luncheon meeting also will make plans for opening a home-rule headquarters office two blocks east of the Old House Office Building "to coordinate legislative efforts."

The Capitol Hill office is located at 308 Pennsylvania av., se., and was rented to the suffrage group yesterday.

Suffrage leaders have not yet set a goal to finance efforts to bring the home rule measure to a House vote, but said some voluntary contributions already have come in.

Poland Accuses French of Plot To Poison Miners

Warsaw (Friday) Dec. 16 (AP).—The Communist-led Polish government today accused French diplomats of hiring spies who had orders to poison air breathed by Polish miners and to set fire to a cotton mill in Silesia. This was done, it was charged, under instructions of the British Intelligence Services.

The official Polish press agency issued a communique which said:

"Representatives of official diplomatic posts of France in Poland have been abusing their diplomatic privileges and rights and have violated international law in carrying out sabotage, diversionary and espionage activities on a large scale directed against the essential interests of the Polish state."

The communique named Aymar de Brossin de Mere, former secretary-archivist at the French Embassy, as the chief plotter. He was expelled from Poland November 23.

The communique was issued in connection with the opening today of a trial in Wrocl[illegible] of six persons—four of them Frenchmen—charged with espionage.

Truman Considering Repeal of War Excises

Key West, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—President Truman, in a press conference as casual as a meeting around a village store cracker barrel, disclosed today the Administration is considering repeal of wartime excise taxes.

He said Treasury experts, and staffers of the tax-writing House Way and Means Committee, are working together to determine the wisdom of such a step and whether to recommend new taxes to offset them and balance the budget as well.

Excise taxes are those on theater tickets, railroad and bus fares, telephone bills, light bulbs, luggage, jewelry and many other items. Congress put on new ones and boosted the old ones in the wartime search for new revenues.

Mr. Truman didn't propose to say whether he will recommend either repeal of the excise taxes levied during the war or new taxes on corporation profits until he sends his budget and State of the Union message to Congress in January.

The sun-tanned man with thinning gray hair, wearing a blue cotton suit and open-neck sports shirt, sat in a straight-back oak chair after a surprise 10 a. m. (EST) visit to the improvised press room provided for reporters at his Naval submarine station retreat.

To the sleepy-eyed newsmen, some of them still in their pajamas, the President declined to say whether he will ask new taxes. He did say it was always his aim to balance the budget.

This is a feat which Budget Director Frank Pace said a few days ago could not be done for the fiscal year starting next July 1 without new taxes. And, the President was reminded of his own news conference statement in Washington that he knew of no way to wipe out the current year $5,500,000,000 deficit except by hiking revenue.

He dodged that one. He said he would cover it in his budget message. And again, he blamed the last Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress for unbalancing the budget by cutting taxes over his veto. He said he vetoed the tax cut three times in favor of a balanced budget, but Congress overrode him.

The President, en route to the beach with Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, wouldn't say what he thought about Secretary of Labor Tobin's view that every person over 65 was entitled to a pension of at least $100 a month. He simply said he hadn't read the speech, made in Boston, and could make no comment on it.

The President withheld a decision on whether he will reappoint J. Copeland Gray as a member of the NLRB. And he wasn't ready to name successors to Edwin G. Nourse, formerly of the Economic Advisory Council, or to two of his favorites who are stepping out soon. They are his special counsel Clark Clifford and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal.

The Key West vacation, which ends Tuesday, the President said, is very fine, very successful from every point of view, both as to work done and sunshine soaked up.

He agreed with his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, he should have more vacations but he didn't see how it could be done.

People Behind Truman

Democratic National Chairman Bill Boyle, here for a conference with President Truman, declared that American people will accept new taxes if Mr. Truman thinks they are necessary.

Speaking after Mr. Truman's news conference, Boyle said the "people as a whole are solidly behind" Mr. Truman.

Boyle also said the Democratic national organization will work through its local leaders to bring pressure to bear to win support for President Truman's Fair Deal program.

"We believe the party organization should support the platform of the party," he said, "and we believe that members of Congress elected on the party platform should support it by their votes."

Ike Doubtful Truman Sees Him in Race

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 15 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that, no matter what anyone thinks, he is not a presidential candidate and furthermore will not be talked into becoming one.

Eisenhower said also that he does not believe that President Truman views him as a presidential aspirant in 1952.

"Back in 1948, he never wavered in believing that I meant what I said in declining to be a candidate," Eisehower told a news conference, "and I don't believe he is wavering now."

That was Eisenhower's response to questions about dispatches coming out of Mr. Truman's winter vacation headquarters at Key West, Fla., to the effect that presidential intimates viewed "General Ike" as a definite contender.

"Frankly, I have no political angle, and I'm not going to let any sort of talk by others make me a candidate," he said.

Scott Sees Ike and Taft In Nomination Contest

Philadelphia, Dec. 15 (AP).—Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., the man who mapped the Republican presidential race in 1948, today predicted a two-way fight for the 1952 nomination.

The contestants: Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

Scott, Philadelphia Congressman who was chairman of the Republican National Committee until last summer, returned to his office after a nine-day trip to the West Coast, during which he talked politics in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver and several other places along the way.

Brannan Asks Social Security for Farms

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan advocated yesterday the extension of wage and hour standards and full-scale social security benefits to farm workers.

He told a congressional committee that tremendous strides can be made to eliminate rural poverty only if an attack is made "boldly on all fronts."

In a statement before a Senate-House Economic Subcommittee, Brannan outlined a broad program of suggested Federal assistance to farmers and their hired help.

Poverty Bred Discontent

"Down through the centuries grinding poverty has always bred political discontent," he said.

Brannan declared the intangible gains from raising farm income would more than justify the expenditures.

Another witness, a Negro educator, told the committee that machinery and a shift from cotton to other crops is shoving Negro workers off the farm in the South.

"The old South is in the midst of a revolution," said Dr. Ernest E. Neal, director of the Rural Life Council of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama.

Neal said: "The established order of cotton cultivation with the share tenant system is giving away to green fields, grazing cattle, tractors and cotton pickers."

The Negro farm hands, he continued, are moving into the cities where they have to take unskilled, low paid jobs and live in the worst sections "thereby contributing a disproportionate share to delinquency, crime, unemployment and relief."

South Losing Cotton

Chairman Sparkman (D., Ala.), observed that "the old Deep South is losing out in the production of cotton." He said two thirds of the Nation's cotton now is produced west of the Mississippi River.

The subcommittee also heard recommendations from Dr. Ellen Winston, North Carolina Commissioner for Public Welfare, for increasing aid to low income families.

Dr. Winston urged extension of minimum wage and social-security coverage to include workers not now eligible to receive such benefits, particularly those in farming.

She said the concentration of minimum wage and social-security largely in industrialized States means that the burden of public assistance will fall predominantly upon agricultural States such as North Carolina.

The hearings have produced a Republican charge—and a Democratic denial—that Administration officials are using the economic committee as a "sounding board" for President Truman's program.

Representative Rich (R., Pa.) said he is convinced that Government witnesses are using current hearings on the Nation's low-income problems for their own problems. He said clerks for the Senate-House Economic Subcommittee "are in cahoots with the Administration to that end."

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.), who heads the group, challenged Rich to invite "any witnesses he thinks are qualified. He said it is not true that Administration officials are using the committee.

Election Feb. 14 to Fill Bates' Seat in House

Boston, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—A special congressional election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) in a Washington airplane crash last month was set for February 14.

Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts ordered party primaries for January 24 with the Sixth Congressional District election to follow 18 days later.

Dr. Condon's Phone Tapped, Court Told

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—An affidavit filed in the Coplon-Gubitchev spy conspiracy case today said the telephone wires of Dr. Edward Condon, director of the United States Bureau of Standards, were "constantly tapped during the past three years."

The affidavit was made by Judith Coplon's lawyer, Archibald Palmer, in applying for Federal court permission to take a statement from Dr. Condon for use in the scheduled trial of Miss Coplon and Valentin A. Gubitchev.

Condon was described by a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee last year as "one of the weak links in our atomic security." He denied the charge and demanded a hearing before the group. Thus far he has not been given a hearing.

Palmer said he wanted Condon to testify that so-called "secret" information found in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested with the Russian Gubitchev actually was public knowledge for at least 30 years.

The lawyer said he also wanted to show that the FBI and other Federal agencies are "constantly using illegal wire-tapping in their investigation of suspects and that in spite of the high position held by Edward U. Condon his own private and office wires were constantly tapped during the past three years."

Palmer said he wanted to take a deposition from Condon because the Bureau of Standards director is leaving on a trip to India Dec. 27, the day the Coplon-Gubitchev trial is scheduled to open, and thus will not be able to testify in person.

Palmer's motion was made to Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, who called for arguments on it Friday.

Ryan then continued a hearing on a motion by Gubitchev which, if granted, would force the Government to give back papers taken from him at the time of his arrest.

FBI Agent Roger W. Robinson testified that the actions of Miss Coplon, a former Justice Department employe, and Gubitchev, while walking along a New York street last February 18, led him to believe that the young woman had passed information to her companion.

The agent said, however, that he did not actually see anything pass between them.

Another FBI man, T. Scott Miller, said that on the same occasion he saw Gubitchev reach his right arm in front of Miss Coplon.

Miller said he didn't think at the moment that "important Government papers" might have been passed. But he added that the thought occurred to him "a few seconds later."

Yesterday a Government agent testified that Miss Coplon and the Soviet engineer didn't look like lovebirds but rather like espionage conspirators.

Jessup to Quit After Survey Of Asia Areas

By Homer Bigart
NYHT News Service

Ambassador at Large Philip C. Jessup, the State Department's chief troubleshooter, will resign soon after his return from a special mission to the Far East in early March, it was learned last night, to resume his post as professor of international law at Columbia University.

Dr. Jessup's decision, coming less than a week after the disclosure that George F. Kennan, chief policy planner of the State Department, would resign in June, means that Secretary of State Dean Acheson will lose two of his three most influential lieutenants. The third is Dean Rusk, deputy Undersecretary of State in charge of political affairs.

Jessup's chief job has been the development of a Far Eastern policy that would meet the threat of Communist conquest of China. He was the chief architect of the famous White Paper on United States relations with China, in which the Administration washed its hands of the Nationalist regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. He was chairman of the special study group created by Secretary Acheson to review Far East policy.

He left Washington yesterday on his last state mission—a personal survey of American diplomatic post in the Far East.

Hearings Delayed On Reported Atom Help for Russia

The House Un-American Activities Committee decided yesterday to wait until after Congress meets in January to renew its inquiry into the wartime shipment of atomic materials to Russia.

The hearings had been set to resume next Monday.

Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) announced the postponement. He said a definite date for the sessions will be fixed later.

At the request of Republican members, not present at the first hearing, the committee plans to recall two of its chief witnesses, former Air Corps Maj. George Racey Jordan and Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, head of the Army's wartime atom bomb project.

Jordan, a wartime lend-lease inspector, testified shipments of atom materials to the Soviets had been made under pressure from the late Harry Hopkins, then a close adviser to President Roosevelt.

FBI's Beer Failed to Loosen His Tongue, Says Hiss Witness

New York, Dec. 15 (NYHT)—The Catlett family, former household servants of Alger Hiss and key witnesses in his defense against spy and perjury charges, began retelling their story today in his second perjury trial.

Among new details was the description by Raymond Sylvester Catlett, generally known as Mike, of how he and two agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation drank beer together one evening early this year in Washington. Catlett said the FBI agents bought the beer but he drank most of it, and he indicated he did not give them the information they were asking.

Mr. Catlett testified, as he had done in the first trial last June, that the Hiss family gave an old Woodstock typewriter to the Catlett family on some occasion when the Hiss family was moving. He thought it was when the Hisses moved from P st. to Thirteenth moved from P st. to 13th st., which would have been in

The same typewriter has been identified in court as the one on which some of the alleged spy-papers were typed. Hiss is accused of giving these papers to Whittaker Chambers for transmission to a Communist spy ring. Chambers testified that Mrs. Hiss did the typing.

Catlett said he told the FBI that he didn't know anything about any typewriter owned by the Hiss family. He also described how he helped locate the typewriter for Hiss last spring, without saying anything about it to the FBI and how Donald Hiss, the defendant's brother, gave him $40 for his expenses in the search.

Catlett said he did odd jobs around the Hiss home in 1938 but never saw Chambers there. His mother, Mrs. Claudia Catlett, known as Clytie, said she did cooking and general housework in the Hiss home daily until 8 p. m. or later at that period, and only saw Chambers there once. She said she remembered him because he was poorly dressed and quite unlike the sort of people that usually visited the Hisses.

Chambers previously testified that he visited the Hiss home every 10 days or two weeks in the late afternoon to collect the secret Government documents and typed copies and summaries which he says Hiss gave him.

Assistant United States Attornew Thomas F. Murphy accepted Mrs. Catlett's testimony without cross-examining her. He examined Catlett at length, seeking to show that he was mistaken about the time when he got the typewriter. Catlett's memory for dates was as vague today as it had been at the first trial, but he remained unshaken in his conviction that he got the typewriter when Mr. and Mrs. Hiss moved out of the P st. house.

Murphy seized on the beer story as a prime test of the witness' credibility, asking again and again: "Is the rest of your testimony as true as your story about the beer?" Catlett raised his right hand as though taking the oath again and swore that it was.

Catlett also seized the opportunity to remind Murphy of an incident in the first trial, when Catlett swore that an FBI agent named Cortland J. Jones had offered him $200 to turn over the typewriter to the FBI. Jones subsequently appeared as a witness and denied it. It was the same Jones, the witness said today, who bought the beer.

Catlett said the beer party occurred one night when he was not answering the FBI's questions. Two FBI agents took him in a car from the Justice Department offices to Rosslyn, Va., he said, and bought eight cans of beer. Then they drove around Georgetown and parked for a while near a gas station.

Catlett said he drank most of the beer. After careful thought he said he must have had four or five cans. The F.B.I. men had the rest, he said.

Europe Plans to Spend Two and Half Billions In Next 2 Years to Develop Its Colonies

By The Associated Press

Billion-dollar plans are being drafted by five Western European countries for vast development of their colonies during the next two years.

A top-ranking Government official said total cost of these projects would reach $2,500,000,000.

The program, part of which is being financed with American dollars under the Marshall Plan, is designed to pave the way for still further development as part of President Truman's "Point Four" plan for global development of backward areas.

These details and other points of the program now getting in motion were disclosed by a high Government official who asked that he not be identified by name.

He said that the plans involve development and expansion of overseas territories in key areas of Africa, the Far East and the Carribbean. The colonies affected are those of Great Britain, France, Holland, Belgium and Portugal.

The Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA), it was said, has earmarked $23,500,000 to help pay costs of getting various territorial development projects underway.

The total extent of United States dollar aid for colonial development has not been disclosed. The major portion of such expenditures will be met, high sources said, by local currencies from the countries involved and from funds deposited by the Europeans to match Marshal Plan aid grants.

Report of New U. S. Aid To Middle East Denied

British Embassy sources discounted a news report from London yesterday, declaring that talks were progressing here on a British proposal for a "giant new (United States) aid program" for the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

The story, quoting "a responsible British source," said that Sir Leslie Rowan, British economic expert in Washington, was participating in toplevel, secret discussions with United States and Canadian representatives here.

These discussions were said to look toward a series of projects to go into effect in 1952, after the end of the Marshall Plan, to take over the economic support that Britain is now giving to such nations as India, Pakistan, Egypt and Iraq.

Russians Put On Gala Show For Vishinsky

Berlin, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Russians trotted out caviar, vodka and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky tonight to bless the Communist government of Eastern Germany.

The "House of Soviet Culture" in east Berlin was turned over to 1000 guests for a huge reception in honor of the Foreign Minister, on his way to Moscow from the United Nations meeting in New York.

A carefully staged performance turned the spotlight on President Wilhelm Pieck and others in the German government.

Only a small delegation of American, British and French officialdom was invited.

Crack Mongolian troops of the type not seen in Berlin since the storm battalions of 1945 were brought in to stand guard on famed Unter Den Linden.

No German, no American, no national of any kind without an invitation to the reception was allowed to get within at least six city blocks of the "House of Soviet Culture" between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Twenty five rooms in the mansion were stocked with foods, wines, liquors and Russian cigarettes

Early arrivals, including Gens. Maxwell D. Taylor, American; G. K. Bourne, British; and Jean Gaveval, French, were shunted to side rooms after a brief, cordial handshake by Vishinsky.

The entire assemblage was held in suspense for almost 10 minutes. Then huge motion-picture lights flashed on, a Russian band struck up a martial air, and in walked President Pieck and his wife.

Pieck, a veteran Communist who holds dual German and Russian citizenship, strode over to Vishinsky and they repaired to a big banquet room reserved for special guests, all from the East.

Vishinsky raised a glass of vodka and said in Russian:

"To the new German Democratic Republic, friend of the Soviet Union."

Pieck raised his glass a moment later and replied with another toast to "the glory of the Soviet Union and our love for Generalissimo Stalin."

West Rebuffs Vishinsky's Toast to German Reds

Berlin, Dec. 15 (NYHT).—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky was rebuffed with silence from Western officials tonight when he proposed a toast "to the East German Republic and to Soviet-German friendship."

Western officials who consider the East zone regime both illegal and undemocratic responded in no way to the toast. They remained silent and gazed, as one Western official put it, "quite stonily and silently at the floor."

Court Rules No New Trial For Burgman

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday rejected a motion for a new trial for Herbert John Burgman, 52-year-old American convicted of 13 acts of treason.

Defense counsel had argued that Burgman's conviction on November 15 was improper because Federal employes were on the jury; because, it was contended, words cannot constitute treason; and because witnesses should have been brought to Washington from the American zone of Germany instead of being questioned there by defense counsel.

It was further contended that the District Court here had no jurisdiction.

Burgman, a former American Embassy employe, was convicted of broadcasting Nazi propoganda from Berlin during the war.

The denial of a new trial clears the way for his sentencing. No date has been set but it probably will be in the next few days. For treason, the maximum penalty is death. The minimum is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Bonn Joins West In ERP Accord

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 15 (AP).—West Germany today signed an agreement accepting European Recovery Program aid as a claim of debt against her young government.

How much of the money Germany gets from the United States as an outright gift and how much Germany will have to repay are questions to be decided later, when a peace treaty is signed.

Today's agreement elevated Germany for the first time to full national status in the Economic Cooperation Program. The occupying Western Allies previously have represented West Germany in ERP dealings.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer signed for West Germany. High Commissioner John J. McCloy signed for the United States.

The agreement binds West Germany to use American aid to promote efficient industrial and agricultural production, to stabilize the currency, to reduce restrictions on trade with other European countries, to cooperate in Europe-wide plans for full utilization of manpower and to join in measures to end restrictive business practices.

She also must cooperate with the United States in stockpiling strategic and critical materials available in Germany and to promote increased production of such materials.

Another step toward returning Germany to a recognized status in the European community of nations was taken at Bonn when the first foreign diplomatic missions to the new republic were formally accredited.

The diplomats were assured by the Allied High Commission of the United States, Britain and France that, "through us, your relations with the Federal Republic of Germany will be insured."

Previously only consular representatives and military missions from other countries have been operating in West Germany.

Iraq Talks Of Sanctions

bers, including the United States and Great Britain, have no heart.

This feeling was reflected today in the closed Council session by questions from Mexico and Belgium—both of which voted for strict internationalization. Belgium, while adhering to its position that strict internationalization must be applied, asked whether the project was practicable, and Mexico said it was necessary to know whether Israel and Jordan were willing to carry out strict internationalization.

For Iraq, former Foreign Minister Fadhil Al-Jamali asserted that Israel could be made to yield if the United States and Britain really wanted to carry out internationalization. The United States' attitude of not favoring internationalization, he said, was the real cause of Israel's resistance to the U.N. design for Jerusalem.

Resignation Sought From Moshe Sharett

Jerusalem, Palestine, Dec. 15 (U.P.). Menaheim Beigin, former leader of the Jewish underground, demanded tonight that Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett resign because he failed to keep the United Nations from voting to internationalize Jerusalem.

Beigin, now leader of the opposition Freedom Party in the Israeli Parliament, demanded also that the government adopt a "militant" policy and push Israel's frontier to the Jordan River, thus taking over all of Palestine.

Speaking to several thousand people at a rally in Jerusalem's busiest street, Beigin denounced the government for seeking a peace pact with Hashemite Jordan.

There are persistent reports that Israel and Hashemite Jordan are making progress toward a firm peace pact which will leave Israel and King Abdullah in possession of nearly all of Palestine.

Outlaws Slay 15 Police

Manila, Dec. 15 (AP).—Moro outlaws slew 15 constabulary officers and men today, constabulary headquarters anounced tonight. Sixty-two more were listed as missing and presumed dead.

The fight was at the foot of Mount Luuk, 600 miles south of Manila on Jolo Island in the middle of the Sulu Archipelago. There a thousand Moro outlaws under Datu (chief) Kanlon are defying the government, constabulary headquarters said. The Moros are Moslem tribesmen who have a long record of keeping central authority from their hills and jungles.

The fight had no apparent connection with the kind of political opposition President Elpidio Quirino scored in a radio address tonight.

Albania Ordered to Pay Indemnity to Britain

The Hague, Dec. 15 (AP).—Albania must pay Britain £843,957 ($2,363,051) for the Corfu Channel incidents of 1946, the International Court of Justice ruled, 12 to 2, today.

The British destroyers Saumarez and Volange were damaged and 44 British seamen killed by the explosion of Albanian mines between Corfu and the mainland of the little Communist nation. Britain claimed the money to compensate the families of the seamen and to pay for damage to the destroyers.

The justices of Soviet Russia and Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia filed dissenting opinions.

Approval of the claim followed the court's decision in April that Albania was responsible under international law and would have to pay the amount to be fixed later.

Albania accepted the findings of responsibility, but protested that the damages should be fixed by negotiations between the two. She was not represented at the hearing today.

Fresh EVERY HOUR ON THE HOUR

GIANT'S ground beef is so fine . . . only select, lean beef from corn-fed, western steers is used for it (no "commercial" grade meat is ever sold in your GIANT). And it's as fresh as if it's ground to your own personal order for, instead of grinding it in one place at one time (to await delivery and your selection), in each of GIANT'S many stores skilled butchers grind our beef every hour. So low-priced, too—49c lb.

Reds Threatened Ward and Staff With Arms, Refused Him Medical Care, He Says

for instructions regarding surrender of radio equipment.

"The Communist delegation's denial of my official status contradicted the Mayor of Mukden's formal call and letters previously addressed to me as consul general by the Chinese Communist Party civil and military authorities. The delegation then seized our radio transmitters and generators, and also accused me of withholding a 'hidden transmitter.' After 10 hours of continuous bickering, the Communist delegation announced that the American consulate general personnel were to be confined to their residences incommunicado until further notice.

Appeals Were Ignored

"I insisted that I remain with 18 employes in unlighted office, where 22 persons for 30 hours were limited to a total of one bucket of water, with warden ignoring appeals for more and guards forbidding even kerosene light. An aged German casual visitor to the United States information service library was confined with Americans for more than one year without reply to his appeals for release or access to food, clothing and funds from his residence. Chinese casuals caught in residences were freed only after several months' delay.

"The Communist military control committee orally assured me on November 18 it would transmit my official telegrams over Hsin Hua News Agency facilities. On November 22, I submitted a telegraphic report to the department to the military control committee for such transmission. This was subsequently returned January 13 with final letter I received from the Chinese Communist Party authorities, stating that no messages whatever would be transmitted because the "United States and northeast peoples government are not in a diplomatic relationship." Personal messages of the staff to their families in the United States were returned unsent. Until June 6, no communication of any type with the outside world was permitted with other Mukden residents. Pessersby were even arrested for waving greetings.

Staff Was Badgered

"Not until December 4 a year ago were Americans permitted to move between residences and the office, and then only under guard and when the warden chose to approve specific petitions. Such limited movements during subsequent year were subject to exasperating and wasteful delays and frequent failures to permit more than a single daily round trip to the office. My request to the mayor to restore electricity for Christmas was approved, ending five weeks lack of running water in crowded office and relieving eyestrain resulting from enforced dependence upon kerosene lamps. The Chinese staff was subject to repeated badgering interrogations aimed at establishing espionage suspicions against the consul general.

"The warden took our Chinese consular identity cards, promising Chinese Communist Party countersignature, but the cards were never returned. He also wheedled our curfew passes, falsely stating that the curfew was removed. He threatened to seal the consulate general safe containing office funds but threat was never implemented. The warden imposed regular examination of packages carried by Americans en route to the office, and the mayor ignored our request for permission to attend Easter services. The warden failed to permit the emptying of overflowing cesspools in American residences. The consulate general was given consent to the dollar rate exchange during seven-month period in which official value silver quadrupled. On May 17 the department ordered the closure of the Mukden consulate general in a telegram received by mail on June 7 as incommunicado phase of our arrest ended.

Told He Could Leave

"On June 20 the local press published spy charges. The next day the mayor's aide called (first contact in more than seven months), stating peoples' government approved consulate general request to depart Mukden and requiring submittal of packing lists of goods to be shipped. When he asked that I set a departure date I replied that lack of equipment and packers prevented me from determining departure date until allowed access to designated packing firm, and I pointed out that lack of telephones, recalcitrance of guards and limits on movement of consulate general vehicles greatly hampered preparations.

"On July 19 I requested facilities for departure of part of staff on July 27 and again on August 12, but without fruit. My telegram 58 to Nanking of September 17, which was rejected for transmission, reported inter alia 'authorities have continued to refuse my wife access to a competent dentist known to be present in Mukden to treat tooth badly broken early in December. My urgent request of April 27 for the services of my physician were ignored until June 4 and physician not even allowed to complete his diagnosis. Same physician later was allowed two minutes for consultation, examination, diagnosis, and treatment my wife suffering mild attack appendicitis."

"I and every American member of my staff were threatened at least once with firearms. Electric power needed for adequate water supply denied staff compound. Delay of weeks encountered in purchasing modest quantities of packing materials and other supplies readily available in market. We were refused permission to purchase roof-repair materials at times when rain was heavy and the roof was leaking badly. The staff and I were obliged to wait months for services of professional packers and thus prevented from preparing household and office property for shipment pusuant to department instructions.

Expedited by Merchant

"Adequate rail facilities available July 27 and 10 days following but authorities did not permit the first group of staff members to depart from Mukden. We are dependent for fresh foods on a merchant appointed by authorities and enjoying monopolistic right who has exploited us through prices over open-market levels and through inferior quality and short weight. Notwithstanding urgent pleas, our warden protractedly delayed permission to deliver coal in the dead of winter to the Tatsumi residents where his dependents were suffering from cold. Tatsumi was prevented from rejoining his family for more than a fortnight after date of our arrest, although I had been informed then that he would be permitted to return home the next day. Non-American employes detained in office building were repeatedly denied permission to obtain urgently needed clothing from their homes.

"Although the mayor informed me on November 5, 1948, that he would accept uncoded telegrams for transmission and the Military Control Commitee made a similar offer on November 18, 1948, the office was not permitted to communicate with other foreign service establishments until June 6, 1949. Delivery of telegrams from Nanking during the past months were delayed an average of 40 hours after receipt in Mukden, and several official communications which I have submitted for transmission have been neither sent nor returned to me. I am still denied permission to recover Government and staff property on storage in former residences.

"On September 27 Chi Yuheng, a Chinese employe of the consulate general, in refusing to perform assigned task threw down his tools and left job, saying "I quit." He refused proffered final settlement, whereupon he was instructed to leave Government premises permanently, inasmuch as final payment would be sent to his residence upon his request. Chi, nevertheless, entered Consulate General Building surreptitiously on October 10 without authority. When discovered on the morning of October 11 I took him by the hand and pacifically led him to the courtyard. When he demanded money I stated that he could await opening of the accounts office, but if he refused a settlement then he would have to leave the building because he was committing trespass. Later the same day Chi again refused settlement and when he adamantly refused to leave the building I took him by the hand, intending to turn him as a trespasser over to armed sentry at the street entrance. At no time did I or any member of my staff strike, kick or injure Chi in any way. I was the victim of assault by Chi's brother. The Chinese Communist Party guard witnessing the beating of Alfred Kristan (our chauffeur) by the Chinese staff refused Ralph Rehberg's demand that he intervene.

"Allegations that Chi was knocked unconscious, suffered concussion and other serious injury are totally unfounded: Police officer using office telephone was overheard ordering Chi's retention at hospital over objections of doctor. During police physician examination of Chi in his office none of several Americans present saw any injury other than slight mat burn over right eye (which I and Rehberg saw him inflict upon himself), and Chi's own loud protestations immediately after incident belie his unconsciousness.

The atrocious conditions of our confinement under police arrest after October 24 and perversions of justice during investigation and so-called trial November 21 were reported in my telegrams just prior to departure from Mukden. (These reports have not been received by the department.)

The staff and I, with defendants, departed from Mukden under heavy guard 0345 hours December 7, and after a 40-hour rail journey (normally requiring 15 hours) in a third-class car with board shelves as beds, notwithstanding my request for first-class accommodations, arrived at Tientsin. All were subject to severe cold during first hours of journey and the car was entirely without water. All of the passengers were confined to the car throughout the journey and subject to constant surveillance by guards."

Liu, Sikang Ruler, Reported Quitting Chiang to Join Reds

Hongkong (Friday), Dec. 16 (U.P.)—Gen. Liu Wen-Hui, governor of Sikang Province in western China where the Nationalists planned to set up their main guerilla base, was reported today to have broken with the Nationalist regime and gone over to the Chinese Communists.

The Nationalist executive Yuan, in its last meeting before evacuating Chengtu for Formosa, proclaimed Sichang, in Sikang Province which borders on Tibet, would be headquarters for continuing "land, sea and air" operations against the Reds on the mainland.

The report of Liu's defection followed a Nationalist admission of armed opposition in the province. The official Central News Agency Thursday reported that an attempted revolt was quieted by Nationalist troops after a heavy battle.

New Civilian Governor Named for Formosa

Taipeh, Formosa, Dec. 15 (AP).—Bidding strongly for renewed American aid, the Nationalists today named a new civilian governor for this strategic island and served an ultimatum on dissident Yunnan Province.

Former Mayor K. C. Wu of Shanghai, American trained and well-known to many Americans, was appointed civilian governor. Military control remains in the hands of the outgoing governor, Gen. Chen Cheng.

Wu is expected to carry out further reforms in the local regime.

Meanwhile the Nationalists claimed they had succeeded in regrouping 400,000 troops in southwest Yunnan Province.

Former Governor's Widow to Aid Democrats' Dinner

Mrs. O. Max Gardner, wife of the late former Governor of North Carolina, has been appointed chairman of the women's committee for the Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner here February 16.

Serving under Mrs. Gardner will be Mrs. Spencer Love, whose husband is head of North Carolina's Burlington Mills.

FILBERT CANDY

SPICED FILBERTS
2 cups toasted filberts
1 cup sugar
5 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon cinnamon
Few grains salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Toast filberts by placing in a 275-degree F. oven for 20 minutes. Rub to partially remove brown skins.

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon, and salt. Bring to a boil and boil for 2 minutes. Remove from heat, add filberts and vanilla and stir until syrup looks cloudy. Place on waxed paper or greased platter and break apart.

SNOWBALL COOKIES
2½ cups cake flour
1 cup shortening
½ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup finely chopped filberts
½ teaspoon salt

Sift and measure flour. Cream shortening and sugar until fluffy. Add vanilla, then chopped filberts and mix well. Mix in flour and salt. Form into balls about ¾ inch in diameter. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in 350 degree F. oven. While still warm, roll in powdered sugar. Makes about 4½ dozen cookies.

REMEMBER — In any recipe calling for nuts, use thrifty Blue Pirate Filberts for finer flavor.

Report of British A-Bomb Unfounded

A story in yesterday's London Daily Mirror that Great Britain has an "atomic weapon" and that it may be tested on a secret Australian rocket range is without foundation, it was learned here.

The Washington Post was told by a highly placed source, thoroughly informed about British atomic developments, that the United Kingdom does not have a completed weapon nor any "production" piles which are turning out atomic explosives in quantities adequate for a bomb.

This source described the London story "in the same class with the Fulton Lewis stuff." The reference was to the radio commentator's recent allegations, which have been discredited by other testimony, that the United States sent Russia atom bomb data and atomic explosive material during the war.

The London newspaper story indicated that Britain had the bomb for two years, that it had agreed in recent talks in Washington with United States and Canadian representatives not to test the weapon at forthcoming experiments with American bombs at Eniwetok, and that a likely place for its tryout would be a secret range in Australia.

The paper gave no source for its statement.

It indicated that British scientists had extended knowledge of atomic weapons and their construction. This statement is manifestly true. It has been no secret that British investigation of atomic weaponeering has progressed apace. British scientists worked closely with Americans during the war on the development of the bombs which were used against Japan.

The London story created a sensation in the British capital when it was published yesterday morning, the United Press reported.

It added that a spokesman for the Ministry of Supply, the agency in charge of British atomic development, refused to comment on the statement.

4 Rabbit Fever Cases Reported in Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 15 (Spl.).—Four cases of tularemia (rabbit fever), all traced to a single source, were disclosed by the Health Department here yesterday. The source was a man who had killed a rabbit and given it to friends. The man's case was the first reported but it was too late to prevent others from getting the disease.

Kimball Says U. S. Ships Will Go Anywhere

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball asserted today "we propose to send out ships anywhere we wish, whenever we wish to do so."

"Strong in this determination, we have given top priority to our anti-submarine warfare activities," he said at the commissioning of the destroyer Carpenter at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard.

Designed to combat high-speed, snorkel-type submarines, the 390-foot Carpenter was launched December 28, 1945, at Orange, Tex.

She was outfitted at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. She is the second of her class of submarine killers.

Kimball said "new techniques, faster submarines, improved torpedoes and other developments have resulted from our research and development program. Submarine experts, mine warfare experts, scientists and electronics experts are working to develop even faster submarines, even more efficient weapons and even better techniques.

"It is a maxim of warfare that counterweapons must keep pace with the development of new offensive weapons. We have not forgotten this maxim.

"We have these weapons, we have these counterweapons and we will protect ourselves from any aggression."

nate such training for practical military instruction.

Stressing the importance of the "I & E" program, the commission said:

"It is essential to the national security that our service personnel have knowledge and information, but such knowledge and information are meaningless unless they are related to the ideals and principles by which we live and for which we may be forced to fight.

"Democracy and the democratic way of life remain but philosophies until they are put in to practice by the individual in his own local environment."

The group recommended that a weekly "information hour" be made compulsory on all posts and ships and that better-trained personnel should conduct the program. Schools should be established locally to train instructors, career men should be established in the "I & E" field, and inspectors should judge local commanders on their proficiency and interest in promoting such plans, the group proposed.

Answering objections that the discussion hours proposed would permit enemy agents to infiltrate into the program and guide talk along subversive lines, the report said:

"There is contiderable evidence, for instance, that the organized 'get the boys home' movement after World War II originated in subversive sources and was spread through I & E media such as newspapers and discussion groups by men affiliated with these sources . . .

"However, if I & E provides a good vehicle for subversion, then it must be an equally good vehicle for civic enlightenment and opposition to subversion."

Challenge Offered

Declaring that the "imperfections" in the program present a challenge to the Defense Department, "no less serious than the challenge presented to the whole American people by the current world conflict in the field of ideas," the report went on:

"Tanks, ships, planes and guns become outmoded, but ideas are the perpetual munitions of victory. It is good and necessary, then, that we cherish the ideas that have made us a great Nation and that we make it possible for those who enter our military service to understand those ideas and to appreciate their enduring vitality."

The group said it and its staff had visited 22 military installations in the United States, as well as those in Europe and the Far East before making their report. Frank L. Weil, New York lawyer, heads the commission, and other members are: Dorothy C. Enderis, Truman K. Gibson, jr., Lindsley F. Kimball, Mark A. McClosky, Basil O'Connor, the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Margaret Powell and the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh.

He Walked Away

Navy Orders Courtesy To President

By Robert S. Allen

Navy rage has reached such a pitch that Admiral Forrest Sherman has deemed it necessary to issue special instructions that Navy officers be courteous to the President of the United States.

The private memorandum of the new Chief of Naval Operations also reveals an amazing affront to President Truman.

"Recently, President Truman, on his morning stroll, greeted a Navy lieutenant with 'Hello.' The officer, instead of returning the greeting or saluting, turned on his heel and walked the other way. This should not happen again."

The identity of the lieutenant is still unknown.

Meanwhile, Capt. John Crommelin, stormy petrel of the Navy uproar, is telling friends he will retire if not promoted to rear admiral.

Crommelin has received grapevine word that his name is not on the latest promotion list. However, certain admirals are still trying to get him a star. If they fail, Crommelin will quit the Navy. He is eligible to retire with a life pension of 75 percent of his pay as a captain.

Truman Denies Revising Navy Promotion List

Key West, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—President Truman flatly denied today any revision of a Navy list of captains recommended for promotion to admiral.

He told a vacation news conference that no name has been knocked off or added to it. He said the list of men recommended for promotion is on his desk and that he was not yet ready for action on it.

AEC Research Studies Cut

of the program. The AEC itself feels strongly that it should not itself conduct the necessary administration, and hence no new fellowships of this type will be granted. Some existing ones in this category, however, will be renewed.

The status of the program for the 1950-1951 academic year was announced yesterday by the AEC. At the same time it released its correspondence on the subject with Alfred N. Richards, president of the National Academy.

The congressional requirement for an FBI investigation of all holders of AEC fellowships was set out in the appropriation bill for theAEC and became effective last August 24.

It prescribes that no fellowship awards can be granted until the applicants have been investigated by the FBI as to loyalty, character and associations.

The provision was written after a loud Congressional dispute which followed the disclosure last summer by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) that one AEC fellowship was held by an avowed Communist, 23-year-old Hans Freistadt. He was engaged in nonsecret scientific studies at the University of North Carolina.

Of the 42 persons who now hold AEC fellowships, 30 are engaged in work requiring access to secret information and have received the FBI clearance. This was always required in the basic Atomic Energy Act. Of the rest, 70 were appointed or reappointed after last August 24. They have also been cleared, as required by the new legislation.

But for the future year, the AEC announced, it will grant only about 75 new awards and only 175 renewals.

All of the new awards will be to persons doing research "closely related" to the national atomic program and who should have access to secret material. For these individuals, there is no controversy over the point of the requirement of FBI clearance.

All fellowships granted to persons doing nonsecret work—mostly medical and biological, using radioactive "tracers"—will be simply renewals of previous awards. They will also have to receive the FBI "fellowship approval."

After a long exchange of correspondence, the National Academy of Sciences agreed to administer this limited program. It will cost between $600,000 and $900,000, as compared to the $1,500,000 program undertaken this year.

The National Academy wrote the AEC that at two sessions last October, in Rochester, N. Y., its council, or controlling body, debated the situation at length. It issued a statement declaring in part:

"In our opinion the requirement of an FBI investigation and AEC clearance is ill-advised for those fellows who neither work on secret material, nor are directly preparing to work on AEC projects. We are convinced that by this restriction the value of the broad program has been greatly reduced . . ."

The Council added that it had "grave doubts" whether the program, as restricted by Congress, was more in the national interest than no program at all. Accordingly, it declined to continue to administer it.

But the AEC said it felt that a scientific or educational organization, and not the AEC, should do the administration. Besides, it added, it would be extremely difficult for the AEC to administer the program if it did not have the full support of the scientific community.

The more limited program was thus developed as something both sides could agree on, and which the National Research Council was willing to administer.

The future of the fellowship program is in doubt. For the Council pointedly made the stipulation that its commitment did not extend beyond June 30, 1951.

wanted an immediate decision on the offer of the European post. There was no final determination of Denfeld's future plans but his intimates declare he will retire.

Vice Admiral R. R. Carney, now Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics, is understood to be slated for Conolly's present job, though Vice Admiral W. M. Fechteler, deputy chief of personnel, also is under consideration.

It is reported that Denfeld has had at least 10 high-salaried civilian jobs offered him. One is said to be with the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Chester, Pa.

Conolly, a 57-year-old native of Waukegan, Ill., was graduated from Annapolis in 1914.

Farm Bureau Fights Brannan Price Plan

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—The powerful American Farm Bureau today resolved to fight the Brannan farm plan backed by President Truman.

Instead of Brannan's plan for big direct subsidies, the bureau voted in favor of flexible price supports along lines of the compromise farm bill enacted this year by Congress.

The 5000 farm leaders from 48 States declared Brannan's plan would cost a staggering sum and make farmers dependent on Federal handouts.

The convention urged farmers to cooperate with programs of the 1949 farm law and said it will seek "any necessary revisions" after it has been given "a fair trial."

Today's formal action climaxed several days of convention speeches blasting the Brannan plan. The plan's author, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, was not invited to speak and got the cold shoulder when he indirectly asked for a chance to plead his case.

The convention adopted a resolution saying Brannan's plan would have the Government "pay part of the grocery bill of every citizen."

The Brannan plan would let perishable farm product prices find their natural level. If such prices failed to give farmers a predetermined fair return, the Government would pay the difference in subsidies.

The 1949 farm law provides for flexible price supports on basic commodities, ranging from 75 to 90 percent of parity instead of 72 to 90 percent as provided in the 1948 law. It follows Farm Bureau recommendations.

The parity concept measures a fair exchange relationship between the price of commodities the farmer sells, and the price of things he buys.

The Farm Bureau believes the 1949 law provides the best means of a permanent type price-support program. It says the law retains but postpones full application of flexibility and modernized parity principles which the federation has long sought.

The federation president, Allan B. Kline of Vinton, Iowa, has long been a bitter foe of the Brannan plan, which he calls a political scheme to win votes from both the farmers and consumers.

He contends it would make farmers dependent upon Congress, which would appropriate subsidy money, and would lead to a rigid Federal grip and "nationalization" of agriculture.

The conversion resolution backed up the views of Kline and of Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.), former Secretary of Agriculture, who addressed the group yesterday.

Brannan says his plan would assure farmers higher income and give consumers cheaper food by means of Government cash payments, thus helping stabilize the entire national economy.

Coffee Rise Halts

Beef, Egg Prices Sag; Pork Levels

Beef and egg prices sagged 2 cents to a nickel here yesterday for weekend shoppers but pork chop prices appear to be leveling off.

The beef price cuts were general around the Nation, ascribed to competition from much lower pork prices. Eggs have been on a seasonal decline for a couple of weeks.

Coffee prices also appear to be stabilizing. One major roasting firm spokesman said retailers are clearing stocks for year-end inventory and "consumers are drinking up the excess coffee they bought during the buying rush."

Christmas turkeys will begin to appear early next week. Prices have not yet been announced by the big dealers.

Study of Speculation And Prices Is Arranged

By the United Press

The Agriculture Department announced yesterday it will help finance a study by Brookings Institution to seek an answer to a question which has concerned farmers, consumers, Congress and even the President.

What effect does speculation in the commodities futures markets have on cash market prices of farm products?

The study will go into this and other questions about the role of futures trading. It may take three years to complete. It will be financed jointly by the department and the Merrill Foundation for Advancement of Financial Knowledge, Inc.

The foundation was set up by a partner in one of the country's largest brokerage houses—Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

"The project was undertaken in response to requests, both within the Government and among farm and trade groups, for an appraisal of the role of organized futures trading in the market of agricultural products," the department said.

The study may help settle—or merely add fuel to—a 60-year-old dispute about futures trading between brokers, on the one hand, and some farmers and Congressmen on the other.

Children Held Needing Sense Of Importance

The feeling of self-worth, of importance, "is just as necessary and important for the well-being of children as for the well-being of adults."

That was the report made yesterday by Benjamin E. Youngdahl, dean of Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., to the National Committee of the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

The committee is drawing up plans for the fifth conference, to be held here in December, 1950. Youngdahl said the fact-finding committee is preparing to gather information on how the basis for healthy personality development is laid in early childhood.

Another question the group will explore is: "In what ways do American standards and goals for social cooperation and personal achievement aid and in what ways may they handicap children in maintaining the sense of self worth?"

Today, the committee will discuss budget and finance and physical arrangements for the conference. The committee meeting will end tonight.

London Threatened With Power Blackout

London (Friday), Dec. 16 (U.P.)—Electrical Workers of London and southern England last night decided to stay on strike and most of the area was faced by the threat of a warlike blackout.

It was thought for a time yesterday the strike had been settled, but as London started its third electrical dimout last night the strikers met and decided to remain out unless all power plant authorities agreed they would not be prosecuted and that soldiers operating emergency service in the plants would be withdrawn before they returned.

A total of 2800 strikers at four key plants started the wildcat strike over demands for a bonus. Yesterday they decided at mass meetings to return to work. But they made the two conditions.

These conditions were met at the big Barking plant and its 1600 men returned. At the other three—Brimsdown, Dartford and Littledown—the 1200 men were informed there would be no conditions, and they decided last last night to stay out.

The position at Barking was uncertain. Shop stewards said they expected their men to report for work today. But it was not certain that rank and file members, who called a mass meeting for this morning, would obey.

Union Gets Court Order

No. 1-A, or receiving such applications.

It restrains the International from withholding payment of old-age pensions to members of Local No. 1, who would be eligible for such payment if the local's charter had not been revoked.

$40,000 Bond Required

The temporary order was subject to posting of a $40,000 bond by officers of the local "for payment of such costs and damages as to be incurred or suffered by any party who is found to have been wrongfully enjoined or restrained."

The local also asked an injunction which would, in effect, reverse the International's revocation action and $200 fine against Local No. 1. A hearing on the local's motion for a preliminary injunction was set for December 23 at 10 a.m. The local's suit was filed by Attorney Alexander B. Hawes.

The International, which claims a membership of 86,000, named as defendants in its countersuit these officers of Local No. 1: Louis A. Lopez, president; Lawrence Dulin, vice president; Stanley D. Bradshaw, financial secretary; Frank M. Gritton, treasurer, and Henry G. Klamp, recording secretary.

The countersuit said the charter of Local No. 1 was revoked and that on December 13 the president of the International, J. H. De La Rosa, designated C. V. Ernest and A. J. De Andrade to take charge of the affairs of Local No. 1 and take possession of its property, books, records and finances.

The countersuit charges that Lopez "refused" to deliver the books, records and finances and further charges that Lopez "since December 6, 1949, has withdrawn funds from bank accounts of Local No. 1 and has spent or will spend such funds for purposes not authorized" by the bylaws of the local or the constitution of the International.

It was further asserted in the countersuit that on December 12 the defendants removed "certain books, records and $1500 in cash" from the local's headquarters, 1003 K st. nw.

The countersuit asks (1) that the court decree the International is entitled to possession of all property, books, records and finances of the local; (2) that the court order the defendants to turn over this property to Ernest and De Andrade; (3) an accounting of all funds, and (4) a preliminary injunction restraining officers of the local from:

Removing any of the local's property, records or finances from the District;

Destroying any books or records;

Spending any of the local's finances;

Withdrawing any of the local's funds now on deposit;

Steel Prices Up $4 a Ton

are effective at one minute after midnight tonight. Other steel companies are expected to follow suit within a week or 10 days.

Fairless said:

"Over-all effect of these new mill prices is an average increase of about 10 cents per hundred in our announced mill prices.

"An average further price increase of about 10 cents per hundred pounds will result from such adjustments in extras and deductions.

"Together, this produces an average increase of approximately 4 percent in the present average selling price of our subsidiaries."

U. S. Steel cut the prices of tin mill products—like the tin plate used to make tin cans. Fairless said that starting January 1, 1950, prices will be reduced about $3.50 a ton. The reduction reflects recent declines in the price of tin.

Left unchanged was the cost of stainless steel products.

"We are hopeful," said the Fairless statement, "that by now naming prices for our steel products which have a proper relationship to cost and profit margin . . . we will minimize so far as possible further fluctuations in our prices, at least for the foreseeable future, to the end that our customers and our subsidiaries may base their planning on a sound and realistic foundation."

The earnings of 21 leading steel companies in the third quarter of 1949 amounted to $108,665,219, 9 percent below the $120,150,302 earned in the same three months of 1948.

Third quarter earnings this year were down 11 percent from the $123,409,210 figure for the second quarter.

Accompanying the profits' upward line on steel company charts were the lines representing payrolls, gross sales, revenues, taxes and other costs.

The ratio of profits to sales has not changed greatly in recent years. Very roughly, it has been around 5 or 6 cents profit for each dollar of sales.

Coal Producer Writes Truman

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

JOSEPH E. MOODY, of the Southern Coal Producers Association, has written to President Truman, asking him to use the Taft-Hartley law to get coal mining back into full production. Moody wrote that the coal miners' present three-day work week is in reality a strike the welfare and pension fund, and for a 95-cent increase in the miners' basic daily wage of $14.05.

Moody's letter, prepared after a special meeting of the Southern association's board of directors, was released as operators from the North and West were meeting in Pittsburgh in secret caucus.

"There is a strike in progress today in the industry," Moody told Mr. Truman. "The men, under orders from their president, are working three days and are on strike for the remainder of the work week.

"The loss to the country because of strikes in the bituminous industry this year is inestimable. This loss includes the coal which would have been produced, increased costs to operators and consumers, the loss to hundreds of communities dependent upon the coal industry, the loss to railroads relying upon the transportation of coal and to their employes laid off as a result of the strikes, and the loss to industries dependent upon a continuing and dependable supply of coal for their operations."

Lewis was in New York, where he was reported to be conferring with Robert R. Young, head of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, one of the big haulers of coal in the Southern area.

Anthracite negotiations are in progress in New York, too, but Lewis took no direct hand in those discussions yesterday.

Price Hike Hit By O'Mahoney

forecast by Fairless that the company would increase some prices and decrease others.

At a press conference in Chicago Saturday Fairless blamed the proposed increase on the recent freight rate boost and the $100-a-month pensions granted CIO United Steelworkers.

Everett Kassalow, executive secretary of the CIO Full Employment Committe, appeared yesterday morning before O'Mahoney's subcommittee studying ways to attract investment capital to small business. He brought with him a preferred statement asking O'Mahoney's joint committee to "look into this scandalous (steel price) situation."

But before Kassalow could testify O'Mahoney dictated a press release challenging the proposed increase and saying:

"The (steel) industry will be acting against its own interest and against the interest of all American business if it persists (in the price increase)."

He berated the price move again in opening the hearing. Then Kassalow told the subcommittee he was "simply appalled" by the proposal.

"Here is a situation where leading steel corporations made almost unbelievable profits in their last full quarter before the strike, and are now operating at even higher levels of capacity," said Kassalow. "Yet, on the pretext that material costs are up, they are getting ready to bilk the public again."

Like O'Mahoney, the CIO witness cited conclusions of a Federal fact-finding board about three months ago that in the light of high profits price reductions, rather than increases, were in order. O'Mahoney said the steel industry board indicated the industry was in a position to absorb the pension costs without a price rise.

O'Mahoney's press release also cited Standard & Poor's Corp. records as authority for the statement that "profits, after taxes of most of the larger steel companies were much greater during the first nine months of 1949 than in the same period of 1948.

O'Mahoney said U. S. Steel reported profits after taxes of $133,223,000 for the first three quarters of this year compared with $88,042,000 in the same period of 1948 "and 1948 was a most profitable year." He said Bethlehem and Republic Steel profits were similarly up.

The Wyoming Democrat received the press again after U. S. Steel announced the price advance.

"I am amazed—I can't understand the mental reactions of leaders of steel," he told reporters.

"Concentration of industry is so great that managers of a few companies are able to turn off the spigot to all consumers. When they do that irrationally, as in this case, they injure the whole free enterprise system. That's what amazes me about United States Steel."

O'Mahoney stressed that the company's announcement included not only an increase of 10 cents per hundred on announced mill prices but also about 10 cents a hundred on "extras." He said extras represented "additional prices above the mill level."

"I am sure our committee will be extremely interested in studying the impact of this schedule of extras on the over-all cost of materials to business," he said.

Air Force's Santa Will Fly Despite Appendicitis Siege

The airmen's Santa Claus of the Far North has recovered from a recent attack of appendicitis in time to mount his winged sleigh and distribute cheer again this year, a Defense Department spokesman said tonivht.

Capt. Clenn F. Teska of Minneapolis, Air Force chaplain, has for several years hopped in a plane at Christmas time and delivered packages from home by parachute to airmen at isolated stations in the Far North.

Recently he was stricken with appendicitis and was sent to the hospital at Fort Pepperell, Newfoundland. It was feared he would not be well in time for his annual Saint Nick role.

But the spokesman said that the "flying parson of the airways" has recovered and will make his rounds as usual this year.

Pennsylvania Agrees to Split Of Snuff Fortune

Philadelphia, Dec. 15 (AP)—The State of Pennsylvania, figuring it won't get the entire 17 million dollars Garrett snuff fortune, agreed today to split it with two other major claimants if the Orphans Court judges involved in the 19-year-old litigation agree.

The State sought the entire fortune left by the late Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett under escheat laws.

The U. S. Government claimed the millions as "spoils of war."

And some 26,000 persons, all claiming to be relatives of Mrs. Garrett, tried to get all or part of the horde—a fortune that was started modestly by a Quaker friend of William Penn.

The State hopes to get $6,105,885 under the agreement.

Besides the State and the United States, the representatives of three men who claimed to be first cousins of Mrs. Garrett are parties to the agreement. Mrs. Garrett died in 1930, alone and childless, in a gas-lit South Philadelphia home. She left no will.

High Court Ponders Case

ment failed to prove at his trial that a majority—a quorum—of the House Labor Committee was present when he told the lie for which he was convicted.

In the 5-to-4 split in the Christoffel case, the majority opinion was written by the late Justice Murphy and handed down the last day of the court term, June 27. Murphy was joined by Justices Black, Frankfurter, Douglas and Rutledge.

Murphy and Rutledge have been succeeded by Justices Clark and Minton, and Douglas has not yet returned to the bench following his horseback riding accident. Clark yesterday left the bench when arguments began so the case likely will be decided by a seven-man court, or at most eight.

Justice Jackson, who wrote a strong dissent last June, yesterday asked Perlman why he even referred to the Christoffel decision as the court's stand. He then held up the official court journal for last June 27 to show that while Murphy read the majority opinion the eight justices actually on the bench were evenly divided. Justice Douglas already had left for a vacation in Iran.

Jackson said the court should "fish or cut bait" on the quorum argument. It appeared from the justices' comments that a reversal of the Christoffel case is a strong likelihood.

Perlman argued that in the anti-Fascist group case it didn't make any difference whether a committee quorum was present when the contempt of Congress occurred. But, he said, if it does, then the court ought to reverse itself at once before legal precedents begin to pile up behind the Christoffel decision.

'Quorum Was Present,' Christoffel Study Says

Investigation by the Justice Department since last June's decision in the Harold R. Christoffel case "shows a quorum was present' at the time Christoffel testified and lied that he was not a Communist, Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman revealed yesterday.

He made the remark before the Supreme Court but would not add any details when questioned later by reporters. Justice last June said it was studying the possibility of a retrial of the former labor leader's case since he was freed following statements that a quorum was not present.

Christoffel's attorney, O. John Rogge, charged later last night that Justice now is "seeking to obtain perjured statements from members of the House" to secure Christoffel's conviction. Rogge said Justice hopes "to institute a cycle of similar suits" against union officials who signed the non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law.

Sound Waves Blast Disease Germs to Bits; Provide Weapon Against Baffling Malady

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Soundwaves which literally shake germs to bits have provided medical science here with a potent weapon against Weil's disease, an often fatal type of infectious jaundice.

The germ-lethal vibrations are not directed against the organisms in man but against captive germs in laboratory cultures—to yield a test substance that uncovers the infectious agent in humans.

Though Weil's disease is considered uncommon, its organism (leptospire icterohaemorrhagiae) may cause more ills than generally blamed on it, largely because of past difficulties in recognition, medical men agree.

Treatment No Problem

Since the discovery of penicillin and streptomycin, the real problem in Weil's disease has been diagnosis, not treatment. If diagnosed before the organism does irreparable damage to the system, the disease usually can be easily conquered with either penicillin or streptomycin.

The new test, like the Wasserman test for syphilis, uncovers the presence of antibodies set up in the blood to fight the elusive germs, a sure sign of infection. Its chief value is that such testing can now be done routinely in any medical laboratory.

Development of the new procedure is reported in the current issue of the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine, official publication of the Central Society for Clinical Research, by an Army Medical Center research team.

Germs Localize

Cooperating in the project were Col. Raymond Randall, now of the Army bacteriological warfare center near Frederick, Md., but former director of the veterinarian division, Army Medical Department's Research and Graduate School, and his assistants on the local project, Mrs. Psyche W. Wetmore, bacteriologist, and Albert R. Warner, jr., serologist.

Two previous tests for Weil's disease offer serious obstacles, it was explained. The first tested for presence of the disease organism in the blood. This, it was explained, is an uncertain process since the germs quickly localize within the kidneys and liver, and do not freely circulate in the blood streams.

The second test, considered more certain, requires the use of live organisms of the disease, tediously cultured in the laboratory, to be pitted against possible antibodies in the blood tested. Only two laboratories in the country, the Army Medical Center and the National Institute of Health, in Bethesda, have facilities for such testing.

Within Hearing Range

The research team, however, found that by killing their cultured disease organisms in concentrated solutions, and blasting them to unrecognizable bits in a soundwave vibrating machine they could produce a solution which readily reacts to infected blood.

The sundwaves used, it was explained, are at the rate of 9600 cycles a second, well within the human hearing range of 20 to 20,000 cycles.

Next step, the researchers said yesterday, is large-scale production of the test material, and preferably its production in powered form. At present, they said, the laboratory at the Army Medical Center can't prepare enough of it to even meet diagnostic needs of the Army and VA hospitals it services.

Fund Drive Heads Named

Mrs. Benjamin A. Powell, 416 Highland dr., Kenwood, Md., has been appointed chairman of Suburban Hospital's 1950 membership and fund drive, it was announced yesterday.

Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the hospital's board of trustees, also disclosed that Mrs. Errett C. Albritton, 518 Cumberland ave., Somerset, Md., will act as vice chairman.

Goal of the annual campaign, to open January 10, is $60,000. The proceeds will be used for hospital maintenance, charity work, and to reduce the debt incurred through recent purchase of the hospital from the Government.

The Bethesda institution was purchased by the Suburban Hospital Association, Inc., on December 7, from General Services Administration

Youth Charged With 4 Burglaries

An 18-year-old boy was held in Arlington County jail yesterday in $5000 bond, on charges of breaking into four county homes within 10 days, and taking over $350 loot.

Arlington police said the boy, Robert Barton Moseley of 2133 N. Pollard st., also admitted being AWOL from Fort Meade, Md. for 37 days.

According to Detectives Walter Kadel and John Saunders, Moseley admitted breaking into the homes of Evins Compher, 3165 Key blvd., on December 8; Joseph L. Murphy, 2415 N. 18th st., December 6; Leonard D. Stolz, 2613 Key blvd., December 9; Mrs. Mason D. Washington, 3106 N. 17th st., on December 14. Moseley was arrested Wednesday on a tip, while waiting for a bus on Lee hwy. in Cherrydale. He will be tried next Monday.

Arlington Board Must Act on $3000 Deficit In Welfare Funds; Bigger Pinch Seen in 1951

The Arlington Welfare Department will throw the problem of a $3000 deficit in welfare funds in the lap of the county board this January, Welfare Director John Howell said yesterday.

The county board voted to make up a $1547 deficit in the department's first quarter funds last October. Howell estimated the second quarter deficit will reach the $3000 mark by the end of this month.

Chief reason for both shortages, Howell said, is a reduction in the State Welfare Department's matching funds during this fiscal year.

He predicted the county welfare deficit will continue "at the same rate or higher" in the third quarter of the year, ending this March, since winter demands on the department are "always heavier."

Moreover, the pinch in welfare funds will be even worse in the 1951 fiscal year, according to Howell, because:

1. A cut in the over-all State Welfare Department's budget request this year. If the General Assembly approves the welfare budget as requested, the State Welfare Department will receive $3,181,000 for the 1950-1951 fiscal year; this compares to a fund of $3,425,000 in the present fiscal year.

2. A steadily growing case load here, which Howell said will increase "conservatively" about 10 percent, over this year, in the 1951 fiscal year.

Because of anticipated State cuts, the County Board, which appropriated $92,000 to the Welfare Department for the current year, will have to add $13,500 more to that figure next year, just to take care of Arlington's present case load, Howell said. Additional funds will be necessary to care for the expected 10-percent increase in welfare demands, the welfare director pointed out.

He said the department "has had to turn many people down without investigation" since last July, because of its present fund shortage.

Arlington Man Dies; Crash Toll Now Five

George C. Harrison, 47-year-old Government employe, died yesterday in Bolling Air Force Base Hospital, bringing to five the death toll in Monday night's crash of a DC-3 airliner near National Airport.

Harrison

Mr. Harrison, of 5921 N. 16th st., Arlington, remained unconscious until his death at noon. He was one of 19 persons rescued from the wreckage in the Potomac River. Four persons were killed instantly.

At Mr. Harrison's bedside in the crash ward of the Bolling Station Hospital were his mother, wife, three daughters and two sons-in-law.

Came Here in 1934

A native of Manchester, Conn., he came to Washington in 1934 to work with the Commodity Credit Corporation. He later was employed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and was a buyer of strategic and critical materials with the Federal Supply Service at the time of his death.

Mr. Harrison leaves his wife; three daughters, Mrs. Betty Fetzer of the Arlington address, Mrs. Elaine Van Akin, Temple City, Calif., and Mrs. Eleanor Foley, 3703 N. 14th st., Arlington; his mother, two brothers and three grandchildren.

Another development in the aftermath of the crash was the Civil Aeronautics Administration denial of a charge of "procrastination" in installing high intensity approach lights to National Airport.

Called Possible Factor

The American Aviation Daily contended that the crash might have been avoided had the lights been installed without delay.

The CAA said a contract for the "slope-line" lights to guide pilots at night and in bad weather was signed September 21, after the impartial Aircraft Committee of the Munitions Board had unanimously adopted the plan on April 5.

The first pile for mounting the lights was driven in the Potomac River approach to the airport on October 20. The job, costing $143,000, should be completed by February—"on schedule"—the CAA declared.

An official pointed out that 95 planes had made successful instrument approaches to the airport during the 20-hour period before the DC-3 crashed in five feet of water.

Public hearings on the disaster will be conducted by the Civil Aeronautics Board, probably within 10 days. The CAA is in charge of enforcement of regulations.

Kringle Threatens Tingle for Sprout

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—A little tot climbed on a hobby horse in a downtown department store here and decided to stay.

Neither his mother nor the salesman could pull him off.

Then the store Santa took over. He bent over and whispered in the lad's ear. The youngster got off the horse and left the store, but quick.

"What in the world did you promise him?" asked the curious salesman.

Santa chuckled: "I told him to get off or I'd kick him right out of his little pants."

Point location and greatly facilitate use of commercial aircraft.

Additional Hazards

"It would be a rare occurrence to have military aircraft 'lost' over National Airport, thus creating additional traffic hazards.

"Many military planes are involved in near misses over National," he said, 'because they are flown by pilots not sharp in instrument landing."

The close and sometimes merging traffic patterns of the three fields, said Hadley, make it difficult for pilots to determine which field they are approaching.

"Had these actions been authorized before, the near-misses and the November 1 disaster (Eastern Airlines collision with the Bolivian P-38, killing 55 passengers) would have been averted in all probability. He commented.

Cannot Be Enlarged

"These facts, and recognizing also that even commercial traffic frequently overtaxes facilities at National," said Hadley, "have led us to recommend that an alternate airport be established for this area. Because of ground limitations, National Airport cannot feasibly be enlarged.

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church and Chaplain of the United States Senate, gripped his audience with a forceful talk pointing up the world-wide struggle between the "Christian faith and materialistic forces."

Other speakers included: Charles Fahy, who was sworn in as a United States Court of Appeal judge yesterday; Frank Luchs, chairman of the Community Chest campaign; Edgar Morris and Morgan Beatty, NBC news commentator.

Frederick P. H. Siddons, board president, presided.

Tax Lien Filed Against Firm For $179,674

Notice was filed in District Court yesterday of a tax lien against the Timber Engineering Co. of 1319 18th st. nw. for allegedly unpaid taxes for 1941 and 1942 amounting to $179,674.

Harry G. Uhl, president, said filing of the lien was "entirely out of order." He said "we paid some $185,000 in principal due on taxes and negotiations are pending to determine the amount of interest due."

Uhl said the firm makes designs for timber structures and maintains a research laboratory in wood chemistry and wood products development. The lien, according to the notice, was for $62,579 allegedly due in back taxes for 1941 and $117,095 for 1942.

Miss Simpson Takes Office; Sets Precedent

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 15 (AP).—Smiling Vivian V. Simpson, champion of female rights, today became Maryland's first woman Secretary of State.

Amid applause from more than 500 men and women, she was sworn in at the State House by Governor Lane and received her commission stamped in gold with the Great Seal of Maryland.

One of the petite brunette's duties in the $2000-year post will be custodian of the State seal.

Miss Simpson, 46 years old, is an attorney and president of the Montgomery County Bar Association.

Twenty-six years ago, as a student at the University of Maryland, Miss Simpson was ordered expelled for refusing to conform to school discipline.

She was described as a professed "man-hater" and a student who violated rules by making fudge after lights-out.

Fighting back, Miss Simpson went to court for a writ of mandamus, said she sought only the privileges already given to male students and lost the case finally in the State's highest court.

She transferred to George Washington University and in 1927 graduated from the George Washington law school.

Climaxing her subsequent career, Governor Lane appointed her Secretary of State to succeed Bertram L. Boone of Baltimore, who resigned to take a State Department position.

Her office, its routine handled by a corps of assistants, attests the signature of the Governor on all public documents, certifies the results of elections and keeps a record of trademarks, paroles, and appointments by the Governor.

Fund Started For Home Rule

give Washington a reorganized government headed by a representative council and city manager, was tabled by the House District Committee last summer.

Main purpose of the "war chest" and a Hill "clearing house" is to muster 218 House members to sign a petition by Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) to bring the measure from the House District Committee to the House floor for a vote.

Hopeful of another White House assist, home rule spokesmen yesterday disclosed President Truman is actively considering making a strong request for final congressional action on the bill in his State of the Union message or in one of his other early messages to Congress.

Meanwhile, the Central Suffrage Conference gave a preliminary report on replies to letters they sent last month to more than 200 House members in their home States.

Culver Chamberlain, conference chairman, had written to the 217 Representatives who indicated in The Washington Post poll that they are sympathetic to District home rule.

Ready to Sign

Of that number, he said, about one third have said they will sign the discharge petition when Congress convenes, a third were noncommital in their replies and about a third have not answered his letter.

"I have received only a couple of complete denial," Chamberlain said last night.

"Gerhard P. Van Arkel, secretary of the Democratic Central Committee, has just completed sending a similar letter to the 263 House Democrats asking them to support the District measure.

Concluding his "grass roots" appeal, Van Arkel told the Democrats:

"The majority of Washington residents are solidly in favor of home rule for the District. Many of these residents have roots back home. Therefore, support for District suffrage is not limited to Washington alone, but has the backing of voters from every part of the country."

Man Contends He Was Denied Speedy Trial

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 15 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today took up the case of Ronald Harris, known as Baltimore's "maniac bandit."

Harris, now doing time in Baltimore on auto theft charges, asked the court to quash charges pending against him in Prince Georges County on the ground that he was denied a right to a speedy trial there.

Harris, 44-year-old native of Chestertown, has a criminal record dating back to 1918.

Six years ago he was acquitted of slaying Baltimore Patrolman William J. Woodcock when Judge Eugene O'Dunne ruled he was entitled to resist arrest. The judge said an attempt to arrest Harris on an assault charge without a warrant was illegal.

He was indicted April 12, 1944, by the grand jury of Prince Georges County on five counts charging robbery, assault to rob, simple assault, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

About that time he was captured in Baltimore and on April 5, 1944, was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland Penitentiary on charges of auto theft, receiving stolen goods and unauthorized use of auto.

Harris contended he has been asking Prince Georges authorities to stand trial there for the past two years. Claiming that he has been denied a constitutional right to speedy trial, he argued that prosecution is now barred.

Harris appealed from an order by Circuit Judge Charles C. Marbury denying his motion to quash the Prince Georges indictment.

Assistant Attorney General Harrison L. Winter told the high court that a trial had been ordered for Harris as soon as he asked for one.

"Up to 1949, there is no reason to believe there was any request for trial whatsoever," Winter said.

Suit Contends Dentistry Is Business

Whether the practice of dentistry is a business or a profession was argued at length yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court during a hearing of an injunction suit to bar a Silver Spring dentist from opening an office in his home.

The injunction was sought by two neighboring families. They charged Dr. Louis M. Cuvillier with converting a basement garage at 720 Dale dr. into an office, which they claimed was in violation of a property covenant prohibiting "any trade or business whatsoever" in the section.

The plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Harman of 802 Dale dr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Brown of 800 Dale dr.

James W. Gill, Dr. Cuvillier's attorney, contended there is a "vast difference" between a "trade or business whatsoever" as written in the covenant and the practice of a profession.

He cited numerous court decisions to back his contention and further called attention to the county's 1927 zoning ordinance, in effect at the time of the covenant's imposition, which permits doctors, lawyers and other professional men to maintain offices in their homes.

A similar number of court decisions to support the suit was advanced by Edward L. Foster, attorney for the complaining families. Foster contended that a dental practice is a "trade or business" and that the covenant is legally enforceable since its intent is to insure the "strict residential character" of the community.

Kee for Lee Gets Kee Out, And Back In

The quaint story of how one man named Kee used the name of a man Lee as a key to get out of jail was related yesterday in Municipal Court.

Isaac Kee, of 464 M st. nw., and Charlie Lee, of 1030 Whittingham pl. ne., it seems, were cellmates in No. 2 Precinct station house, both charged with being drunk.

Came time to call up for possible release those who had sobered up sufficiently to navigate and Pvt. Melvin T. Feggans, in charge of the cellblock approached No. 7 cell where, he said, one of the pair, later identified as Lee, was sleeping while the other lay awake expectantly.

Feggans testified yesterday that he called out the name "Charlie Lee" and that Kee "responded."

"I assumed he was Lee. I had no reason to believe otherwise," Feegans said.

He led Kee to the property clerk where, he said, Kee signed Lee's name and received Lee's property consisting of $47 cash and outer clothing.

Kee then, said the officer, peeled off $10 of Lee's $47, paid his collateral and strode off—$37 to the good.

When Lee awoke the truth that Kee had posed as Lee was discovered. So police credited to Lee the $10 collateral Kee posted while posing as Lee.

And yesterday Judge Armond Scott ordered Kee, who had been rearrested, held on $2500 bond for the grand jury on a forgery charge.

Ex-Contractor Ends His Life With Rifle

John S. Copenhaver, 69, retired trucking contractor, was found dead yesterday by his son-in-law in the bathroom of a home in which he roomed, a .22-caliber bullet wound in his left temple. A rifle lay by his side.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

Mr. Copenhaver roomed for several years in the home of Mrs. Ottie Kipps, 818 Allison st. nw. She told police she heard a shot on the second floor, and called the son-in-law, Robert E. Wilhelm, 4812 Georgia ave. nw., who discovered the elderly man's body.

Dr. Murphy said he was informed Mr. Copenhaver had been in ill health for several years and had become progressively worse after operations two years ago for a lung condition.

A native of Smith County, Va., Mr. Copenhaver had lived in Washington most of his life. He retired from the trucking business 18 years ago. Surviving him are a son, Harold B. Copenhaver; two daughters, Mrs. Gladys Barnhart and Mrs. Kathryn Wilhelm, and six grandchildren.

Bergman-Rossellini Wedding Plan Vague

Rome, Dec. 15 (AP).—Italian moviemaker Roberto Rossellini said today that within a week he and Ingrid Bergman expect to announce their marriage plans.

"We are overcoming the difficulties which have thus far delayed Ingrid's divorce," the director told a reporter. He did not disclose what the difficulties were but indicated a legal way around had been found—possibly through a European divorce.

"It might be called," he said, "an act of God."

Miss Bergman announced her intention last summer to seek a divorce from her surgeon-husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom of Los Angeles. They have an 11-year-old daughter, Pia.

Upset by Rumors

Rossellini disclosed that the actress is in virtual seclusion here, "terribly upset by the fires of rumor burning around us."

He added that: "Ingrid has been taking sedatives to quiet her nerves. She is, how do you say, ashamed by all this."

As for reports she expects a baby in February, Rossellini said "Ingrid has decided to say nothing. No action means no trouble—that's our policy. And we've had our share of trouble, don't you think?

"These stories," he exclaimed, waving a hand. "How can anyone be so vicious?

"It's all so delicate and involved, you understand, one cannot just comment on such things which may involve many others."

Miss Bergman is 34 and Rossellini, 43. They were linked romantically last spring, shortly after her arrival here from Hollywood to star in his picture, "Stromboli."

Returned Together

The picture was filmed mostly on the semideserted volcanic isle of Stromboli, off Sicily. They returned together to Rome after completing the picture.

"Maybe," Rossellini ventured, "the public will look more kindly on her when it sees her in 'Stromboli.'"

Miss Bergman is occupying the luxurious Parioli penthouse apartment of a member of Rome's nobility and a close friend of Rossellini.

The couple was seen from time to time this past summer dining in a Rome restaurant. In recent weks, however, they have been seldom seen in public.

'Awfully Hungry'

Girl, 16, Safe After 4 Days In Icy Woods

Longview, Wash., Dec. 15 (AP). A smart little Girl Scout who knew enough to stay put and wait for rescue, was found safe and unhurt today—after being lost four days without food in a near-freezing forest.

Sixteen-year-old Ruth Aberle, of Kilso, Wash., broke out in smiles when one of the 600 men who have been scouring the forest found her on a creek bank.

"I knew I'd get out," she said. "I wasn't scared. But I hope no one else ever gets lost."

Her girl sea scout training—"find a sheltered place and wait for rescue"—saved her life in the sleet-raked forest.

She found an old cabin, made herself a windbreak out of an old door, and just stayed there. She went only far enough away each day to drink creek water and see if anyone were around.

The four days of hunger seemed to have done little harm. A hospital here, where she was rushed for observation, said her condition was very good.

"I'm all right, mother," Ruth comforted as Mrs. William Aberle, tears streaming, leaned over the girl. "I'm all right; I'm happy now."

A Rose Valley rancher, Charles F. Smith, came across the girl above Goble Creek this afternoon when she went down for a drink of water. She was about 10 miles away from the main search area.

"She couldn't say anything, when I first walked up to her," Smith said. "She didn't cry. She just didn't say anything."

But in a few minutes she recovered from the shock of joy, and walked to Smith's house with him. He offered her a sandwich, but she'd been fasting so long she could not eat it.

Sirens and gunshot signals recalled the 600 men who had been hunting Ruth. They had all but given her up for dead.

"I realized I was lost about an hour after I became separated from the rest of the kids," Ruth said. "I got on a long road and walked for a while. Once I saw a light; later I lost it.

"Finally I found the cabin. It was fairly dry. I found an old door that was off its hinges in one corner. I took the door and placed it in an upright position in another corner. I crawled in behind the door and didn't get too cold."

She spoke gratefully of the scout training that had taught her to protect herself in such a situation.

"I don't think I would be here now if I had not known enough to stay in out of th eocld," she said.

9000 More Cows

Blackburg, Va., Dec. 15 (AP). — The number of milk cows in Virginia is up 2 percent over last year, it was reported here. Robert G. Connelly, Virginia Agricultural Extension Service dairy husbandman, said there were 458,000 milk cows in the State in October of this year, compared to 449,000 in the corresponding month of 1948.

Water Shortage Not Impossible, Marylanders Told

Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of the University of Maryland College of Agriculture, said yesterday that Marylanders should give more than passing thought to the critical water shortage which has crippled New York City.

Symons recalled the 1930 drought in Maryland and said "We are not immune to the hazards."

One of the long-range ideas behind the soil conservation program in Maryland is protecting the water supplies of Baltimore, Washington and other cities.

"The investment and effort thus far made are a contribution toward conserving our natural water resources," Symons said. "It behooves us to intensify these efforts in order to avoid the dire conditions that now confront New York.

They Have 'Difficulties'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

REAL-LIFE DRAMA—Roberto Rossellini, Italian film director, and Ingrid Bergman, pictured recently on the Island of Stromboli, are, according to Rossellini, "overcoming the difficulties which have thus far delayed Ingrid's divorce." As for Hollywood reports she expects a baby in February, Rossellini said, "Ingrid has decided to say nothing . . . " The Swedish star is in seclusion in Rome

Woman Asks Venue Change In Drug Case

Mrs. Evelina "Tinky" Roberts, 28, wife of James Roberts, 41, 744 Girard st. nw., has filed a motion for a change of venue in the trial in which she is charged with transferring and acquiring marihuana.

She and her husband and 30 others were arrested in October, as a result of 14 raids by Federal narcotics agents, metropolitan policemen and deputy marshals on October 18.

The motion will be argued in District Court today, together with other motions in the case in which she was indicted with her husband.

In affidavits supporting her motions, Mrs. Roberts charges that it will be impossible for her to obtain a fair trial because of a picture which appeared in The Washington Post, and a story which appeared in another newspaper.

The story, she charged, "which received wide circulation, has taken upon itself, without formal proof, to state that I am white, while my husband is a Negro; our physical appearances indicate this to be true and no amount of explanation or claim of ancestry would shake the bias and prejudices of the people of this community who must necessarily sit on our jury."

A picture of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts and Dorothy Martin, 30, 1333 Kenyon st. nw., at a local nightclub appeared in The Washington Post on October 21.

"A feeling of bias and prejudice . . . against me and my husband" has arisen, she charged, because police officers removed a photograph from an album in her apartment during the raid and "turned it over to The Washington Post for the sole purpose of creating a feeling of bias.

"I feel that this unwarranted invasion of my privacy will make it impossible to obtain a fair and impartial trial in this community," she charged.

"At no time did I consent or authorize anyone to reproduce or exhibit that photograph," she attested.

'Bloodshed' Seen By AFL, Due to Importing Labor

By the United Press

The AFL demanded yesterday the Government stop its war-born practice of importing foreign farm workers. It said it is reducing American living standards and depriving thousands of United States workers of their jobs.

The big labor organization said American workers have suffered particularly in California, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Connecticut. Displaced California workers are especially indignant, it said, and the United States Employment Service must take the blame for a "critical situation which may well lead to bloodshed."

The complaint was laid before the Bureau of Employment Security by H. L. Mitchell, of the AFL's Farm Labor Union, at a meeting of the bureau's advisory council. He urged that foreign farm workers now in this country be sent home as soon as their contracts run out.

Snow Fighters Ready

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—State highway forces throughout Virginia have been alerted for snow, but Tidewater Virginia had the only snow today, a highway department spokesman said. Snow flurries were reported in the Suffolk area, but the snow did not stick.

Private Power Interests Hit At ADA Session

Three conservation authorities took turns sniping at privately-operated power interests at a panel discussion by Americans for Democratic Action last night.

Speaking on various aspects of the saving of our natural resources at Epiphany Church parish hall, 1317 G st. nw., the experts voiced strong opposition to many of the tactics, operation methods and attitudes of power interests.

Morris Llewellyn Cooke, former head of the Rural Electrification Administration, said the power companies are "the strongest single influence to break down the free enterprise system in America."

Benton J. Strong, executive secretary of the National Committee on Resources and chairman of the Regional Committee for the Missouri Valley Authority, said 33 organizations in Washington are part of the "least obvious but highest-powered lobby here."

Strong said the recent Kings River decision giving the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. development authority on a California river was "a dangerous precedent" which may see an end of Government-developed area projects.

Arthur E. Goldschmidt, former head of the Interior Department's power division, now special assistant to the Interior Secretary, said low-cost power would make possible greater development of natural resources. He called for fixed responsibility in the handling of all natural resources by the Federal Government.

Comment from the floor afterwards brought a heated appeal by Oregon newspaperman Monroe Sweetland for an all-out attack on the power interests.

"We can't win the battle for power expansion unless we carry on a battle against private monopoly and turn it into a public monopoly," he said.

Gerow Suggests Army Handle Any D. C. Catastrophe

Lieut. Gen. Leonard Gerow, commanding the Second Army at Fort Meade, last night said there is no civilian organization capable of handling the "massive problems" which would face Washington in a "major catastrophe."

He suggested the 2009th Logistical Division (reserve) of the Army develop a master plan for the area in event of a disaster.

The division, marking its first anniversary last night at Fort Meade, is an experimental outfit which combines all major Army units. Veterans Administrator Carl Gray also spoke.

"Husband-Tested" COOKIES
from Mary Lee Taylor's Kitchen

He'll ask for more and more of these better-than-ever oatmeal cookies! Husbands called them wonderful, in tests made in homes across the country. And what a thrifty treat, made with Pet Milk—because Pet Milk costs less, generally, than bottled milk, less than half as much as cream.

Husband-Tested
OATMEAL JELLY COOKIES

¾ cup sifted, all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
⅓ cup soft shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup light brown sugar, lightly packed
1 egg
¼ cup Pet Milk
¼ cup jelly or marmalade

Turn on oven; set at moderate (375° F.). Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Fold in rolled oats. Put shortening and vanilla into bowl. Mix in brown sugar slowly. Beat egg in vigorously. Stir in about ⅓ of flour mixture. When smooth, stir in about half of milk. Repeat until all flour and milk are used. Drop by heaping teaspoons onto greased baking sheet, leaving 2-in. space between each. With back of teaspoon press hollow in each. Fill with jelly, using ⅓ teasp. for each. Bake 12 min., or until brown. Makes 2 dozen.

600 Weary Apple Trees To Get Ax

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the chopping down of 600 old nonbearing apple trees at Lorton Reformatory in Fairfax County.

Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, pointed out he had taken down 600 other unproductive trees last winter without going to the Commissioners. But "someone in the neighborhood" had reported it to the General Accounting Office, and GAO investigated.

Nothing came of it, Clemmer said. But he got the impression that he should get approval of the Commissioners next time because fruit trees are considered a capital asset.

To back up his request, Clemmer submitted figures to show the orchards at the reformatory have been a "dismal failure." They have lost money in four of the last five years.

The land will be devoted to "more productive agricultural enterprises, Clemmer said. There will be 2000 apple trees left.

Baltimore, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Public Service Commission of Maryland today extended for three months the higher rates it authorized for telephone service on a temporary basis.

Meanwhile, it still is working on an application by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for new permanent rates that would be even higher than the temporary increases.

The temporary rates were to be put in force last March 21, originally for a nine-month period. That was to give the company time to make its case for higher permanent rates.

The hearing on that proposal was resumed today, with the State of Maryland presenting its case against the increases.

The State pointed out, for one thing, that Chesapeake & Potomac pays the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 2¾ percent interest on money it borrows from A.T.&T.

The New York Telephone Cos. and other affiliates on the Pacific Coast borrow their money from banks and pay only 2 percent.

Robert W. Michie, vice president and comptroller of the company, supplied the information under examination by a special attorney for the State. He said the other companies borrow from banks because that is a policy laid down by the regulatory commissions of their States.

Onion Growers in Disfavor . . .

The Washington Post

"TAKE 'EM AWAY," SAYS SHE—Carolyn Rudy, Junior Miss America, would rather have orchids, obviously. However, there were none at the Junior Vegetable Growers Association convention banquet last night in the Hotel Washington. Miss Rudy turns down the prize—onions offered by four University of Maryland students. They are Clyde Warrick and Edwin Orndorff, both of Cumberland; James Arnold of Monrovia, and Douglas King of Clarksburg

Vegetables Big Business, Growers Told

The four-day convention of some 500 young vegetable growers from 40 States closed last night with a banquet at which Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Knox T. Hutchinson underlined the importance of the industry.

"The vegetable business is big business amounting to 6.69 billion dollars in retail value, or 17.7 percent of the food consumer's dollar," Hutchinson said.

"As the Nation continues to progress toward higher dietary standards, it would seem that the outlook for increased consumption of green and yellow vegetables is good."

Announcement of awards totaling $10,000 were made at the banquet at the Hotel Washington. Marjorie A. Bell, 18, of Yukon, Okla., was named president of the group, the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association, for 1950. Judging of grading, identification and demonstration contests highlighted the afternoon session.

Net Hearing Set

Baltimore, Dec. 15 (AP).—The State Game and Fish Department announced today it will hold a hearing in Baltimore, January 6, on a proposal to outlaw use of dip nets on Allegany County tributaries of the Potomac River.

Dr. Tobias Is Elected To Bank Director Post

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—The election of Dr. Channing Tobias, Negro civic leader, to the board of directors of the Modern Industrial Bank was announced today by Henry Morgenthau, jr., chairman.

"Dr. Tobias is the first representative of his people to be elected to the board of directors of a major New York banking institution," said Morgenthau, former Secretary of the Treasury.

The Modern Industrial Bank has assets in excess of 46 million dollars and has five branches in the metropolitan New York area.

Dr. Tobias is chairman of the board of trustees of Hampton Institute and a trustee of Howard University and of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Montgomery Building Code Changes Backed

Six proposed changes in the Montgomery County building code met with near unanimous approval yesterday at a public hearing at the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission's Silver Spring offices.

Five of the suggested changes were indorsed by the more than 30 architects, engineers and builders attending, while the sixth drew unfavorable comment on one phase.

The objection, voiced by Dana B. Johannes, jr., of the firm of Johannes & Murray, Silver Spring architects, dealt with latitude to be allowed building inspectors in approving underground depth of 8-inch thick masonry walls.

Johannes recommended that a minimum standard be set and "rigidly adhered to."

Other amendments prepared by Anthony J. Scullen, jr., the MNCPPC's structural engineer, would relax regulations governing design and construction of footings; approve use of materials other than masonry for chimneys and determine flue sizes by output of heating plants, and set new standards for use of steel joists to conform with practices now universally followed.

Two additions to the code would set standards for the use of reinforced concrete and structural steel.

Blair Lee 3d, MNCPPC vice chairman who presided, said the changes, if adopted, would not affect the code now in preparation for the entire district covered by the body in both Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. He said the commission would vote on the changes at its next meeting, December 29.

License of Realty Firm Salesman Is Suspended

The license of a salesman in the real estate office here of Representator Victor Wickersham (D., Okla.) was suspended for 14 days yesterday by the District Real Estate Commission.

The commission found John Q. Peterson guilty of two violations of a section of the Real Estate Brokers License Law dealing with misrepresentation.

According to the commission's findings, Peterson was negotiating for the sale of a house in Chevy Chase, Md., when another salesman in the office found another buyer.

Peterson's prospect was still interested, the commission's report stated, and asked about buying the purchase contract.

Inquiring about the sales price, Peterson apparently misunderstood, the commission said, and gave his prospect a figure $1000 higher than had been agreed on.

Peterson later learned the correct figure, the commission found, but did not inform his prospective customer. An offer based "in part" on Peterson's incorrect figure was made, the commission stated. But when the discrepancy was learned, the prospective buyer refused to settle.

Something New Added To Tax Forms

The Internal Revenue Bureau is sending out its annual season's greetings to taxpayers, but this year something new has been added.

In addition to the traditional blank income-tax forms which one may grimly contemplate along with one's Christmas shopping list, there is a card listing the name and address of taxpayer and punched with numerous holes of varying size.

All you have to do with this card is send it back, along with your income-tax return, when you send your annual greeting to the Internal Revenue by next March 15.

The revenue men call this card a control card. It is being used by the Baltimore and Cleveland collection districts as part of an experiment to see if tax experts can't cut down on time and effort needed to process tax returns.

The punch cards were made up from the tax returns filed last year. They were coded to show name, address, social security number, with a control number for alphabetizing.

When the Internal Revenue Bureau gets one of these cards back with a return, the card can be put into a machine and by means of the holes alphabetical records on you found in a twinkling.

The punch card can be used for years, as long as you keep on living in the same place.

The average taxpayer may not care whether or not the tax experts have to sweat blood to process each return. But Julian Williams, supervisor attached to the Washington office, points out that the taxpayer stands to benefit, also, by the punch cards.

For 75 percent of all individual tax returns are overpaid, and the taxpayer is entitled to a refund. So, if the card comes back, the good news of the refund will go out more quickly.

American U. Picks 22 for 'Who's Who'

A husband and wife are among 22 students selected by the American University to represent the school in the 1949-50 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Nelson Acquitted In Fist-Fight Slaying

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday granted a judgment of acquittal in the case of Edward Nelson, 23, charged with the slaying of Edward H. Haynes, 30, of 456 M st. nw., in a fight last September 25.

Nelson, pleading self defense, asserted Haynes was atop him beating him severely when he fired at Haynes to save his life.

Union Of Free States

There is nothing new in Dr. Harold C. Urey's suggestion that a political union of the free nations of the West is the only satisfactory answer to the war threats hanging over mankind. But his statement adds to the growing conviction that the free world must do something more than erect radar screens and build more atomic bombs. "Only a strong move, a radical one and a vigorous one," he says, can prevent the outbreak of another war in the years ahead. What he has in mind is a federal union of the free nations of the West which would be so powerful that the Soviet Union would not be in a position to challenge it. His comment that "it is not possible to work with tyranny" follows close upon the heels of Senator Dulles' plea for a more dynamic policy for encouragement of freedom everywhere.

If the North Atlantic Pact works well, it may temporarily serve the purpose Dr. Urey has in mind. But the pact itself is creating a series of new and complicated problems that put a heavy strain on diplomacy. If nations are to make a common-defense policy successful, as we have often noted, they must follow a common foreign policy. The combination of powers must have means of shaping their policies to new situations and of settling numerous differences among themselves. This calls for a parliament, assembly or congress to which all the peoples could send representatives, an executive force to carry out the unified foreign and defense policies, and perhaps a supreme court to settle differences among the constituent states without resort to violence.

Certainly this not a revolutionary idea in America. Senator Kefauver pointed out some months ago that our own Constitution was in the beginning a foreign policy. It has proved ever since, he said, "the best foreign policy that any free people can practice toward other free peoples." It is true, of course, that any union of free nations would at once face baffling problems, as did the 13 American States in the first years of our Federal Union. But these problems already exist. The great difference would be that under a union of free states we should have well-established means of seeking solutions, whereas today solutions must be sought through the painfully inefficient processes of diplomacy.

Twenty members of Congress are sponsoring a resolution calling on the President to invite the countries represented in the Atlantic Pact to send delegates to a conference that would explore the possibility of creating a union of free states. It is encouraging to find many thoughtful men looking in this direction. We should like to see the Senate Foreign Relations Committee conduct hearings on the proposal in the forthcoming session of Congress, seeking testimony from the wisest men who are giving thought to the perils besetting freedom in this atomic age.

Panama Recognized

There is ample precedent for the diplomatic recognition in Panama of a regime antithetical to American interests. If the test of recognition were merely whether a government was democratic, then Franco and every Soviet regime would be ruled out. There is a good deal of point in assuring continuous representation and observation on the spot, and this is especially true in a country so strategically important to the United States as Panama.

Whatever the State Department may profess to the contrary, however, in the Western Hemisphere diplomatic recognition by this country is regarded as a stamp of approval. Latin-American nations are extraordinarily concerned over their relations with the United States. Any national leader, or despot, can gain capital by telling the people that the United States has recognized the stability of his regime. The reservations in such recognition seldom get across to the people.

The real gaff over Panama happened, of course, when the State Department put out a nonsensical and unprincipled statement that no question of recognition was involved because the change of Presidents was by "constitutional" means. This, on top of the questionable meddling by the American Ambassador and other members of the Diplomatic Corps in the unseating of President Chanis, gave an inevitable fillip to the machinations of Col. Jose Remon and his candidate, Arnulfo Arias. Nothing the State Department could say by way of deploring the outright military coup that followed could undo the damage.

If nonrecognition by itself is not effective, neither is the policy of seeming indifference to the destruction of constitutional regimes in Latin America. Government after government has been subverted by militarist and rightist coups; yet the State Department, judging from some of the official speeches, is embarked on a policy of "see no evil." Blindness is the best ally of antidemocratic forces. Cooperative ventures such as the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, which the department praises, are doing significant work, but they alone are not enough. Dictatorship in Latin America is contagious, and it can be quarantined only by strong collective measures.

Jumbled Transportation

Secretary Sawyer's report to the President on a national transportation program does a good job of pointing up the many contradictions in Federal policy. The remedies it proposes, however, are somewhat less clear. After cogently evaluating specific inconsistencies, it leads rather vaguely to the conclusion that some sort of single agency coordination is necessary, at least in promotion of the various types of transportation. The suspicion arises that the report is modestly standoffish to give the President a peg for recommending the consolidation of transportation activities within the Department of Commerce, which Mr. Sawyer heads.

There can be little quarrel with the report's criticism. It points to the lack of any Federal standards respecting transportation and the consequent helter-skelter promotion of certain types of transportation to the detriment of others. It slaps, for example, at the promotion of Federal barge lines at the expense of the railroads; at the immense, economically unsound expenditures for rivers and harbors; at the Civil Aeronautics Board's coddling of high-cost, inefficient airlines; at the impossibly complex rail freight rates which discriminate against certain users.

The general conclusion in the report that users ought to pay the full cost of transportation finds a well-documented second in the exhaustive study by Charles L. Dearing and Wilfred Owen, National Transportation Policy, published by the Brookings Institution. There is sound logic in this position, as there is in the recommendation that subsidies be separated from mail payments in the case of the airlines. The report is extremely critical of the practice of the railroads, sanctioned by the Interstate Commerce Commission, of making up in some higher rates what they lose on other uneconomic tariffs. The railroads will find consolation, however, in the report's recognition of unfair competition against them by carriers which do not pay the full cost of their rights of way, and in the recommendation that the ICC adopt a more liberal policy on rail abandonments. The report also shows a healthy regard for the regulating effect of competition except where national defense considerations are paramount. The best test of the worth of any service, it recognizes, is public use.

All of this tends to support Secretary Sawyer's case for integration of promotional activities, at least at the general policy level, as well as his recommendation for relating rates closely to the cost of service. It would be unfortunate, however, if the President were to recommend that the job of correlation be given to the Department of Commerce. After the unhappy experience with the proposed department of welfare, there would be some justification for the feeling that Congress might not approve a separate department of transportation at this time. But the addition of transportation activities to Commerce, which already is unwieldy, would run the risk of submerging the transportation program in a sea of basically dissimilar operations.

Indeed, what seems logical on a chart is not always logical in practice, and there is danger in attempting to lump together fish, sheep and pigeons. It is just possible, for example, that the fundamental fault with some regulatory-promotional agencies such as the Maritime Commission is not with the law or the organization, but with the attitudes of officials administering the law. In other words, while mere inertia is not sufficient reason to resist change, there is no panacea in change alone. What is important is that before any change is adopted there be reasonable assurance that it will produce more synchronization rather than more bureaucracy. A good deal could be accomplished in the existing framework if the President were to define a uniform set of objectives applicable to all transportation agencies.

No Water, No Soap

All the adult male inhabitants of New York City have been asked not to shave today and all inhabitants without regard to age or sex have been asked not to wash themselves. The reason, of course, is the alarming situation that has arisen as the result of the prolonged drought and the depletion of the reservoirs of the great Catskill watershed. Thus any man who makes his appearance today with a smooth face, or any person with a clean one, is likely to be considered somewhat lacking in civic spirit. In other words, cleanliness will, while the drought continues, be deemed at considerable distance from godliness in the descending scale of virtue.

It is unlikely that the drought will last long enough for the growing of beards to become a universal custom and for the habit of frequent washing to fall in disuse. But the truth seems to be that both shaving and bathing have been subject to various historical ups and downs. For example, the Romans of the imperial age were much addicted to both; and there are many who think they overdid the business of bathing. At any rate, they used up a powerful lot of water, most of which, as is the case in New York and many other large American cities, had to be transported for long distances in great aqueducts, so that when the Huns cut off the water supply the situation of the Romans was even more uncomfortable than that of New Yorkers today.

The Romans who could afford it had private baths; but these were relatively few, so that, generally speaking, bathing was on a communal basis, as is still the case in many parts of the world. In later Roman times the public bath seems to have combined all the functions that now belong to the club, the stock exchange, the barber shop, the beauty shop and the congressional lobbies.

After the custom of mixed bathing had developed among the Romans the public baths began to get a bad name in certain quarters, and there are still some who think the practice had a good deal to do with the decadence that hastened the ultimate collapse of the Western Empire. Whether the goings-on at the baths were really quite as scandalous as reported, or any more so than at certain modern bathing beaches is not clear. Anyway, after the aqueducts were destroyed the custom had to be given up. Generally speaking there does not seem to have been either much opportunity or much inclination thereafter for frequent washing in Europe until the Crusaders, who had acquired the habit in the East, began to return.

The highly individualistic character of bathing practiced nowadays (at any rate indoors) seems peculiar to modern times, and Professor Giedion in his fascinating book on mechanization has ingeniously related it to laissez faire economics of the nineteenth century and the principle of the division of labor.

The District's Needy

We sometimes wonder what the millions of destitute Europeans who have been clothed and fed at American expense would say if they knew that thousands of residents of the Capital City of the United States lack adequate food, clothing and shelter. We also wonder how a Congress that has voted billions for the relief of foreign peoples can possibly defend its failure to grant the District's Board of Public Welfare the funds required to make decent provision for the sick, the aged, dependent children and the needy unemployed and to replace crowded insanitary buildings that house public charges. This official neglect cannot be attributed to lack of knowledge of local needs. For the Department of Public Welfare has repeatedly called the attention of Congress to the shameful inadequacy of the appropriations for welfare purposes.

Funds are not only insufficient to carry the increasing number of relief cases; the Welfare Department is also undermanned (likewise for lack of funds). As a result, new applicants for assistance have to wait weeks before their cases are considered. Meantime they have to subsist on private charity. The demands on private agencies have been so heavy of late that Frank R. Jelleff, president of the United Community Services, says at least seven of the Chest-financed agencies have been drained of most, or all, their funds. Consequently, he warns that "the community will be faced during the coming year with the problem of either financing more adequately the Public Welfare Department or making additional funds available through voluntary gifts for meeting relief needs."

As the heads of the Community Chest agencies well know, the sums obtained through direct solicitation are limited in amount; they supplement, but they cannot take the place of, welfare appropriations representing compulsory contributions by all District taxpayers. Since Congress has control of the public purse strings, it alone will decide whether the Public Welfare Department is to be given the funds needed to increase the present low-scale of public relief grants and take care of the growing number of relief cases. It remains for the community to put pressure on Congress to reverse the niggardly appropriation policy that is responsible for the scandalous inadequacy of local aid.

Diplomats' Cars

Among the minor annoyances of Washington traffic is the manner in which certain members of the Diplomatic Corps violate the law. It is commonplace to see automobiles with diplomatic license tags parked in no-parking zones, speeding or otherwise flouting regulations. Not only do these practices complicate the traffic problem; they also create unnecessary enmity toward foreign visitors in the minds of other drivers who try to obey the law. Undoubtedly some of the violations are the result of ignorance, but others reflect an unwholesome effort to exploit a sort of special privilege. Unfortunately, police are hamstrung; they can only report violations to the State Department.

Bill Gold, in his "District Line" column today, repeats some sensible suggestions advanced by top members of the Diplomatic Corps who are concerned over the bad feeling such incidents create. One is for private citizens who observe violations to report them to the State Department. Another is for the fixing of an arbitrary limit on the number of tickets a foreign representative may acquire without being declared persona non grata. The latter approach seems to us the more practicable. Through cooperation between the Police Department, the State Department and the embassies, it should also be possible to work out a program whereby diplomats would be instructed in what the law permits. Diplomats ought to be models of good conduct, and there is no reason why they should enjoy immunity with respect to traffic regulations. At the same time the State Department ought to make sure that American representatives abroad observe the same amenities expected of guests here.

Cardozo Transfer

We strenuously protest the proposal of the Board of Education to transfer 500 girls from Cardozo High School to the Park View Elementary School which has no facilities for high school students. This make-shift action does not answer the seriously overcrowded condition which prevails at Cardozo.

Our people are highly provoked by this timid approach at a solution to an inadequate situation which is due, in no small part to our segregated system of schools in the District of Columbia. This ever-growing strain upon our purse and disposition is complete disproof of the "separate but equal" theory.

Our children are quitting school by the score, as soon as they reach the permissible age; thus, raising the ugly specter of juvenile delinquency in our midst. If such a specter becomes a reality, we are certain the blame will fall upon the Negro citizenry of this community. It is our desire to avoid such an eventuality.

The most potent objection for not releasing Central for Cardozo students is one of sentiment by Central Alumni Association. This position is no compliment to the reasoning or common sense of the proponents. The fact is the present Cardozo was the former white Business High. The first Central was the old red brick school at 7th and O sts. now occupied by Negro students. Further, the present Central is in a Negro neighborhood almost completely surrounded by Negro residents.

Again, such transfer will deprive not one white child of any educational advantage; because, they have 3500 vacant pupil stationed in the eight white high schools while the Negro schools are 1000 short, due to overcrowding. We are only asking the temporary use of Central until the new Cardozo is built.

We therefore call upon the Board of Education to render a decision which comports with sound reasoning in the light of the circumstances, and transfer Cardozo students to Central immediately.

Park View is in a rapidly growing Negro area. According to a survey made by the Pleasant Plains Civic Association, there will be 300 more elementary pupils at Park View next year than there are now. At best the transfer of Cardozo students to Park View could mean but one thing—easing the pressure at the former school and placing it on the latter. M. A. HILL.

Moral Rearmament

Under the guise of urbane and civilized "brotherly love," the group called Moral Rearmament "quietly" dupes the afraid, the provincial, the naive, the blind. It "quietly" tells them it is in the "know" as to who is or is not a Communist; it has so many members with "firsthand" reports that it is difficult to count them.

This group will appeal to the person who is tired of his church but lacks the courage to denounce it; to the superficially tolerant and intelligent, for it allows membership to any creed (and what fledgling organization would not?) and allows "freedom" of conscience. Paradoxically, this group will appeal to the class conscious—it is forever chanting its impressive array of wealthy, "cultured" and "intellectual" members.

It will particularly appeal to the superpatriot who calls anyone a Communist who doubts Chiang's virtues; or who calls a person defending the Negro an anti-American; or who would like to devote all his spare time "trailing" a malcontent or an atheist to prove his communistic tendencies. Since this group labels even the slightest opposition communistic, it should be quite appealing to one with similar convictions.

That Moral Rearmament is "quietly" against sex, whisky and make-up is refreshingly humorous; that it is "quietly" engaged in one of the most sheeplike anticommunist witch hunts in the country is hypocritically dangerous, bordering on the fantastic. R. E. R.

Half-Century

Dr. Gallup should take a poll to see how many persons think along with him that "in three weeks half of the twentieth century will be over." Washington Post, December 11).

If Dr. Gallup were to stop and consider, he would realize the twentieth century began January 1, 1901, and half of it will not have passed until December 31, 1950. In other words, you haven't counted from 1 to 50 until you finished saying 50. JAMES A. DONOVAN, JR.

War Amnesty

Your editorial of December 8 on Ezra Pound suggesting a policy of general amnesty and oblivion in war crimes cases is marked with the imaginativeness and generosity which is a crying need of our time.

The confusions in the Yamashita case, the Pound case, the Malmedy case, and in the cases of the conscientious objectors, all by-products of the martial intolerance of the 1940s, should be wiped off the slate. The climate of public opinion is changing. More and more thinking people doubt the wisdom of the procedures and sentences.

Is it too early to suggest that we consider the late war as a civil war in which we were separated from our world compatriots by issues which, while still vital, are no longer fatal? Is it too early for us to emulate with respect to World War II the attitude of many Americans who, with regard to the Civil War, honor equally the Union and Confederate dead?

That is the direction in which we must move. We must not go on keeping hostages and hanging them, or else we will establish an endless cycle of hate between ourselves and other countries.

Some guilty ones may go free in an amnesty, it is true. That is one of the penalties of our boldness. But just as some innocent were killed during the war in an attempt to destroy military power, so some guilty must go free now or we will not be able to free all the innocent and restore a potential for peace.

Associate Secretary, National Council for Prevention of War.

"Underseas Oil"

During the past year we have have had a number of editorials and news items about the ownership of the oil in the land underlying the waters adjacent to the coasts of Texas and of Louisiana, the so-called "tidelands," from some of which one might get the impression that the Texas-Louisiana case, now before the Supreme Court of the United States, is similar to the California case of 1947. The court then ruled that "California had no title to the marginal sea off the coast of that State and that the Government of the United States is possessed of paramount rights in and powers over the lands, minerals and other things of value' underlying the area."

The above is from your December 10 editorial, "Underseas Oil." California was carved out of the great Western region which the United States obtained in 1948 from Mexico by treaty and purchase. Thus, when California was admitted into the Union in 1850, it was formed of lands which for several years had been Federal lands and which the Federal Government claims did not include the "tidelands" adjacent to the coast. This is the claim upheld by the Supreme Court in 1947.

Your editorial continues: "It was a reasonable assumption from this ruling, although ignored by Texas and Louisiana, that Federal paramountcy extended similarly to the area off their shores."

There are certain facts relating to the case for Texas which deny that it is a reasonable assumption. Your editorial gives a slight clue in the sentence: "Texas, at least, can argue that hers is a special case because she entered the Union by compact when she was an independent and sovereign republic."

A joint resolution was formally adopted by convention in Texas on July 4, 1845, and the constitution of the new State was adopted by the Congress of the United States and approved by President Polk on December 29, 1845.

The significant phrase in the joint resolution, insofar as this present note is concerned, is: ". . . and shall also retain all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits, . . ." The important question is: What are those limits?

This question is easily answered by an official publication of the U. S. Department of the Interior. In the Geological Survey Bulletin No. 817, "Boundaries, Areas, Geographic Centers, and Altitudes of the United States and the Several States, one may read the following: "The area which Texas brought into the Union was limited as follows, as defined by the Republic of Texas, December 19, 1836 (Laws of the Republic of Texas, Vol. 1, p. 133, Houston, 1838): 'Beginning at the mouth of the Sabine River and running west along the Gulf of Mexico three leagues from land to the mouth of the Rio Grande, thence up the principal stream of said river to its source, etc.'"

Thus we see that the Republic of Texas included within its limits that part of the Gulf of Mexico lying between the shore line of the Gulf and a line in the Gulf three leagues distant from that shore line, and extending from the Sabine River to the Rio Grande. This is part of the vacant and unappropriated lands which previous to its admission Texas might willingly have surrendered to the United States under stated conditions, but which in the actual entry into the Union it was required to retain, along with its debts. This is the so-called "tidelands" to which the Federal Government now lays claim.

Johnson As A Candidate

By Marquis Childs

Unpopular Job

THE CITIZENS Committee for the Hoover Report to reorganize Government has given its first citation for economy to Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. This honor will undoubtedly spur the Secretary to even greater zeal in his battle with the vast and sprawling department he is trying to bring under control.

According to latest count, 116,000 civilian employes have been discharged and the purge is still going on. Johnson has said that not merely a billion dollars but perhaps as much as two billions can be saved.

This is heroic stuff. And it is merely one phase of the struggle to shape the defenses of the United States to a managable size; a balance that will give the country a modern defense at a cost within the scope of the American economy.

Both Johnson's friends and his enemies, and particularly the latter, who are numerous and articulate, suggest from time to time that in his conspicuous role he is readying himself for a campaign for the Presidency in 1952. There are even hints that he is following a calculated plan to build himself for the next and biggest leap of ambition.

But this implies that Johnson knows far less about politics than he obviously does. It would be hard to imagine an office less likely to advance an ambitious man on the presidential path than that of Secretary of Defense in the present stage of unification or the lack of it.

SELDOM has anyone in public life alienated so many large and vociferous groups so quickly as has Johnson in less than a year in the Pentagon. Take the Navy and the Marine Corps alone. Here are great traditional and sentimental sources of grief and rage with millions of adherents above and beyond the men on active duty and their families.

Economy of itself is not popular. It is the kind of virtue that must be its own reward.

In his assault on waste and duplication, Johnson has not always been the soul of tact. In fact, that is probably the understatement of the year.

He has aroused suspicion and opposition where none existed before. This is said to be true even at the White House, where the cooling off has been noticeable and especially, according to those who should know, on the part of the President himself.

If Secretary Johnson did harbor any hope that his headline-making job would advance his ambition, he must now feel a certain sad disillusion. A biting skit in the recent Gridiron dinner depicted him as quite willing to be nominated. "A wonderful guy" so long as everybody agreed with the great unifier.

NOT LONG AGO a number of high officials in Washington received telegrams from New York inviting them to sit at the head table at a "gold medal award dinner" to be tendered Johnson on December 14 at the Waldorf-Astoria. The organization conferring the gold medal was Inter-Faith in Action.

The response was depressingly slight as official after official discovered urgent reasons why he could not leave Washington that evening. A little later the Gold Medal Award Dinner was indefinitely postponed.

In his own party, Johnson has intense competition for '52 from potential candidates who do not by the onerous nature of their duties have to take such a public bruising. One evidence of the confidence of the Democrats is this yeasty pushing up on candidates so early in the game. You can hardly turn over a rock in the political rock garden without uncovering at least one or more eager aspirants.

Johnson's approach has more nearly a Republican than a Democratic appeal. Economy and efficiency are words that evoke Herbert Hoover rather than Roosevelt or Truman. They have an odd sound in the party of Jefferson and Jackson.

Perhaps, by the kind of skillful manipulation that politicians and their henchmen have employed in the past, Johnson might succeed in getting the Democratic nomination. But it is hard to visualize him as the popular leader of a party that must rely on mass support at the grass-root level. You may deplore this as a sad manifestation of the waywardness of our political life. But there it is.

Starving Shallmar

In your December 13 issue I came across a heartrending article entitled, "Food Rushed to Starving Shallmar, Md." A coal mine, the town's only industry, has been closed since last March.

I think the horrible implications of this tragedy can be well realized and understood by most of your intelligent readers. For that reason, I wonder if through the medium of your paper an appeal could be made to a national or local welfare agency on behalf of these unfortunate people.

A situation such as this one in Shallmar is detrimental both to the local and national morale and much worse to these poor victims of circumstances.

Jewish Nationalism As A False Goal

By Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron

Dr. Lazaron is rabbi emeritus of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation and his home is in Pikesville, Md. His remarks here are excerpted from an address before the meeting of the American Council for Judaism in San Francisco on December 13

THOSE of us who did not favor the establishment of the Zionist state will certainly do nothing to hinder it. We rejoice that the camps have been emptied and the hapless refugees have found haven in Israel. We admire the devotion and sacrifice of the pioneers the past and present and earnestly hope that what they have builded there will be enduring. No one with any spark of feeling would put any stumbling block in the way of the forlorn, the tragic and disinherited who want to make a new life in Israel.

But so long as Jewish philanthropy is tied to Israeli politics, so long as Jewish generosity is the servant of Jewish nationalism, we cannot in all conscience associate ourselves with the nationalist philosophy we reject, the nationalist program we fear and the nationalist methods which are autocratic, often vicious and un-American.

I reject this nationalist philosphy alien to the Jewish mind until recently, born out of the despair of persecution and out of the maelstrom of Balkan and European politics. The nationalist position is a "death fixation"—an abnormality—even though it can be understood and explained by the tragedies of Jewish life. What happens to an individual when his mind is constantly harrassed by fear of death? The normal mind lives without fear of death. It is the sick mind which broods upon the fear of not surviving.

I DO NOT believe that the Jew is unable to live a normal life outside Palestine. The Jewish centers which produced the greatest contributions to our literature, other than the Bible, were outside Palestine. I do not believe that anti-Semitism is an incurable disease. These latter years have shown great advance in understanding, sympathy and cooperation between Jew and Gentile, the nightmare of the Nazi madmen to the contrary notwithstanding. Anti-Semitism is a burden on the Christian conscience. This is reflected in the utterances and conduct of Christian leadership. Let the Jewish nationalists consult not the politicians whom they cajole or threaten, but friendly and understanding non-Jews who are deeply concerned with the increase of anti-Jewish feeling brought about by Jewish nationalist activity.

Jewish nationalism holds no hope for the liberal and democratic forces in the world. It despairs of the future of the Jew outside Palestine. It is a confession of weakness in Judaism itself.

American Jewry has been unwilling to face squarely the implications of the program of the Jewish nationalists. They have become so emotionally involved in the problem of helping their brother Jews abroad that they have not seen what the nationalists are preparing to do to them and their children here at home.

NATIONALIST educators start out with the proposition that it is impossible for the Jewish child to live a normal Jewish life in the non-Jewish American environment. But what is a normal Jewish life? Is it to fill the child with an ever-present consciousness of being different from his fellow-Americans, with an unhappy belief that he will always feel the stings of anti-Semitism, that there is nothing he can do about it but flee it or to fight it? Is it to feed his pride with nationalist values by way of compensation?

This is being done in hundreds of Sunday schools and in youth groups in all parts of the country. Under the stimulus of nationalism, the movement for Jewish parochial schools is growing. No organization dealing from the taint of nationalist propaganda.
with our Jewish youth is free

Nationalists have infiltrated into positions of responsibility and leadership so that many textbooks use in the liberal congregations are designed secretly or openly to emphasize the nationalist philosophy, to glorify Israel, to play on whatever feelings of insecurity our youth may have, to mold their tender minds to the Zionist pattern. Folk songs and dances vie with the religious musical responses; the flag of Israel often stands with the Stars and Stripes in the assembly halls and sometimes on the altars. Hundreds of Jewish youth are now being trained in Israel to be sent forth to the Jewish communities of the world, particularly to the United States, to indoctrinate, propagandize, evoke emotional responses and develop psychological ties to Israel among American Jewish youth.

DARE American Jews be neutral in this situation and at this time when the most earnest educators are searching for methods and techniques to develop sympathy and understanding among groups in our country; when our best minds are engaged in an intensive effort at a crucial period in history to weld together the various colors, creeds and cultures in our America and create unity and brotherhood among us? Nationalist influences must be counteracted in our religious schools and youth groups.

There is disinclination in some Jewish quarters to discuss this question openly, because, it is said, to discuss it will create anti-Semitism and give ammunition to the Jew-hater. I reply: It is false to assume that our fellow Americans are not familiar with what is going on. Gentile and Christian resentment of Jewish nationalist philosophy, program and methods is growing stronger.

It is better for a Jew to talk about them and show concern about them, than by silence to condone them. It is better that a Jew openly condemn them than that Gentiles whisper about them. What is wrong in letting friendly non-Jews know that many Jews are troubled and that we need their help? There are unworthy aspects in the life of all groups here. Concealment and secrecy are not the normal, American way.

To be silent to pretend that these abuses do not exist and that our fellow Americans are not acquainted with them is to play the ostrich. To blame Jewish organizations which have the courage to discuss them openly and frankly is gratuitous. To blame such organizations and at the same time to continue to cooperate with the nationalists in the forlorn hope to curb their extremism is pathetic self-delusion.

JEWISH nationalism and its influence are not in the Jewish tradition. They are not in the American tradition. It is a new role for the Jew, who has ever been concerned with the good of humanity and contributed to the enrichment of science, art literature and social gain wherever he lived, to be suddenly preoccupied with his own survival. It is unthinkable that he should not realize that the survival of any group in the world depends upon the survival of freedom and democracy in every corner of the world; and that unless all citizens of all nations unite to secure these blessings for all they will be safe for none.

Nationalism will not save the Jews here or in Palestine; Judaism will save the Jew in Palestine and everywhere else. My own conviction is that Jews today must stand firm in their devotion to the idea of a religious community, consecrated by its heritage of a literature, an historic experience and a deathless hope not for itself alone but for all mankind.

Robeson and Associates Bring $2,000,000 Suit

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Suit for two million dollars damages was filed in Federal Court today by Paul Robeson, Negro baritone, and 27 others as a result of a riot near Peekskill, N. Y., last August 27.

The action was directed against two Westchester County veterans organizations, the superintendent of the New York State police, the Westchester County district attorney and 12 others.

Robeson asked for $10,000 for deprivation of civil rights.

Gervasi Revisits Berlin 11 Years After Hitler

Gervasi

How do the ghost streets of Berlin seem to a reporter who last saw them in Hitler's heyday? More important, how does he find the German people living, and what occupies their minds?

Frank Gervasi, Post correspondent, graphically answers those questions Sunday in another report from Europe. Be sure to read his vivid word-picture of the German capital.

Santa Now 'Sugar Daddy'

hem. Our Santa has become a rival of the Holy Child, often enough to the complete exclusion of the latter from any place in the minds of children who learn about the reindeer but have never heard of the ox and the ass.

Santa the Saint has been lost in Santa the Sugar Daddy. Children are to be good or they won't get paid with presents—a fine specimen of thoroughly un-Christian morality. And what a swell build-up for an awful letdown when the omnipotent old gent doesn't come across, which is often the case when the rich imagination of childhood reaches beyond the pocketbooks or credit ratings of parents in moderate circumstances.

Over all, this Santa usurper of the minds and hearts and imaginations of children brings to the age of innocence as many heartaches as he does joys. And heartaches as well to fathers and mothers who cannot afford the luxury that he displays so lavishly in the windows of every shop and department store and holiday advertisement.

True, it is increasingly difficult to maintain the fiction of a single Santa, what with identically whiskered old fellows kettling coppers on every corner and cuddling kiddies in every commercial toyland. A slip of the tongue, an untimely order delivery, a skeptical or precocious school chum, a Christmas disappointment, and the seed of disillusion is sown, the fall of the fable begun.

Unfortunately, there is no telling just where this initial disruption of a dream may end. When the fact of parental deception strikes the impressionable mind, it is likely to extend to parental authority as a whole or at least to cast a shadow of doubt upon the integrity of those who have practiced a deception that sometimes leaves a deep and lingering disappointment.

Where Christian fact and commercialized fable are woven together, the rejection of one may often lead to the but half-hearted retention of the other. Elders may try to make the distinction; juniors may not accept them as too creditable in the light of previous performance. The whole Santa idea is bad psychology and bad pedagogy.

It is even worse theology, and all the worse for being entirely unnecessary. For it is untrue that our blessings come from a jolly old toymaker at the North Pole; but completely true that they do come from the birth of a Savior who is Christ the Lord. The Catholic story of the Christ child is truth and can grow with children in understanding and realization.

Santa is a myth; and not half as sensible a myth as Jupiter, Baal, Mr. Elwood P. Dowd's Harvey or Barnaby's fairy godfather. To quote two authorities* on the subject: "Father Christmas, Santa Claus, or Sankt Klaus, is the Victorian nursery substitute for the Christ child taken over from the Dutch Calvinists of New Amsterdam, fabulous, in this incarnation, as the griffin." And the same goes for Grandfather Frost, Kriskringle (no recognizable relation to the Krist kinde), Bellsnickel, Pelznickel, as well as for Uncle Holly, this year's fashionable London version of the holiday Lady Bountiful.

It may be hard on those who like to play the part of a benevolent old pixie to forgo the pleasure of donning whiskers and oversize red flannels. We have often suspected that Santa was a source of more pleasure to the grown-ups than to the children. It may be impossible to break up the custom once it has begun in a growing family.

But it doesn't have to start in families that are new. And it can be discarded in those where the tots are in their teens. The unholy fraud can be replaced with incalcuable profit by the Holy Infant. You can start with the truth and teach your children from the first what Christmas really is and what it really means. That kind of Christmas will never bring disillusionment, doubt, the loss of faith in the beautiful thing that makes Christmas an unforgettable symbol of love and sacrifice.

Leave Santa to those who have nothing better. Leave him to those for whom life must end in disillusion and despair. For Christians, Christmas without Christ is a blasphemy, the Nativity with the Child forgotten in the stable an infinite irreverence. It is high time our Christmas parties and plays got away from the modern and highly materialistic Christmas spirit and got back to the original and grace-giving spirit of Christ.

Pope Authorizes Worldwide Masses New Year's Eve

Rome, Dec. 15 (NYHT).—Pope Pius XII granted permission to the Roman Catholic bishops of the world today to hold midnight masses on New Year's Eve this year as well as at Christmas. A Vatican aide said that the worldwide midnight masses at New Year's will be the first ever held at that time.

The purpose of the masses will be to implore divine blessings for the Catholics of the world at the dawn of the 1950 Holy Year and to ask divine assistance in spreading "true sorrow for sin, a reform of lives and an increase of Christian virtue and sanctity." Benedetto Cardinal Aloysi Masella, acting head of the Vatican's sacred congregation for the sacrament, announced it in a formal decree in Latin. The purposes listed for the masses are the same as those for the Holy Year itself.

Hearing Resumes Today On Telephone Rate

The hearing before the District Public Utilities Commission on increases in local telephone rate will resume today at 9:30 a. m. in Room 203 of the District Building.

V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant and auditor for the PUC, is scheduled to be cross-examined by attorneys for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. McElfresh had recommended an average 8:75 percent rate increase, as opposed to 13 percent sought by the company.

Is Money Worth It?

A GREAT many people, on a great many different occasions, have predicted the transformation or demise of the Republican Party. These correspondents will not join the ranks of the self-assured prophets. But it must be said that the 1950 congressional session and ensuing elections are likely to cure the Republicans of their galloping schizophrenia one way or the other.

The currently dominant half of the Republican split personality was given a fine run in the yard at the meeting of the party strategy committee in Chicago this week. This was another stage in the preparation for the great Republican statement of principles, with which the Nation is shortly to be favored. The meeting rang with outcries against "me-too" Republicans. But the most significant statement emanated from the Hon. Fred Virkus, an Illinois Republican strategist:

"You need money, money and more money to get the organization rolling again," said Virkus. "But you are not going to get the money until you can answer the question: 'What does the Republican Party stand for?' in a way that everybody can understand."

FOR "EVERYBODY," you may read Col. Robert R. McCormick and other like-minded Republican contributors. Having made this simple substitution, you can then forecast that the statement of Republican principles will be the most backward-looking yet promulgated.

The simple truth is that the Republican fat cats have gone on strike, refusing to open checkbooks until their party starts making the kind of noise they want to hear. And since the present Republican leadership cannot imagine doing business without the fat cats, they are preparing to make this kind of noise, without worrying very much whether it is also the kind of noise the voters want to hear. The Honorable Virkus has publicly admitted the party predicament, which had already been reported in this space.

This extraordinary situation, in which a few extreme right-wing businessmen are holding up a national political party at the point of their checkbooks, is bound to affect other things much more important than the Republican statement of principles.

To be specific, an actual majority of the men who form the backbone of the right-wing Republican group in the Senate are up for reelection next November. Capehart of Indiana, Donnell of Missouri, Hickenlooper of Iowa, Millikin of Colorado, Taft of Ohio, Wiley of Wisconsin, and Young of North Dakota—the roll call speaks for itself.

WITH THE sole exception of Senator Taft (and perhaps Senator Young) all these men are known to be facing difficult contests. If a large number of them should be defeated, the right-wing control of the congressional Republican Party will be broken at last, even if Senator Taft wins his Ohio fight.

The Democratic national and local organizations have never been better heeled or more full of confidence. Democratic strategists confidently expect to replace many of these right-wing Republicans with Fair Deal Democrats. They hope, furthermore, to knock off some of the more conservative Democrats who are also running to succeed themselves. If this is, indeed, the outcome of the election, the whole character of the Congress will be radically changed for the first time since 1938.

What makes the Chicago doings so particularly significant is the influence the embattled large contributors are likely to have, both on the behavior of the Republican Party in the oncoming congressional session, and on the conduct of their campaigns by the Republicans now up for reelection. With no exception whatever, all the Republicans listed are highly responsive to the opinions of the check-writers. Even Senator Taft, a major figure in his own right, not long ago changed his position on the invocation of the Taft-Hartley Act in the steel and coal strikes, in deference to the views of his business supporters.

ON THE domestic side, therefore, it can be foreseen that the highly conservative welfare program put forward by Senator Taft may well be lost sight of in the rush of Republicans trying to prove they have no "me-too' taint. And on the side of foreign policy, it can be pretty confidently predicted that the Republicans will give a display of out-and-out isolationism without precedent since the end of the war. Since the conservative Democrats are also growing isolationist, while the Truman Administration has chosen this juncture to go on the defensive about foreign policy, real disasters may ensue.

In the end, however, the decision will rest with the voters. There is no use attempting to forecast the results at this time. But it is at least possible to outline the probable effect on the Republican Party of the different kinds of results that the election can show.

On the one hand, if the right-wing Republican leaders now running for reelection are swept back into office, the party will be permanently committed to an extreme right-wing isolationist course. On the other hand, if a great number of these men are beaten, the enduring right-wing control of the Republican Party will be broken at last. The party itself may well be too shattered to make a serious comeback in 1952. But the way will be opened for the reconstruction of the party in the image of that minority of Republican leaders, like Ives of New York, Lodge of Massachusetts and Morse of Oregon, who care more about winning elections than keeping the fat cats happy.

Original Bill of Rights Goes On View at National Archives

The 158th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights was celebrated here yesterday with display of the original Bill of Rights at the National Archives.

The famous bill became effective December 15, 1791, when it was approved by Virginia, the tenth of the States to ratify it.

The Bill of Righs will be on display at the Archives from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on weekdays and from 1:30 to 5 p. m. Sundays.

Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, author of the the bill, is now a public shrine. The hall is in Fairfax County, and was built about 1755. It was restored in this century by Louis A. Hertle, retired Chicago merchant, who bought the house and grounds in 1912.

He deeded the property to the State of Virginia in 1932, reserving a life tenancy for himself. Upon his death last September, the property went under the management of a board of regents appointed by the Governor of Virginia on nomination of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America.

ABW Transit Heads Confer With Union Leaders Today

Representatives of the A B & W Transit Co., which has been under State operation since its union employes voted to strike five months ago, will meet with union representatives at 1 p. m. today, it was learned last night.

While union spokesmen said the meeting might lead to a wage offer in the long-standing dispute over renewal of the work contract, a company spokesman said it might involve only discussion of a change of schedules.

The union has set a membership meeting for 2 a. m. Saturday. If the company makes a new offer today, this will be reported at the union meeting, union leaders said. Otherwise, there will be a report on the general situation.

Demands of the union, Local 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL), are for a 30-cent hourly increase, a pension plan and other benefits.

The company offered the terms of the previous contract, including a $1.35 an hour maximum for bus operators and $1.45 for mechanics.

Drive on Gambling Begins to Pay Off

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—Police climaxed almost a year's drive against a numbers writing racket in Roanoke with the conviction in police court today of two men on charges of operating a lottery. The defendants also were bound over for grand jury action on charges of offering bribes to two officers of the police vice squad. Trial of 11 other men and three women on charges of aiding and abetting in the operation of the lottery were continued to January 10.

Debt Limit Relief for Montgomery to Be Asked in Assembly

The special session of the Maryland General Assembly, beginning Saturday, will be asked to end several restrictions on bonded indebtedness of Montgomery County. The proposed legislation would affect every taxpayer by freeing controls on county debt.

Anders P. Lofstrand, chairman of the Montgomery delegation, said last night the delegation will sponsor a bill or bills to do away with a number of financing complications which the County Council now faces.

The special session was called by Gov. W. Preston Lane to reenact the 50-million-dollar school-loan law passed at the last session and invalidated because of a clerk's error, by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Opinions of New York bond attorneys, without whose approval most municipal bond issues are drastically impeded, have imposed problems on the Montgomery County Council. Accordingly, the legislation to be introduced Saturday by the Montgomery delegation at the request of the council will presumably meet these problems as well as others apparently imposed by Maryland law.

The proposed legislation will, if enacted:

1. Exempt all self-liquidating bond issues in the county from the requirement that indebtedness be limited to 10 percent of assessed valuation.

2. Take out tax anticipation certificates and other short-term financing from the 10 percent limitation.

3. Assure that self-liquidating bonds of the Silver Spring parking area district, certain road bonds which are to be paid off by front-foot benefit charges, and other minor liquidating bonds, be excluded from the 10 percent computation of the county debt.

4. Counteract a bond attorney ruling that a county-wide referendum, listed as voluntary under the Charter law, is actually mandatory. This, county officials said, would save $14,000 for each election and approve sentiment already expressed in the county.

5. Insure that Washington Suburban Sanitary District indebtedness incurred in Montgomery County will never be charged against the county as far as debt limitation is concerned.

The enforced referendum situation has been raised informally by the all-powerful bond attorneys in connection with several issues. It is expected to be raised when the county borrows from the anticipated 50-million-dollar fund.

Lofstrand said the Montgomery delegation will meet at 8 p. m., today in his Silver Spring office to agree formally on the proposed legislation. He said members have already agreed informally on it by telephone.

Lofstrand, a member of the Legislative Interim Council, said he has been assured that the measure or measures will be considered at the special session. He said he has been promised they will not receive the "ash-can" treatment proposed by assembly rules committees for other legislation than 50-million-dollar school loan bill.

D. C. Heads Agree to Open Traffic School to Volunteers

The District Commissioners agreed to open the District Traffic School to volunteers, as far as space permits.

This had been suggested by Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller December 6 when the Commissioners extended the school through next year, but had been sent to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, for his recommendation.

Barrett indorsed this recommendation and another by Miller that would authorize the school to accept students from the Police Juvenile Bureau. This agency covers traffic violators under 18 years of age.

The Commissioners did not act on the latter recommendation, however, because while the action was requested in the body of Barrett's report, it had inadvertently been omitted from his formal recommendation.

The school gives instruction twice a week at Municipal Center to persons who have lost their licenses, failed to pass drivers' tests or are taken to court on traffic charges. Miller had suggested such persons might want to bring wives or friends along for instruction on traffic safety and regulations.

He said 5 or 10 volunteers could usually be accommodated at each class. Such persons wishing to attend should contact his office in advance, Miller said. They must be residents of the District.

New York Braces Itself For Dry Day

New York, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—The big city braced itself jovially today for "bathless-shaveless" Friday—the first in its history but probably not the last.

City Commissioner Stephen J. Carney said the Water Department was set to measure exactly just how much water can be saved in the 24 hours, beginning at midnight tonight, when eight million New Yorkers will be on their honor not to take a bath, the men not to shave and everyone pledged to use water for "emergency" purposes only.

Barber colleges prepared to close their doors, television networks said male performers probably would look black-and-blue, a traffic judge promised to lighten fines of the first 10 offenders sporting beards, "South Pacific" star Mary Martin got set to wash-that-man-right-out-of-her-hair with club soda, and public schools said 500,000 children soon would be going home from gymnasium classes smelling like anything but a rose.

The town was getting set for "bathless Friday" with a grin, but no one questioned the seriousness of the shortage. New York's reservoirs had dropped to a third of capacity because of a prolonged dry spell and ever-increasing consumption of water.

"This is a very urgent request for a sincere and fair effort on the part of the public to see just how much they can cut down consumption," Carney said.

"If the public can show us they can cut down consumption we will feel justified in postponing some very definite restrictive measures now under consideration."

NCHA Studies Service Sites For Churches

National Capital Housing Authority yesterday took under consideration a request by the Washington Federation of Churches for denominational religious services at Government housing projects.

The federation, which now arranges for non-denominational services at the Government-owned properties, had asked for permission to arrange the denominational services at the projects when requested by the tenants.

The Rev. John Halko, director of the department of research and church planning of the federation, said the church body felt that in some cases it could better serve residents of the projects if denominational services were permitted.

Services on premises of the projects, he said, are often preliminary steps in establishment of permanent churches.

School Loans For $155,000 Are Approved

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—The State Board of Education today released approved loans for school construction from the Literary Fund amounting to $155,000 and okayed new applications totaling $2,508,500, subject to the money being available.

Requests for release of funds on loans already approved included:

Clarke County, Berryville Elementary School, $50,000; Gloucester County, training school, $80,000, and Isle of Wight, Smithfield agricultural building, $25,000.

Among the literary loans approved for release when the money becomes available, was an application by Prince William County for $777,500, broken down as follows:

Gar-Field High, $471,000; Osbourn High, $710,000; Manassas Regional, $210,000; Dumfries Elementary, $83,500; Bonnett Elementary, $50,000; Occoquan Elementary, $38,000; Woodbine Elementary, $6300; Bethel Elementary, $6300; Gainesville District Elementary, $7400; Brentsville District School, $195,000.

Marlboro Group To Light Yule Tree Tonight

The Christmas tree lighting ceremony at the Coral Hills shopping center on the Marlboro pike in Prince Georges County, Md., will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. A 30-foot tree will be lighted.

The ceremony, sponsored by local youth groups, will include carol singing by the Lyndon Hill Junior High School and the Maryland Park Senior High School. Invocations will be given by a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest.

A special children's show at the Coral Hills Theater will precede the ceremony at 6 p. m. Tickets will be 15 cents.

County Boys Clubs Warn Against Solicitors

Warning that reported attempts to collect money for the "Boys Club Christmas Fund" are not sponsored by the Prince Georges County Boys Clubs was given yesterday by C. Gerard Buscher of Berwyn, vice president.

Complaints that such collections have been made have been received by the club. The Boys Clubs are members of the Community Chest and do not make separate drives, Buscher said.

Prince Georges Elks Plan Tree Lighting

Waverly W. Webb, clerk of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, and Mayor Andrew Gasch of Bladensburg, Md., will speak at the Christmas tree lighting of the Prince Georges Elks Lodge 1778 at 8 p. m December 21

The tree will be placed on the porch of the Elks' home in the 4400 block of Bladensburg rd.

IRVIN'S, at 711 G st. nw., is run by an old-time Washington restaurateur who is convinced that people will always go for three things: barbecued spare ribs, fried chicken and fried shrimp. Eaten with the fingers—"the handy way."

After trying the spare ribs, I agree with him. They're lean and crisp; topped with barbecue sauce, they're delicious.

Irvin's doesn't serve a lot of things, because they make every dish a "special." Says Mrs. Irvin, about their chicken: "We treat it just as a housewife would. We spend more time preparing it before the pan than after."

The chef's salad is fresh, crisp and different, the rum pie mouth-watering, the coffee strong and pungent.

There's reason for the coffee's excellence. Both Mr. and Mrs. Irvin are coffee fiends—every time they sit down someone brings them a cup. The pie, also, benefits from their own bakery on the second floor, and all the prices are pleasing.

MIRKO, the guitarist at the Old New Orleans, is quite a personality. Impulsive and unquenchable, he devotes the same energy to friends and patrons that he does to a guitar.

Musically, he makes the instrument do things no one else would dream of—even uses it as a percussion instrument. And he approaches it with all the motions of a dancer. He can produce a twanging melody, or concentrate on rhythms and harmonies that seem to delight his heart. There's one Oriental piece Bob Simpson's band plays with Mirko that will change your concept of guitarists; ask him to play it when you go in.

NEW MUSIC was brought into the Hamilton Hotel's Rainbow Room, one of the nicest spots in town for drinking and dancing, this week. Jack Maggio and his orchestra will be playing there until further notice. Jack's a local boy who plays the saxophone and charinet and sings. Bruce Van Kuren, Al Reaver and Chick Howe are with him in the outfit.

IN THE ANNAPOLIS Anchor Room. Don and Terry are holding forth. They specialize in original songs, and have some fine arrangements for them. Don plays the piano, Terry sings.

Court Awards Girl to White Grandparents

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 15 (U.P.).—A State Supreme Court justice ruled today that 5-year-old Mary Elizabeth Marshall should be reared by her white grandparents rather than her part-Negro father and white mother.

In a written memorandum, Justice Alger Williams dismissed a writ of habeas corpus brought by the child's mother, Mrs. Marguerite Marshall, to regain custody of her daughter.

Mrs. Marshall claimed in her court action that her mother, Mrs. Ella Freitus, had invited Mary to her home for a visit and then refused to return the child to her parents.

The child's father, Emerson Marshall, is part Negro, part Irish and part Cherokee Indian.

2 Texans Hope To Round Up Island Goats

By John Daffron

Paramore Island, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—A couple of mounted Texans coursed the desolate thickets and sand dunes of Parramore Island today getting ready for a roundup that may be tough—even for Texans.

They're going after goats—thousands of goats—that frisk on this 10-mile fringe of Virginia in the Atlantic Ocean. They're out to round them up, pen them and ship them to Texas.

Few Virginians on the mainland—separated by 15 miles of Chesapeake Bay from the Eastern Shore—know that Parramore has a thriving goat community. But Texas ranchers Percy Roberts of San Angelo and Lewis Smithwick of San Saba got wind of it and made a deal with the owners of the island for the crop of goats.

The owners, Mrs. Jean M. Schmidlapp of Cincinnati and Dr. Carl Schmidlapp of New York, have a waterfowl hunting lodge in the old Coast Guard station—the only building—on the island. They put a few dozen goats on the island 10 or 12 years ago to clean out the undergrowth. The goats nibbled and browsed—but they also multiplied.

Distances being a minor consideration to Texans, Roberts and Smithwick dispatched Joe Whitehead and Cliff Clary 3000 miles to Virginia for the goat roundup.

How many goats they will get is a point in question. Some Eastern Shore people say not more than 2500. Others say probably 7000.

Teachers Get Hearing on Pay Program

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said yesterday he will confer with teachers who have charged he ignored their recommendations in drawing up a salary promotion program.

The teachers are the 45 members of the Salary Promotion Criteria Committee elected by a ballot of teachers more than two years ago to determine standards teachers must meet to be eligible for pay increases.

The teachers say they submitted their recommendations in April, 1948, but heard nothing from the superintendent until last June when he discussed the report with members of the committee's executive committee.

In October the superintendent presented a report to the Board of Education setting up a program. In recommending it to the board Dr. Corning said the program had approval of the criteria group. The school board adopted the Corning proposal. The teachers now say it is not their program and have indicated that they will appeal to the Board of Education unless the plan is modified.

Dr. Corning said the program he submitted to the board was "basically in line" with that drawn up by the teachers but was "much more simple."

He said he has asked the teacher's committee to meet with him Monday at Roosevelt High School to discuss the differences of opinion.

The teachers complain the Corngrowth" than the plan they subing plan makes it more difficult for them to prove "professional mitted. The teachers are required to show professional attainment every year to qualify for raises at five-year intervals.

New G. W. Law Dean Honored At Dinner

Rear Admiral Oswald S. Colclough, USN, who last week took over his duties as dean of George Washington University Law School, was guest of honor at a dinner last night at the Metropolitan Club, 17th and H sts. nw.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the university, and Newell W. Ellison, assistant secretary of the board of trustees, were hosts for the occasion.

Among the 18 guests present were: Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson; Circuit Judge W. K. Miller; Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws; Judge James Kirkland; Judge James W. Morris; Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, judge advocate general of the Army; Rear Admiral G. L. Russell, judge advocate general of the Navy; Maj. Gen. R. C. Harmon, judge advocate general of the Air Force; and Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Prince Georges Clubs Sponsor Food for Needy

The Homemakers clubs of Prince Georges County (Md.) are sponsoring a "Mother Hubbard's Cupboard" plan to provide food baskets for needy families at Christmas time and also for the following year.

Members bring canned good to meetings of each Homemakers Club and the food is added to the Mother Hubbard's Cupboard. The food is quickly available to social service agencies when an emergency arises for a needy family, club members explained.

Some of the clubs are installing Mother Hubbard's Cupboards in local grocery stores so customers may contribute to the cause. The first of such store cupboards has been placed in the Greenbelt (Md.) Consumers Service Food Store.

Policeman Faces Trial Today Over Crime Evidence

Pvt. Francis Lear, 37, member of the Metropolitan Police force since 1938 and a plainclothesman attached to the Ninth Precinct, will appear before a Police Trial Board at 10 a. m. today on three charges.

They are: two counts of failure to deliver to the property clerk for receipt and registry certain property alleged to be proceeds of crime for which there was a lawful claimant and which was to have been used as evidence in court, and a charge of willfully and knowingly making a false statement to a superior officer.

Police officials declined to give details on the charges prior to the hearing.

Output Up 200 Percent In Examining Section After Reorganization

The Civil Service Commission is making hay in its huge examining program.

Production in its examining division has jumped up more than 200 percent in the past four months; the average time it takes to set up an eligible register after an exam has been closed has been reduced by more than 50 percent, and the time it takes to grade papers has been reduced substantially.

At the present pace, the commission's big postwar examining job will be completed and the Government, personnel-wise, will be back on a peacetime basis on or before its June 30, 1950, deadline.

Chairman Harry B. Mitchell is the driving force behind the exam speed-up program. He announced that speedier exams were his No. 1 objective when he took over the reorganized commission in August. Mitchell ordered the transfer of several score employes to the examining unit. W. A. McCoy, chief of the examining division, came up with careful plans and schedules of future tests. The results have exceeded expectations.

For example, 48,000 persons applied for the Nation-wide clerical exam that closed in November, 1948. The eligible register for it wasn't set up until seven months later.

Another clerical exam was given 59,000 applicants in September. The written test was given in November and a register of those who passed it will be set up by the middle of next month. In other words, it will take half the time to establish this register, although more than 10,000 more people will have been examined. The second clerical exam could have been cleaned up 30 days sooner if space had been available to give it.

Registers on the bacteriologist, librarian and other exams were set up within 90 days after the commission's deadline for accepting applications. The patent adviser and boiler fireman exams were both closed in November and registers for them will be set up the end of this month.

The commission has been under fire since the war's end because of its lagging exam program. It deserves an encouraging pat on the back for the real examining progress it has made in the past four months.

NLRB: The term of J. Copeland Gray, a member of the National Labor Relations Board, expires today and the President is undecided over whether to reappoint him to a new term. He can't serve under the law until an appointment is made. This may be Gray's last day at the agency.

COMMERCE: It's now official, the Bureau of Standards' new radio propagation laboratory will be constructed in Boulder, Colo., as was reported here yesterday. When the building is completed, about 200 bureau employes will be asked to transfer to the Colorado city.

Congress also approved the construction of a second new bureau building—one to do research work on guided missiles. The Navy, for which much of the research will be done, has recommended the building be located near this city. However, like the radio building, the structure may be located near the middle of the country for security reasons.

DOWN: Federal employment in this country slumped 39,867 during October to 1,846,294. As expected, the major decreases were: Navy, 19,503; Army, 14,471, and Air Force, 4694. The Federal population here in the executive branch showed a net decline of 1761 for the month to a total of 211,070 as of November 1.

CENSUS: About 25 Census employes here will be transferred to Philadelphia to set up the big clerical force there to process returns from the 1950 general census. At Philadelphia will be a temporary clerical staff of at least 4000 persons.

NOTES: Dr. Myron K. Gordon, Elizabeth L. Rowan and Teresina S. Pavone have been given awards for outstanding service in Army's Surgeon General's office . . . RFC employes will play Santa Claus to 14 orphan children (ages 4, 5, and 6) Monday at 11 a. m. . . . Director A. W. Hall of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was honored by NFFE's Women's Union on his twenty-fifth anniversary as bureau chief. A resolution was adopted praising Hall for his enlightened, broad-visioned and progressive administration.

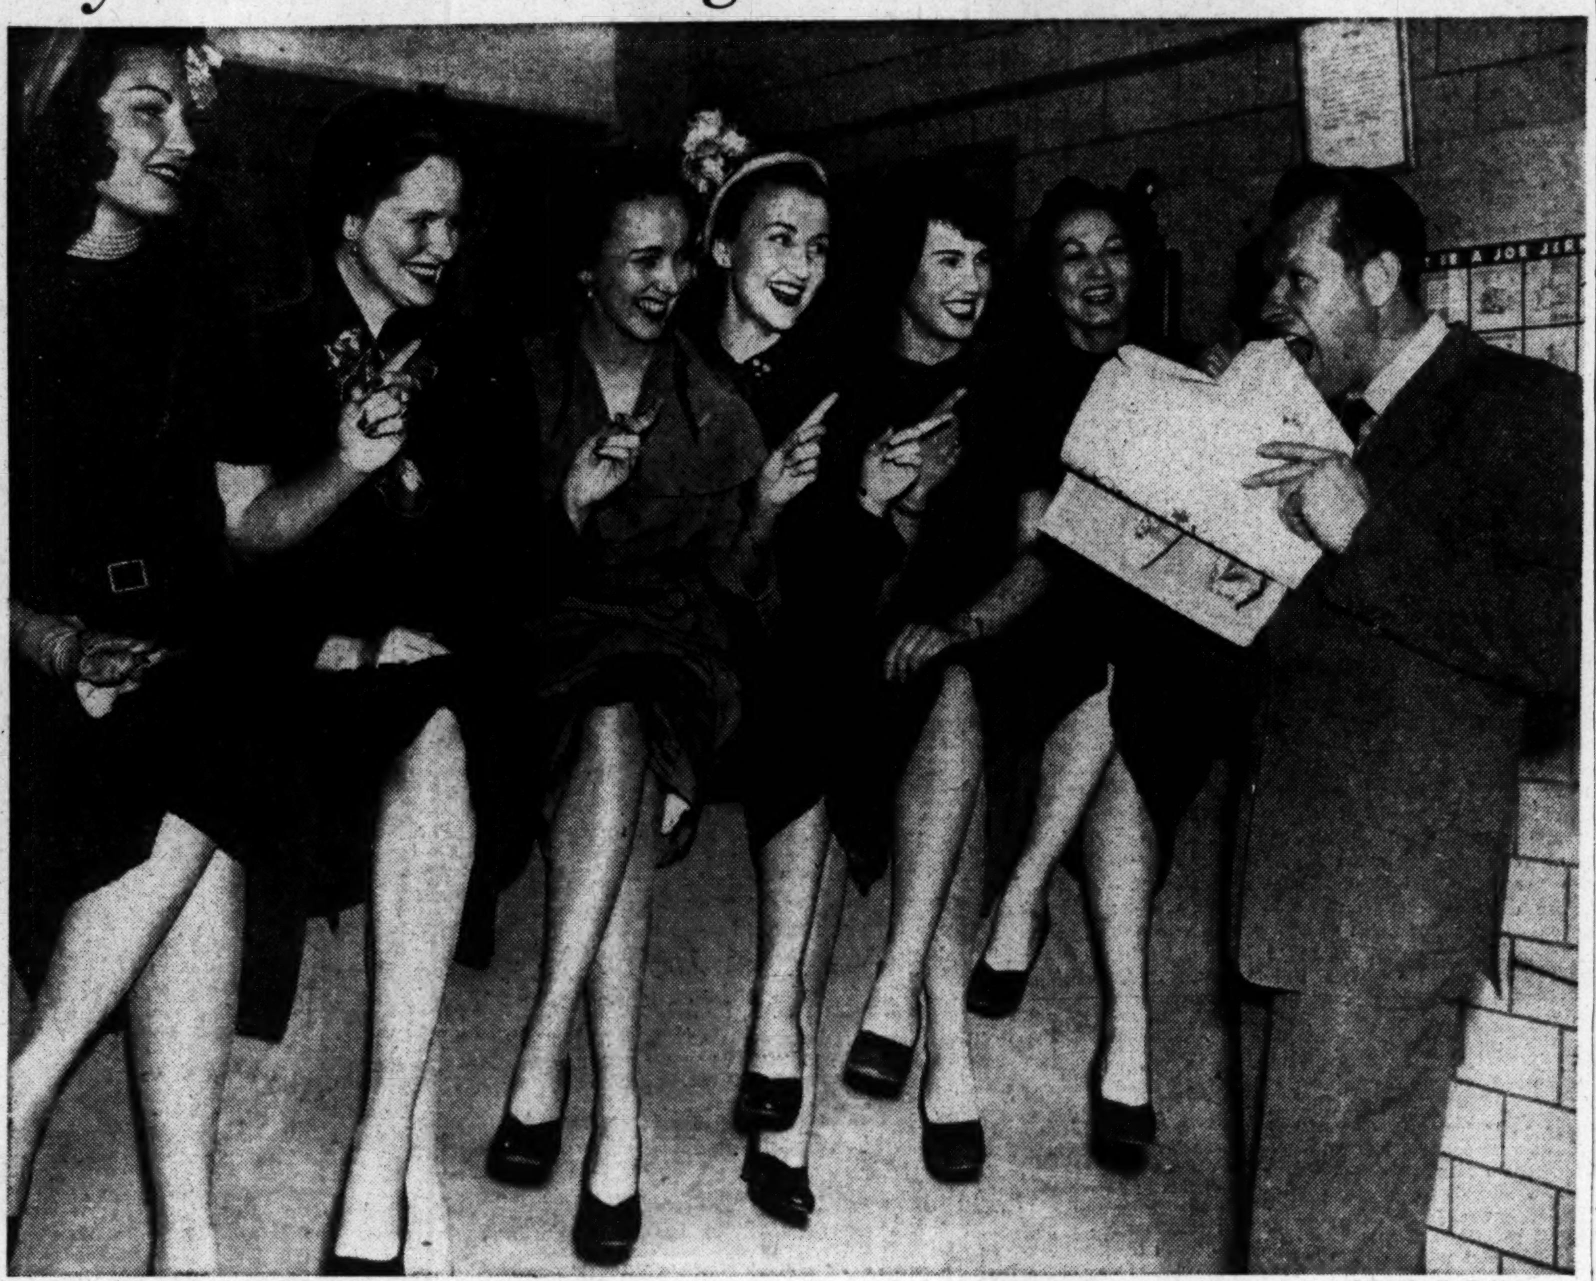
Say Beauties to Vaughn: 'Eat Those Words'



By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

PRIMA-FACIE EVIDENCE—Band Leader Vaughn Monroe, who said Hartford, Conn., has the most beautiful girls, is humbled by some flowering examples of our own. They are (from left) Mary Jane Hayes, 19, of 4127 New Hampshire ave. nw.; Kathleen Cook, 24, of 221 N. Galveston, Arlington, Va.; Ruth Leas, 21, of 21 Kennedy st. nw.; Elsie Gschwind, 24, of 2701 Connecticut ave. nw.; Angela Lombardi, 18, of 1112-A N. Stafford st., Arlington, and Fonlee Paris, 25, of 2520 L st. nw. Monroe, in the act of eating his words, declared he would keep his mouth shut hereafter about women

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Band Leader Vaughn Monroe arrived at National Airport in a private airplane yesterday and turned out to be a brave man and a humble one, too.

Monroe was the man who was quoted in the Sunday magazine of The Washington Post, Parade, as saying Hartford, Conn., has the most beautiful girls in the United States.

Meeting him at the airport was a bevy—or, to be accurate, two bevies—of beautiful Washington girls ready to tear him limb from limb, figuratively speaking. They didn't mind just meeting him, either.

Monroe took a brief, bewildered look at the 12 flowers of Washington young womanhood who surrounded him at the airport, and at their signs of protest.

Seizing a copy of Parade in which his offending remarks were published, which just happened to be lying around the Butler Flying Service office, he humbly began to eat his words.

He stopped long enough to tell a reporter:

"I'm going to keep my mouth shut the next time where women are concerned. I've learned my lesson."

That was all—nothing about being misquoted. Humble but brave.

Said blonde Miss Rosemarie Buzolits, 21, of 51 Victor st. ne., one of the professional model bevy there:

"Poor boy, he just didn't know."

"Now he does," added Miss Nina Parrish, 24, of 6113 43d ave., Hyattsville, Md., who was wearing a black and white checked fitted coat and white bonnet.

Miss Gloria Flora of 6706 Hillandale rd., Chevy Chase, Md., who was in the same bevy as Miss Buzolits and Miss Parrish—they're free lancers, currently on display at Woodward & Lothrop's—suggested waiting three days and then asking Monroe how he feels about Washington pulchritude.

From Bevy No. 2, made up of girls from the Phyllis Bell School for Models, 25-year-old Miss Fonlee Paris remarked:

"I think the pictures will speak for themselves—for the Washington girls, of course."

Even more militant was Miss Angela Lombardi, dark-haired 18-year-old student model of 1112-A N. Stafford st., Arlington, Va., who flatly declared Washington girls are the prettiest because "they're so well groomed." In her opinion, they are—if Hartford will excuse the expression—"far more advanced than in Connecticut." Miss Lombardi comes from Rhode Island.

More conciliatory was 21-year-old Miss Ruth Leas of 21 Kennedy st. nw.

"I'll leave the decision to the male population," she said.

Monroe, the CBS-WTOP radio star who started all this, disappeared during the discussion, on his way to a one-night stand with his band at Constitution Hall.

Daughter Sues Gazette Owner In Stock Claim

Alexandria Circuit Court has been asked to force the Alexandria Gazette to turn over 1200 shares of its stock to Miss Sara Perine Carlin, 21, of 1728 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, it was disclosed yesterday.

She is the daughter of Charles C. Carlin, Jr., president and publisher of the paper. She lives with her mother, Mrs. R. R. Taylor, who was the divorced wife of Carlin, since remarried.

Named Trustee in 1940

Joined with the Gazette corporation as defendant in Miss Carlin's suit is John W. Tulloch, managing editor of the paper. He was appointed trustee of the 1200 shares of stock for Miss Carlin, in 1940. Alexandria court then decided she was entitled to the stock from the will of her grandfather, Charles C. Carlin, sr., the previous president and publisher of the Gazette.

Miss Carlin's suit alleges that when she became 21, last August, she, her attorney, and Tulloch, went to Ernest O. Rammel, Gazette treasurer, and demanded her stock. The suit said Rammel refused to turn it over. The stock was previously held by the corporation as security for a $1600 loan, plus interest.

Refused Payment

The suit said she proffered a certified check in full payment of the loan, but that was refused.

Tulloch, in an answer on file yesterday, supported Miss Carlin's charges that the stock has been withheld from her. He said she has never received a cent in dividends or other benefits from it, and that he has never been paid for services as trustee. He asked $750 for those services.

No answer has been filed by the Gazette. Carlin and his attorney, J. Barton Phillips, declined yesterday to comment on the action. Phillips said an answer will be filed.

Miss Carlin's suit asked that if the stock is not returned to her, she be awarded $100,000 in place of it. She also asked unspecified damages be paid to her because of the refusal to deliver the 1200 shares. She said yesterday that she and her father are the only stockholders, and that he holds the majority, 1300 shares.

The suit is the latest in a series of litigations over affairs of the Gazette, which began in 1938 with a court dispute over the elder Carlin's will. The Gazette claims on its masthead to be the oldest daily paper in the United States. Return date on the suit in court is now set for January 3.

From Estate

Her Memory Of Name May Win $5000

The retentive memory of a Virginia woman may have won for her the $5000 estate of her father, it was disclosed in District Court yesterday.

A special master held probate court in the District Court on the estate yesterday and recommended that it be awarded to her.

The father, who had been known as Ernest Hardy, died at Soldiers Home in 1941 leaving $5000, but no will.

In 1948, Attorney A. J. Spero, as administrator, advertised in Richmond, Va., papers seeking survivors of "Ernest Hardy."

Mrs. Virginia Glaze Roberson, of near Richmond, recalled that many years ago she had seen a letter in a trunk belonging to her father, Humphrey Glaze, addressed to "Ernest Hardy."

She also remembered that an uncle had told her he had met her father in Washington in 1910 and the father had told him to call him "Ernest Hardy" for reasons which the father would not divulge.

Mrs. Roberson, who had not seen her father since 1918, employed Attorney Leon Pretzfelder, to put in a claim for her.

Through handwriting on applications, Special Master Louis Rothschild was satisfied that Hardy was actually Humphrey Glaze and ruled in favor of Mrs. Roberson's claim.

2 Liquor Store Bandits Sought in Prince Georges

Prince Georges County police yesterday were seeking two youths who robbed a Silver Hill liquor store proprietor of $50 at gunpoint shortly before midnight Wednesday.

Police said Thomas R. Brogan, 63, owner of Uncle Tom's Liquor Store at Silver Hill, reported the youths entered his store and held him up with a revolver while they ransacked the cash register. At this moment, he said, a customer entered the store and Brogan ran out the door, jumped into the customer's auto and drove to the Silver Hill fire station to call police.

The bandits started to pursue Brogan in their own auto, police said, but gave up the chase and drove off when they saw him enter the fire station.

District Police Probe Costello Girl's Death

Homicide detectives here yesterday questioned a Washington doctor who examined pretty Jean Costello, 21, at her room, 1747 F st. nw., on Thursday, five days before she died in Boston.

An autopsy indicated the Capital Airline reservationist was four months pregnant and died of blood poisoning caused by a perforated uterus. Police were investigating the possibility that her death was due to an abortion.

The local doctor said he made a "superficial examination" of the girl to whose bedside he had been directed by another doctor who said he was tied up on another case. In summoning the second doctor, the first doctor said he understood the girl was hemorrhaging and "might have a miscarriage," the second doctor said.

Given Penicillin

Friends who were present in the girl's room Thursday said the first doctor treated the girl in the morning, reportedly with vitamins and penicillin. They said the second doctor, who said he gave the girl no treatment at all, visited the girl Thursday night.

Detectives were present during the evening visit by the second doctor. They had been directed to the girl's room by her mother who phoned police from Kansas, saying she had reason to believe her daughter was in trouble.

The girl denied to police she was pregnant and said she had not been subjected to an abortion.

Friday morning the girl's mother arrived and took her to Georgetown Hospital. She was treated there for loss of blood and kidney ailment.

Flown to Boston

Saturday night she was flown by chartered plane to Boston, nearest place where artificial kidneys are available. She died late Tuesday at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston.

The Medical Examiner for the Boston area, Dr. William J. Brickley, yesterday ordered analysis of the internal organs. He will report the result to Boston Municipal Court, then send a detailed report to Washington police.

Police here meanwhile questioned those known to have been acquainted with Miss Costello to discover whom she had been dating.

The father, J. J. Costello, a postal employe, his wife and a son, Richard, yesterday afternoon left Boston by train for Herrington, Kans., with the body. The funeral will be in Herrington.

Young Suspect in Clay Murder Eludes Police in Wild Chase

Ten police cars and a motorcycle patrolman staged a wild but unsuccessful chase in the Southeast area yesterday for a "thrill crazy" youth wanted as a suspect in a Berwyn, Md., filling station holdup-murder.

The 18-year-old youth, police said, is also:

1. Charged in a grand larceny warrant with theft of $600 from St. Francis Xavier Church, last August.

2. Believed to be the person who thrust a gun at a sailor early yesterday morning near Congressional Library and ordered him to "scram" if he didn't want his head blown off.

3. Implicated by three juveniles arrested Monday night in theft, Sunday, of seven 1949 model Ford cars.

Police arrested two Anacostia sailors last night in a downtown garage and at first believed their car, plus other evidence, placed them in the middle of the Berwyn killing, plus the shooting-threat case early yesterday.

Later, however, police said the sailor threat-case victim declined any possible prosecution. And Prince Georges County Detective R. A. Pearson, after questioning the sailors, said he was not interested in having them held. Police indicated they will be dismissed in Municipal Court today.

Prince Georges County police broadcast a lookout and pickup order Wednesday for the boy for questioning in the death of Winston C. Clay. Clay, who was also 18, was shot down the morning of December 6 in the washroom of a filling station at Berwyn, Md. He was killed with a .22-caliber pistol.

Police said the killer took $120, but overlooked $78 more of Clay's own money, plus a coin changer with $12.

The Hudson auto which Prince Georges County police believe was used in the Clay holdup is similar to the one met by the sailor early yesterday.

Thomas F. Austin, 20, who is attached to the U. S. S. Hoist, at Norfolk, Va., is visiting at 4218 Spring st., Suitland, Md.

He told police that as he drove past the Congressional Library about 12:30 a. m., yesterday, a Hudson car crowded him from his traffic lane. Irked by the other driver's performance, Austin said he followed.

Sailor Chases Car

He said he followed the car, which bore Florida license plates, to 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., and demanded of the two occupants why he had been "cut off."

The passenger, he said, pulled a revolver, which he believes was .22 caliber, and threatened him. He said he then followed the car to Minnesota ave. and Randall circle se., but lost it.

The chase yesterday began at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bridgett, at 3220 G st. se. They said the boy, who formerly lived in their neighborhood, came to the rear door, asking for their 16-year-old son, Jimmy. He was not at home. Mrs. Bridgett said she warned the 18-year-old:

"You're not coming in here, boy."

The Bridgetts said they knew the youth was wanted by police. The boy then asked for another boy who still lives in the neighborhood, Mr. and Mrs. Bridgett said. He is one of the three arrested Monday in the auto theft gang, who has implicated the 18-year-old.

Seeks Officer's Aid

Bridgett said he went outside to see if there were any police officers at a nearby call box. He said he spotted a motorcycle man, who later was identified as Pvt. Francis Raymond, of the traffic division. He told Raymond, he said, that the boy in back was wanted at the Fourteenth Precinct station.

While the officer asked more details, Bridgett said, the suspect walked around the house within 8 feet of the officer. When he saw the policeman, he fled. Raymond pursued him, first on his motorcycle, then on foot, into a wooded area near Minnesota ave. and E st. se. He lost the boy there, he said. He had previously heard lookouts for the boy, but did not identify the fleeing youth with the one badly wanted until a man in the woods, who had seen the boy pass, told him he was the suspect.

Meantime, the police radio crackled with messages and lookouts for nearly an hour, putting the 10 cars into action.

According to calls received by police, the fugitive went through the wooded area to the Anacostia River; across the river on a Pennsylvania Railroad viaduct; toward a coal pile in the rear of Gallinger Hospital; along the seawall toward M st. se., and finally to Barney Circle se., where he disappeared after going in the front door of a drugstore and out the rear.

Police said the 18-year-old youth formerly lived in the G st. se. neighborhood, but his family moved to a small Maryland town a year or two ago. They said the youth has not been home in several months.

District to Retest Those Involved In Accidents

Andrews Corporal, Married 5 Days, Killed When Auto Strikes 2 Vehicles

An Andrews Air Force Base corporal, veteran of six years' service and 24 months in the South Pacific, was killed instantly yesterday when his car crashed into a gravel truck, after hitting another car, 2 miles from base.

He was identified as Lloyd Stacy, 24, of Whiteshure, Ky., who had been on leave during which he married Miss Barbara Isherwood, 20, of Clinton, Md., five days ago.

The couple had just moved into an apartment at 4006 D st. se., according to Andrews officials. Mrs. Stacy returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Isherwood, Route 5, Clinton, after being told of her husband's death.

Stacy, an amateur boxer who had won 160 of his 164 fights in the Air Force, was assigned as a fireman on the crash crew of the 1050th Air Installation Squadron. He was awarded the Silver Star and Purple Heart for service in World War II.

Driver of the second car, Sergt. Clyde H. Gossage, 903 Massachusetts ave. ne., who is stationed at Bolling Air Force Base, and his 2-year-old daughter were treated for injuries at Bolling Station Hospital and released.

Rebounded Into Truck

Prince Georges County police, who investigated, gave this account of the accident:

The Andrews airman passed Gossage's car on Military rd. as they both drove toward Andrews. An approaching truck apparently caused the airman to swerve back into the right lane, when his car sideswiped that driven by Gossage, knocking it down a 30-foot embankment.

Stacy's car careened across the highway and smashed into the left front wheel of the gravel truck, driven by Carson Chapman, 24, of 411 L st. se. The airman was thrown clear and pinned under the truck.

Gossage had seven stitches taken in his head. His daughter, Mayme, was treated for a head injury. His wife, Mary, 25, was merely shaken up. Chapman was uninjured.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County coroner, pronounced Stacy dead at the scene. The body was taken to Gasch Funeral Home in Hyattsville.

Chapman and Gossage were booked on technical charges of reckless driving and manslaughter.

In Edmonston, Md., two men were injured, one critically, when the car in which they were riding left the road and hit a culvert in the 500 block Edmonston rd.

Jack C. Parsons, 30, of 8325 Baltimore blvd., Berwyn, driver of the car, was admitted to Prince Georges County Hospital for head injuries in "very critical" condition. His only passenger, Edward F. Suit, 24, of 17-F Ridge rd., Greenbelt, was in fair condition at Bethesda Naval Hospital, to which he was transferred after being treated for head injuries at Prince Georges County Hospital.

Hit by Runaway Trailer

In another accident in Greater Washington yesterday, Harry E. Wohrman, 38, of 5519 Volta ave., when his auto was struck by a free-running trailer drifting down a slope at 4th and T sts. ne. Police said the trailer became detached from a tractor driven by James D. Coleman, 36, of 930 Westminster st. nw.

Detective Sergt. George L. Saunders, 51, of the police general-assignment squad, tangled fenders of his auto with those of one driven by Earl M. Dimmick, 26, of 501 12th st. ne., yesterday, in the 1000 block of E st ne. Saunders said he was pursuing Dimmick for an unsafe start from a parked position. Neither was injured, and Saunders arrested Dimmick or the unsafe-start charge.

Traffic Ticket Sends Woman to Hospital

It was only a traffic charge but Mrs. Kaye Hoffman, 54, of 1109 Holbrook ter. n.e., went to Casualty Hospital yesterday.

Motorcycle Police Pvt. R. R. Latimer said he ticketed Mrs. Hoffman's car because it was parked overtime at a meter in the 1400 block of I st. n.w.

Latimer said he later ordered Mrs. Hoffman to follow him to the station. At an intersection, he said, he zigged and she zagged.

The policeman said he caught up with Mrs. Hoffman and ordered her from the car. He said she resisted, finally slumped to the pavement and was taken to Casualty Hospital for treatment of shock.

Guardsman Injured When Truck Overturns

Pvt. John M. Van Dorn, 18, of RFD 2, Manassas, Va., of the District National Guard, suffered slight injuries when a Guard truck overturned on Route 234 near Conova, Va. He was admitted to the Navy Hospital at Quantico for observation.

The driver, Recruit Richard L. Stokley, 17, of 7 N. Garfield st., Arlington, and others in the truck were unhurt.

Six-Months' Trial Approved for New Eye, Written, Road Examinations

A plan to re-examine District drivers involved in traffic accidents here that result in personal injury was approved on a trial basis yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Recommended by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, it is substantially the same plan suggested two months ago by Director of Vehicles and Traffic George E. Keneipp.

It provides that any District resident whose permit has been suspended as the result of conviction or forfeiture of collateral on a traffic charge growing out of such an accident must take a complete re-examination before his permit is restored.

The examination includes eye, written and road tests.

Keneipp said the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits suspends permits in nearly every conviction on charges of violations involving personal injury. It has been within the discretion of the board to order a re-examination, Keneipp said. Now it would be mandatory.

The Commissioners approved the new policy for a six-month probationary period starting January 1. It will not apply to accidents occurring before that time.

Keneipp originally offered the plan as a substitute for his controversial proposal to re-examine all drivers over 65 years old. He said he personally favors periodic re-examination of all drivers, but that his department does not have the facilities to do the job.

In 1948, there were 4863 District traffic accidents causing personal injury.

24 Hours Apart

Mystery Veils Deaths of Boy, Sister

Severna Park, Md., Dec. 15 (AP). A little blonde girl with twinkling blue eyes and her baby brother who fell sick together early this week will be buried together Friday.

They died within 24 hours of each other.

Assistant Medical Examiner Gustave H. Faubert said today no one yet knows what made them ill.

Dead are Ruth Margaret Dent, not quite 3, and James F. Dent, jr., just 19 months.

Their grieving parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Dent, could offer no explanation.

Dent, a musician with the Naval Academy Band in Annapolis, is under hospital care himself. His back was broken last month. It is still wrapped in a cast.

Dr. Faubert said he is investigating the chance the children ate something which caused internal poisoning. But as yet, he added, "There is no apparent cause."

A baby sister, 4-month-old Honora Marie, has shown no signs of illness.

Faubert was called to the Dents' apartment Monday. Mrs. Dent, 27, said Peggy and Jimmy suddenly became ill. She could not fathom what was wrong. It appeared as much like a cold as anything else.

They both awoke all right the next morning. But within two hours Jimmy died. Peggy, taken to the naval hospital died before dawn yesterday morning.

The bodies have been sent to Baltimore for autopsy. Samples of the food they ate Sunday night have also been sent to Baltimore for analysis.

Shura Dvorine Brings Up an Old Question

By Paul Hume

Shura Dvorine exhibited some fine piano playing last night before the Georgetown Concert Group. He also brought up an old question.

The question is: what place has jazz or pure "popular" music on an otherwise serious recital? Dvorine listed two Washington premieres on his program. The first was called Disconcerto, by Jacques Press. It is a witty, satirical piece of fast writing for piano.

It sounds like simple scales and classical sonatinas. Then all of a sudden, it veers into a typical hot jazz break. There is not one original idea in it, either classical or jazz. But the juxtaposition of ideas is often very funny. It is a nice take-off of Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata, a sonata by Mozart, and the harmonic style of Schubert and Liszt.

Dvorine played the spots off Disconcerto. Then he made his mistake. Instead of leaving things in that happy state and turning to music of which he is also a master, he went on with another pseudo-popular work called Manhattan Suite by Otto Cesana. This was pure, trite slush and not worth his time or that of his audience.

One was fine. Two was one too many. Earlier in the program Dvorine showed that he can move in most romantic of piano works, Schubert's Wanderer Fantasy, and play it for its inner values.

But in this as in the Mozart A Major sonata, later parodied in the Press piece, Dvorine takes piano tone too much for granted. He is a real pianist and can be a great one. He must learn to color every note he plays.

Dr. Dunn Named

Appointment of Dr. William LeRoy Dunn as acting director of the District Health Department's Bureau for Tuberculosis was announced yesterday.

Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger said Dunn will serve pending appointment of a permanent successor to Dr. A. Barklie Coulter who died last week.

Dunn has worked with the bureau on a part time basis for 13 years. He has practiced here since 1930, specializing in diseases of the chest.

Film Star to Speak At Chest Luncheon

Harold Russell, national commander of Amvets and star of the movie, "The Best Years of Our Lives," will be guest of honor and speaker at today's general report luncheon of the Community Chest Federation campaign.

Russell

The report meeting, scheduled for 12:20 p. m. at the Washington Hotel, is the first general one since last Thursday, when 86.07 percent of the $3,991,719 goal had been reached.

Federation campaigners have been following a three-pronged plan this week in an attempt to obtain the $555,000 needed to complete the drive goal.

Campaign headquarters has been checking firms, Government groups, addresses and individuals from where no contributions have been received, and others are being recanvassed. Delays in contributions have also been checked.

Russell, a 35-year-old veteran who lost both hands in a TNT explosion in the war, will help General Campaign Chairman Frank J. Luchs to present Red Feather "Oscars" to campaigners.

Tito Charges Reds With Blocking Bulgaria Trade

Belgrade, Dec. 15 (NYHT)—The Soviet Union is forcibly preventing Bulgaria from trading independently on the world market, Premier Marshal Tito's press said tonight in a lengthy report on Soviet-Bulgarian trade relations.

Russia's control over the commerce of the Communist government in Sofia has gone so far that a Soviet patrol vessel on the Black Sea on one occasion halted a Bulgarian ship with a cargo for a non-Communist country and ordered it back to a Bulgarian port, according to Glas, a Serbian Communist-front paper.

The Yugoslavs are well-informed on developments in Sofia. Marshal Tito's press recently announced the arrest of several prominent Communists in Bulgaria before they were made public by the Sofia government.

Before the war Bulgaria did most of its trade with Germany. The Soviet Union has replaced Germany, Glas said, without bringing benefits to the Bulgarian workers.

Six-Week Course In France Planned By Maryland U.

In cooperation with the French Ministry of Education, the University of Maryland will sponsor a six-week summer workshop in education at Sevres, France, a suburb of Paris.

The plan was announced yesterday by Dr. George J. Kabat, dean of the College of Special and Continuation Studies, and Dr. Henry Breckbill, assistant dean of the College of Education.

Teachers who make the trip will need approximately $718. While abroad they will earn six hours of credit in education at the University of Maryland. The sailing date will be next June.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Metropolitan Bank Elects 2 Vice Presidents

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of the National Metropolitan Bank have elected two new vice presidents, President C. F. Jacobsen announced yesterday.

They are Herbert D. Lawson, jr., former president of the local American Institute of Banking chapter, and John P. Sippel, national bank examiner in the Baltimore district.

Lawson

Sippel

Lawson, who will assume his new post Monday, has resigned as assistant cashier of the Suburban National Bank. He was associated with the Washington Loan & Trust Co. for many years and has been active in various A. I. B. executive capacities.

Sippel will take over his new duties with the 15th street institution at the start of 1950. From 1934 to 1935 he was associated with the Federal Land Bank, and then served from 1935 to 1945 as assistant national bank examiner in Baltimore. After three years' service in the Navy as a lieutenant, he returned to Baltimore as a national bank examiner.

MAPS CAPITAL BOOST: The Suburban National Bank stockholders will vote January 10 on a proposal to increase the bank's capital by the sale of an additional 10,000 shares of stock at $24 a share. President Fred L. Lutes said the action, if approved, would increase capital to $700,000 and surplus to $715,000. Directors also voted the regular 5 percent dividend plus an extra 2 percent, payable December 29 to stock of record December 19. Transfer of $25,000 from undivided profits to surplus was also authorized.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: L. L. Lewis has been elected secretary and a director of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. and C. E. Stewart has been chosen assistant secretary . . . Elliott V. Bell, New York State superintendent of banks, will resign December 31 to become chairman of the executive committee of McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. . . . Harold P. Hallock has been appointed regional distributor of the Alfco twin automatic parking meter with offices in Washington . . . Frank J. Murray and Addison Clohosey, authorities on Federal taxation, addressed a meeting yesterday of the D. C. Institute of Certified Public Accountants in the Mayflower.

Lewis

POWER SALES: Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported November sales of 170,596,002 kilowatt hours, an increase of 6.25 percent over the same 1948 month. For the District of Columbia alone, sales totaled 119,768,000 kilowatt hours, up 6 percent. Largest gain was the 10 percent in commercial and industrial consumption, while residential use increased 2.24 percent.

DEBATE: The three-man debating team of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will argue with a Philadelphia A. B. I. group tonight on whether there should be Federal legislation to outlaw the Communist Party. Judges will be Bolitha J. Laws, chief judge of the United States District Court here; Bruce Baird, president of National Savings & Trust Co., and Walter Bastian, local attorney. Local team includes William H. Smith, Hugh Darling and John Waller, all of Riggs National Bank.

BONUSES: A Christmas bonus of $2,500,000 will be distributed among employes of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. on Friday . . . Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co. announced a bonus of two weeks' extra salary to all employes who have worked more than one year . . . The 27 employes of the Divver Motor Co. in Bethesda will receive a bonus of slightly more than $10,000, which will be distributed at a Christmas party Saturday afternoon.

ODD LOTS: Security Storage Co. of Washington declared an extra dividend of $1.75 a share on common stock in addition to the regular quarterly of $1.25 a share, payable January 10 to stock of record January 5. This will bring total dividends for 1949 to $8, same as in 1948 . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 73,738 units, compared with 50,106 this week is estimated at 73,738 units, compared with 50,106 in the previous week . . . Eaton & Howard, Inc., Boston investment management firm, today will observe its twenty-fifth anniversary . . . Noxzema Chemical Co. of Baltimore declared an extra dividend of 15 cents a share and will distribute to employes bonuses of 15½ percent of their total earnings for the year . . . Price cuts of $55 to $65 on its Series 88 cars are announced by Oldsmobile as it begins its 1950 model year. No price changes in the smaller 76 or larger 98 series cars . . . Chrysler is well under way on output of its 1950 models.

Surge in Oils Sparks Rally In Late Deals

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Oil stocks greased the way for a late rally in the stock market today.

Last-hour demand was enough to lift many issues from the minus to the plus side and to extend earlier gains. The net result was a small margin of gains over losses.

The rally was also large enough to boost the Associated Press 60-stock average to 70.8, a high since mid-July last year, although twice equalled since then in November last year.

A group of oil stocks surged far ahead of the balance of the market, with gains running to an extreme of 7 points.

Dealers linked the interest in oils to reports of a sharp decline in the visible supply of home heating oils. Continued cold weather, it was suggested, could greatly affect the oil situation.

The volume of business crossed the two-million-share mark for the third day running and for the fourth day this year. Sales of 2,070,000 shares compared with 2,210,000 yesterday, the high for the year.

The AP 60-stock average inched up .1 of one point to 70.8, a level not exceeded since July 15, 1948. The industrial group showed the largest gain with utilities in second place. Rails were unchanged on average.

The sudden interest in the oils spilled over to other groups and a rally, slow-footed but decisive, got under way.

The spectacular behavior of Superior Oil of California this week was all but clouded by a couple of other oils. Superior, up 32½ points Tuesday, up 22 Wednesday, and up 15 at the best today, closed 6 higher at 218. The jump followed news of a proposed plan to split the company into two corporate entities.

Amerada Petroleum, selling minus a dividend of $2, gained 6⅞ at 116⅞, Skelly bounded 7 to 114, Phillips Petroleum 4⅛ to 63, Richfield 1½ to 40⅛, Houston Oil 1⅝ to 43⅝, Seaboard Oil 2¾ to 54¾, and Plymouth Oil 1⅝ to 44⅜.

N. Y. Central Recalls 1000 at Repair Shop

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad has recalled 1000 workers at two passenger car repair shops in order to take care of an accumulation of work piled up since the shops were closed early last June. The shops are located at West Albany, N. Y., and Beech Grove, Ind.

Sale of Vepco Issue Authorized by SCC

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission has authorized the Virginia Electric & Power Co. to sell two million dollars par value of bonds to institutional investors. Proceeds of the issue, authorized in 1947, are to be "for utility plant construction."

Business Outlook

New Census to Reveal Income Of Professionals and Farmers

By J. A. Livingston

GEORGE WASHINGTON, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and other founders of the United States have endeared themselves to economists, statisticians, and sociologists the world over—through an enlightened accident. In Article 1, Section 2, Paragraph 3, of the Constitution, they laid the foundation for original economic research in the United States. As a result, no country in the world knows itself as we do.

Livingston

The framers of the Constitution wanted to apportion votes in Congress according to the population. A census was ordered taken every 10 years. And what started out as a count of noses has developed into a basic sociological document. We know where people live—in metropolitan areas, in cities, towns, or on farms. We know their age, occupation, sex, color, marital status, educational attainment.

The census changes with the years. In 1850, census-takers asked the value of real estate owned, a highly personal question. That was when real estate was a main source of wealth. In 1900, the census-takers wanted to know how long marriages had lasted. Divorces were becoming prevalent. In 1930, census-takers took a tally on radio ownership. In 1940, a question on educational attainment was substituted for illiteracy.

Census-takers learn by trial and error. The 1940 census asked persons who earned salaries or wages to give their incomes, but omitted income data from physicians, lawyers, proprietors of stores, partners in accounting firms, farmers—persons who customarily don't draw salaries or wages, but certainly have income and constitute a large porportion of the population. This year the census is attempting to correct the omission.

SUCH INCOME data will provide the American businessman who wants to sell refrigerators or clothing, the sociologists who wants to study the standard of living, the Government official who has to consider social legislation, with a cross-section of how America lives. But to cut down the cost, the census-takers are asking only one person out of five for the income information. That is ragarded as an adequate sample.

The 1950 Census also will disclose how many homes have toilets, radios, television sets, kitchen sinks, central heating, electric light, mechanical refrigeration, where those homes are, how much rent the residents pay.

Curiously enough, a group of Republican Congressmen have launched an attack on the request for income data. They declare earnings are a personal matter. Yet earlier questions on the value of real and personal property were far more intimate. And only 1.9 percent of the persons questioned on income in 1940 did not answer. Some declined. Others didn't have the information. (Many times, the census-interrogator talks to the woman of a household who can't be certain of her husband's earning power.)

THE CRITICS argue that the census favors people with incomes "over $10,000." They don't have to be specific on how much they make. That's because only 3 percent of the families are in the $10,000-or-up income brackets. There's no need to investigate their capacity to purchase goods and services.

What businessmen and social analysts want to know is where the country's mass market is. Have some areas or groups been overlooked? What occupations afford the highest average incomes? Those are just two questions the 1950 census will answer.

Lowell Chawner, one of the assiduous students of the Department of Commerce, points out that advances in census-taking have always met with opposition. In England in 1753, William Thornton, a member of Parliament, declared: "An annual register of our people will acquaint our enemies abroad with our weakness and our enemies at home with our wealth. As to myself, I hold this project to be totally subversive of the last remains of English liberty." But England eventually took a census.

Even the women, bless 'em, now accept the census. When first asked their age, they resented the question as impertinent and personal. Most now reply as a matter of course, though enumerators are not above thinking there's a downward bias, a tendency to miscount how time flies.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Soybeans and lard, helped along by a better tone in fats and oils generally, scored moderate gains on the Board of Trade today. The rest of the market was mixed, with corn showing some late weakness to close at its day's lows.

In wheat, the December contract dropped more than a cent at the start and never recovered more than a fraction of this lost ground. But the new crop July delivery was firm throughout.

Wheat closed ¾ lower to ⅜ higher, corn was ⅜-1½ lower, oats were ⅜ lower to ¼ higher, rye was unchanged to ½ higher, soybeans were ¾-1¾ higher and lard was 5 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher.

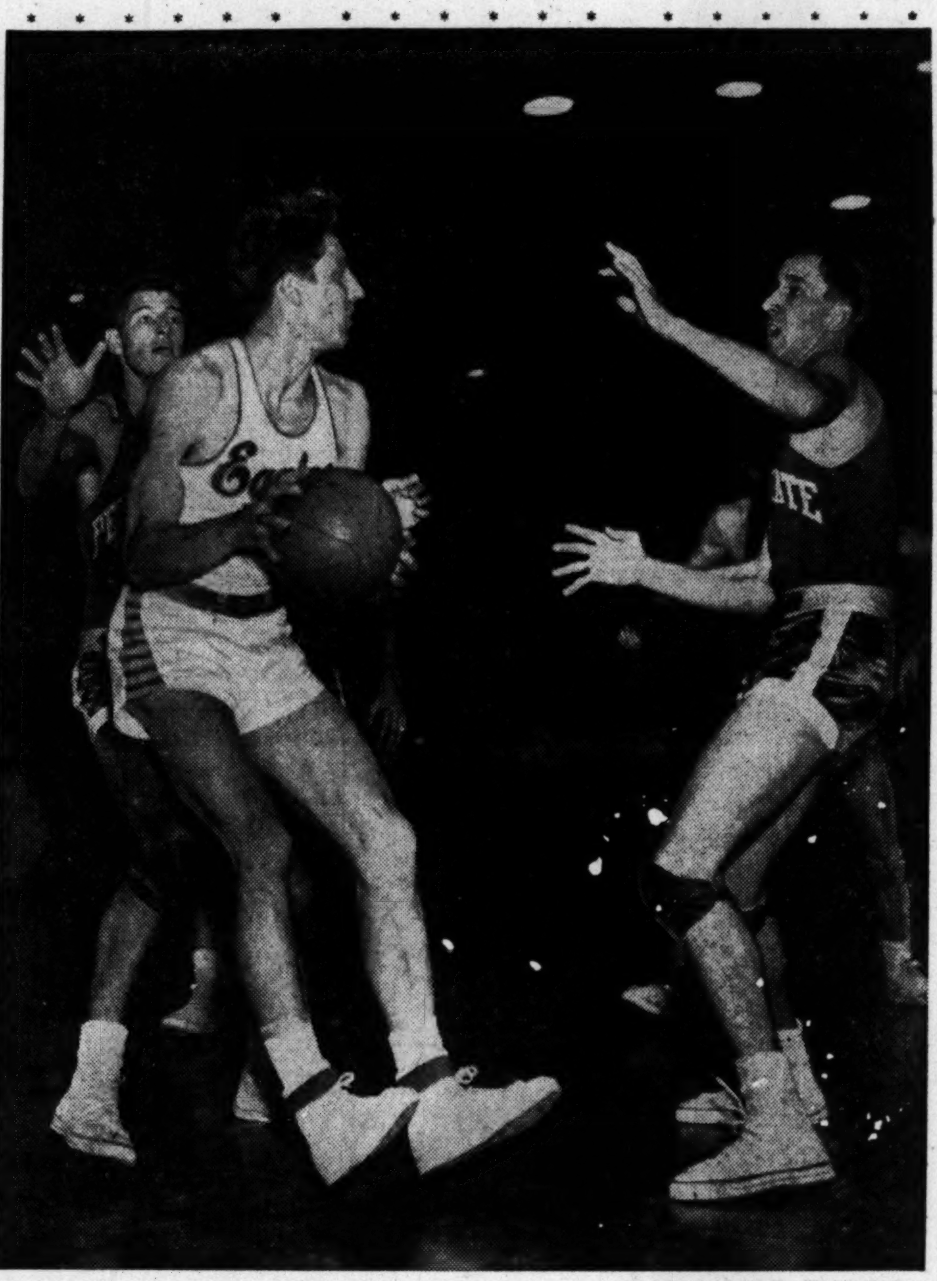
Penn State Beats American U., 57-49



By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

ON HIS HEELS—American's Roy Ishman looks as though he's set back on this play last night at Uline Arena. Actually, he wasn't. He stole the ball from Penn State's Lou Lamie (left) and Lee Schisler. The Eagles were set back, though, 57-49

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THERE OUGHT to be new concern this week by the Yankees, who barely stumbled into the 1949 pennant, and the Red Sox, who weren't quite good enough. Detroit is moving up to look them both in the eye, and the challenge is becoming very real.

The Tigers were merely the fourth-place club of last season, but that was last season. The agingYankees and the no-younger Red Sox have taken no steps to buttress their teams, but Detroit in one stroke eliminated its No. 1 weakness—at second base—with the purchase of Gerry Priddy from the Browns.

Povich

There was no announcement of the cash sum involved, but the Tigers and Browns did not discourage the estimate of $100,000, plus Pitcher Lou Kretlow. Actually, in swinging the deal, General Manager Billy Evans of the Tigers separated Mr. Walter O. Briggs from $150,000 before the Browns could be brought into line.

In Priddy, the Tigers came up with one of the top second basemen in the league, perhaps the second best. Only Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox outhit him and nobody outfields the stolid blond boy who makes all the plays and will lift the Tigers' infield out of its mediocrity of the past several seasons.

THE TIGERS finished only two games behind the third-place Indians last season, 10 games behind the pennant-winning Yanks. But it was clear that Detroit was the best club in the league in the last two months of play and that Manager Red Rolfe had whipped into shape positively the league's finest pitching staff.

Rolfe, an old Yankee, with a proper esteem for the long wallop, was moaning at the recent major league meetings that "our infielders, all of 'em, hit only 12 home runs last season. No power. There were 19 guys in the league who single-handedly walloped more homers than did the fellows who played in my infield."

Priddy wasn't one of 'em. But he came close. With the Browns in 1949, Priddy did wallop 11 homers. And at Detroit he'll be shooting at a left field wall 11 feet closer than was the 351-foot fence in the Browns' park. Rolfe's cup is running over, not only at the prospect of what Priddy will do as a play-maker for the Tigers, but at the added punch his bat will bring to the Tigers' lineup.

ROLFE is downright proud of his outfield of Vic Wertz, Hoot Evers and Johnny Groth, and if there is a better one in the league only the Red Sox can boast it. He has proper respect for the Boston trio of Ted Williams, Dom DiMaggio and Al Zarilla, "but my guys can do everything the Red Sox outfield does, except hit with Teddy Williams. But we have youth, and I wouldn't swap mine for theirs."

The whole picture is stacking up nicely for the Tigers. Even if Rolfe over-states the merits of his outfield—and his opinions could be justified—the Tigers can lay claim to two superlatives without much argument. Their pitching of Hal Newhouser, Fred Hutchinson, Virgil Trucks and Art Houtteman towers above any quartet the other teams can offer, and in George Kell they own the finest third baseman in either league.

They'd have made it closer last year, save for their weakness at first base, and the injury to young Art Houtteman. When George Vico failed them as a first baseman, they compromised by converting Don Kolloway to the job. A second baseman by trade, Kolloway bungled too many double play chances at first base. Houtteman, denied to the Tigers until mid-June because of his spring training car crash, moved in at that point and won 14 games.

THE RED SOX and Yankees have been sitting on their hands like a couple of teams that have nothing to fear from the Tigers, but their smugness is a pose. Both of them felt a stabbing pain when the Tigers' deal for Priddy was announced at the New York meetings. They were aware of the implications. They had mentally crossed off the Cleveland Indians as a 1950 pennant threat, only to be confronted with this new Detroit menace.

The paradox is that the Red Sox are in a better spot to do better in 1950 than the Yankees. At least they can blame their poor start for costing them the pennant last season, and hope with some logic that they will get away better in '50. The Yankees, despite their victory, never were a solid club, and got home only because of Joe Page and the magnificent juggling of Casey Stengel.

At the New York meetings, the Yanks and the Red Sox were eyeing each other's moves like a couple of jockeys told not to go to the whip until the horse to beat was under a drive. Neither made a deal, only to discover they no longer have the race to themselves. The Tigers are moving on 'em, and it should be fun next summer.

Terps Host To Clemson

University of Maryland, loser in four out of five starts, is host to Clemson tonight, 8:30, at Ritchie Coliseum.

Three other area colleges are in action tonight, too.

Wilson Teachers College, winner of five out of seven games, tackles Madison College of Lexington, Va., in the American University gym. Madison has a 3-1 record. Starting time is 8:30.

Winless Gallaudet makes its sixth attempt at victory when it visits Lynchburg College.

Quantico's Marines, boasting a 7-2 record, clash with Western Maryland at Quantico, 8:30.

Quantico Bows To Wake Forest

Quantico, Va., Dec. 15—Wake Forest scored its first win in five starts, 60-45, over the Quantico Marines here tonight.

Stan Najeway of Wake Forest and Cy Waldrop of Quantico tied for high scoring honors with 15 points apiece.

Arkansas May Name Douglas

Fayetteville, Ark., Dec. 15 (AP).—John Barnhill is out as head football coach at the University of Arkansas, but he'll continue as athletic director, President Lewis Jones announced tonight.

The new coach will be named tomorrow, but there was no hint who he will be. There has been speculation that Otis Douglas, 38-year-old Philadelphia Eagle trainer and coach at Drexel Tech, will get the job.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin said today he would, but Douglas, to whom Eagle Coach Greasy Neale is said to turn for much advice, said he hadn't received the word from Arkansas.

Douglas was interviewed at Albuquerque, N. Mex., where the Eagles worked out en route to California to meet the Los Angeles Rams for the National Professional Football League championship Sunday.

He said he had conferred with Arkansas athletic officials, but understood they had several other candidates in mind.

Asked if he would accept an offer from Arkansas, he answered: "Yes."

Roanoke Routs Catholic U. By 97 to 57

By Jules Loh

Catholic University took its worst licking in many years last night, dropping its first Mason-Dixon Conference game to Roanoke College, 97-57, before a capacity crowd of 1200 at Brookland.

It was the highest number of points the visitors had scored in one game in 10 years.

Roanoke rested on a comfortable 53-36 halftime margin.

The visitors' shooting average was something seldom seen in Mason-Dixon competition. They sunk 24 out of 50 shots from the floor in the first half, had a little less than a .500 average for the night and dropped in 15 out of 22 foul shots.

Roanoke Forward Tony Proietti, playing only the first three quarters and less than two minutes of the fourth, edged out the Cardinals' Jim Losty in the scoring department, 24-22.

Compared to the home team, Roanoke looked like professionals. It displayed a powerful man-to-man defense which held Catholic to eight points in the third period.

At only one point in the game did Catholic threaten to take the lead. Jim Ballint swished a pivot shot from the foul line which narrowed the score to 12-11. Three successive goals by Proietti nipped the threat. There was no other.

Nats Wait for Call, So Do Yanks, So There Was No Deal Yesterday

The Yankees are still playing coy with the Nats on their deal-in-the-making and there is no news to report except—

Clark Griffith didn't get that telephone call he was expecting from the Yankees yesterday at the same time, according to the Associated Press, New York was waiting for Griffith to call.

"Durn it, George Weiss said he would call me," said Griffith. "I won't call him. We'll wait it out."

Confidentially, Griffith expects Yankee General Manager Weiss to call him today, or before the week is out.

2 Leagues Divide Berths On AP All-Pro Elevens

Another pro football merger was revealed yesterday with the release of the Associated Press 1949 all-star teams.

Although the now defunct All-America Conference had only seven teams to the National League's 10, the 22 places were divided evenly between the two.

Philadelphia's Steve Van Buren received more support than any of the first-string backfield which includes Bob Waterfield, Los Angeles Rams; Otto Graham, Cleveland Browns, and Chet Mutryn, Buffalo Bills.

For the first time in memory not a single member of the Chicago Bears made the first team. In fact, Johnny Lujack didn't make the second. The Los Angeles Rams grabbed three of the spots and the Philadelphia Eagles and Cleveland Browns two each.

Although the Eagles are reputed to have the best group of linemen ever gathered on any team, only End Pete Pihos was named.

The Redskins couldn't do any better than having Sammy Baugh, and Ends Hugh Taylor and Ed Berrang on the honorable mention list.

Baltimore's neighboring Colts, and now fellow league members, boast Dick Barwegan, first-team tackle, and honorable mention for Backs Y. A. Tittle, Billy Stone and End Bob Nowaskey.

Kerr Glad to Leave Durocher

Buddy Eager to Be With Southworth

By Joe Reichler

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP).—Fancy-fielding Buddy Kerr, one of the key figures of the gigantic six-man trade engineered by New York and Boston, said today he regretted leaving the Giants but was happy to get away from Manager Leo Durocher.

Kerr, who spent seven years with the Giants before being shipped along with Willard Marshall, Sid Gordon and Sam Webb to the Braves for Alvin Dark and Eddie Stanky yesterday, also said he was eager to play for Billy Southworth whom he considers one of the ablest managers in baseball.

"I'll be happier in Boston because Southworth is my idea of a fine man and manager," the 27-year-old native New Yorker said. "I had an idea I was going to be traded as far back as last summer.

"It's just as well it turned out the way it did," he added, "because I was prepared to confront Leo this spring and tell him to either play me regularly or send me away.

Contrary to general belief, Kerr never had serious words with Durocher—except once. But let Buddy tell it.

"I've read those stories, but there is little truth to them," he said. "How can I have fought with him when he rarely ever spoke to me? Right from the start he didn't think much of me as a shortstop."

Kerr opened the past season as regular shortstop and was hitting .313 when his father died. He was out three days. When he returned Durocher advised him that Billy Rigney was now his regular shortstop. He never got back in as a regular again.

"At one point, I sat on the bench for seven straight weeks," Kerr said. "Next game I played someone hit one to right field and Marshall made a good throw in to second. The ball went under my glove and hit me in the stomach and the guy was safe.

Lengthy Layoff Blamed in Row

"When I got back to the bench, Durocher began yelling that I should have gone out for the throw. Well, I lost my head and for the first time climbed all over him. I told him I had misjudged the throw but probably wouldn't have done so if I hadn't been on the bench for seven straight weeks. I advised him to stop second-guessing me. That was the closest I came to a real row with Durocher.

"He never answered me but I knew my goose was cooked from then on."

Costa Leads Lions With 17 Points

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Penn State, aggressive and smart under the backboards, handed American University its third straight setback, 57-49, last night before 640 at Uline Arena.

Marty Costa, who scored 20 points in a losing 70-63 cause against Georgetown the night before, followed up with 17 more against the Eagles.

Capt. Bob Lamon, Washington-reared A. U. ace, matched 6-foot 7-inch Costa with 17. However, Costa, Jay McMahon and Lee Schisler made the big difference by outscrambling the timid Eagles for the rebounds, and skillfully tapping in a half dozen poor set shots.

Eagles Drop Zone Defense

American U. pulled a surprise by abandoning its traditional zone defense for the man-for-man. But if the Lions were flabbergasted, they didn't show it.

In the first four minutes, McMahon, Costa and Lamie artfully tapped in field goals and Lamie added a foul shot to give Penn State a 7-0 lead. Bob Lamon broke the Penn State zone defense with a set shot at that point, but the Eagles couldn't catch up.

In a drastic change of its offensive pattern, American shifted 6-foot, 6-inch Ronnie Garshag from his usual pivot slot to the left corner, and the hook shot artist wasn't quite as successful from that spot.

He netted two of his three field goals midway in the first half to cut Penn State's lead to 11-9, and that was the closest A.U. came.

Bullis Prep Will Play in Florida Bowl

By West McLean
Post Reporter

A third District area football team was signed for a bowl game when Bullis School announced that it had accepted a bid to play Castle Heights Military Academy of Lebanon, Tenn., in the Shrine Bowl at Daytona Beach, Fla., December 30.

Bullis, perennially one of the prep school powers of the East, didn't have a very good season, winning only two games this year, against six losses and one tie, the worst record in school history.

The Admirals played one of their best games against the Little Irish from Aquinas High of Rochester, N. Y., even though losing, 19-7.

Aquinas is considered by many to be the best prep school in the country and it was Bullis' determined stand against the Little Irish that gained it the bowl bid..

The Shrine's game is for the benefit of the National Crippled Children's Fund.

Castle Heights has a 7-1 record for the season and claims the military and prep school championship of the South.

The game will be Bullis' second bowl game in three years. The Admirals played a 6-6 tie with Marianapolis Academy in the Shoe Bowl in Lynn, Mass. two years ago to climax an undefeated season.

The Admirals got off to a good start this year, beating the Mount St. Mary's Frosh, 26-0, in their opener and clipping Perkiomen Prep of Pennsburg, Pa., 13-0, in their second game. A 13-13 tie with Longwood Prep came next before the Admirals dropped their last six games.

The squad will leave for Daytona Beach on the twenty-sixth and take in the Maryland vs. Missouri Gator Bowl game at Jacksonville before returning to Washington January 3. Georgetown is the other area team in a postseason game. The Hoyas play Texas Western in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., January 2.

Big Jim's Coy

Florida Wants Tatum, Does He Want Florida?

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

MARYLAND'S Jim Tatum returned from Florida yesterday, leaving in his wake a hurricane of rumors that he's ready to take over as Florida U. football coach.

But he had just the right answers at College Park.

Big Jim drawled, "I'm not looking for a job and Florida made me no offer. Why, I wouldn't even entertain one until after our 'Gator Bowl game with Missouri on January 2."

Meanwhile the Associated Press reported that Tatum talked with Dr. J. Hillis Miller, Florida's president, and D. K. (Dutch) Stanley, dean of the college of physical education, at Gainesville.

"Oh, sure I talked with them," said Tatum. "I don't like that practice field we're supposed to use at Ponte Vedra. I went over to look at Florida's facilities, thought I'd try to make a deal with them.

"If it wasn't that Florida didn't have a football coach, wouldn't have been anything to it."

Florida's football field is a mere 60-mile hop, skip and jump from Jacksonville's 'Gator Bowl.

Tatum got a little confidential, saying, "I won't tell you I'm not interested in the Florida job. Let me say I'm not interested in it or any other until after January 2.

"You know, football coaches are only human. I'm always interested in hearing a proposition. If it affords a better income, security and so on, I have to be interested for the sake of my wife and two kids."

Florida is a boom country and there's a sizeable one on for Maryland's highly successful 36-year-old mentor.

Accompanying Tatum to Gainesville was Walter McRae, prominent Florida alumnus. Remarking on newspaper reports that Tatum would be the new coach, McRae commented that he hoped they were true.

Story is that Florida is prepared to offer Tatum upward of $15,000. He reportedly makes $13,000 at Maryland.

As far as security goes, he couldn't beat the College Park job.

That's a lifetime post, according to Tatum. "I have professorial rank here," he said, "and can't get fired without cause. No matter what people think, losing football games isn't supposed to be cause."

It is a bit difficult to see why Tatum would leave Maryland at this time. His 1950 team should be his best and the stadium he had so much to do with getting constructed will be ready.

But the big Carolinian walked out on Oklahoma's two Sugar Bowl teams that could have been his.

Byrd Says He Won't Stand in Tatum's Way

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president and one-time football coach of Maryland, said yesterday, "I think Florida could offer Jim Tatum a better contract than we can, it's a question of how much better."

Dr. Byrd added, "But I believe Tatum would talk to me before he'd consider any move and he hasn't. If Jim wants to leave, we will wish him luck and won't stand in his way.

"But I expect Tatum to be here when the 1950 season rolls around. I never worry about these reports. A lot of colleges would like to have him."

Bosox Send Hughson to N. Y. Giants

BOSTON, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox announced today assignment of Tex Hughson to the New York Giants for an undisclosed sum.

Hughson, a right-hand pitcher, won four and lost two games last year. He pitched 78 2-3 innings in 29 games.

The purchase price was undisclosed but it was believed to be in excess of the $10,000 waiver figure.

Hughson, plagued by a sore arm during the past three years, appeared in 29 games for the Red Sox last season, mainly in relief roles. He won four and lost two.

Celtics Send Nostrand To Tri-City Hawks

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Dec. 15 (AP).—The Tri-City Blackhawks today added their fifth man topping the six-foot five-inch mark for National Basketball Association play with the purchase of George Nostrand from the Boston Celts. The former Wyoming player is six feet eight inches. Nostrand joins John Mahnken, Don Ray and Marko Todorovich in the Hawks' skyscraper squad.

Spaniel Replaces Sitko With Shriners

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15 (AP).—Emil Sitko of Fort Wayne, Ind., Notre Dame's All-American fullback, will be unable to play in the Shrine's East-West football game, December 31, because of his wife's illness.

Shrine officials said today he would be replaced by another Notre Dame star, Frank Spaniel, who played as both fullback and halfback.

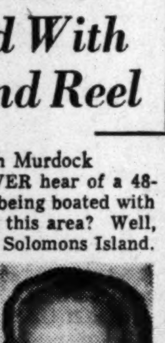
Fishing Notes

48-Lb. Rock Boated With Rod and Reel

By Ralph Murdock

DID YOU EVER hear of a 48-pound rockfish being boated with rod and reel in this area? Well, it happened off Solomons Island.



Murdock

The party comprised Washingtonians Ray Rutherford, John Mazza and T. B. McKallor. The skipper was Capt. Manford Phillips, and the hefty striper was taken with a large white bucktail. Their total catch weighed more than 300 pounds.

Leon Hayden and Edgar Bowen produced further evidence that the big ones are at Solomons Island. They only picked up 14, but they were all whoppers. The smallest was a 10-pounder, while the balance hit the beam near the limit, 15 pounds in Maryland waters. Edgar said, "We made one mistake; our tackle was too light and we lost most of our fishing equipment on the bruisers." The catch was made in the ship channel.

Leonard Seits and Vernon Palmer, both of McLean, Va. boasted 73 beauties that scaled from 2 to 5 pounds above The Gooses in Herring Bay. Vernon said, "It took three metal wash tubs to hold the catch. It's the best trip I've had in years." The haul was made with the use of steel lines while trolling on the bottom. Twelve to sixteen ounces of weight for trolling sinkers were used.

Jack Robertson and his wife Helen have returned from a fishing trip in Florida. Their ambitions were to hook a sailfish. Their goal was almost realized when a sail followed the bait on the surface for twenty minutes but refused to nibble. Mrs. Robertson hooked a big kingfish and immediately yelled for assistance. For some unknown reason the assistance was not rendered and she was forced to finish the job of winding it in.

After the fish had been gaffed by the skipper, Mrs. Robertson flopped down in her chair and uttered these words: "No more deep-sea fishing for me. I thought we were on a vacation."

There will be a public hearing under the auspices of the Game and Inland Fish Commission at the Emerson Hotel, Baltimore, Md., on Friday, January 6, at 10 a. m. to discuss the following proposal:

"It shall be unlawful to use dip nets in the tributaries of the Potomac River in Allegany County."

D. C. Trainer Has Winner Paying $53

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, Dec. 15.—Jockey Lou Pikor and Winged Heels, both believed to have seen their best days on a race track, teamed today to produce the biggest upset of the meeting.

When the smoke from a sizzling stretch battle lifted, the No. 2, designating Winged Heels, was revealed along with an across-the-board mutuel of $135 to win, $33 to place and $18.60 to show.

It was a finish that looked like massed production, so closely packed were the leaders. Pikor, admittedly a great rider when in the mood, regained his saddle spark today and virtually threw the 7-year-old plater into the wire—the winner by a tight nose.

Mrs. Stanley Greene's Ethelspick was second, a head in front of Mrs. H. F. Bower's Mirage. Five others were in the wake of Winged Heels, the longest shot in the field.

Pikor was making his second track appearance of the meeting. Three years ago he made a successful comeback at Bowie. After that flare, even his best friends believed his riding days ended.

Today he turned in an effort best described as the "million-dollar ride." He rated Winged Heels in third position, moved at the right time and then refused to agree when Winged Heels apparently was ready to toss in the sponge. Pikor went into the wire kicking like a little wild man.

The program had other heavy monetary angles. For instance, C. E. George of Washington, D. C., saddled his second longshot winner of the meeting when his Arch Boy ran away with the featured Cumberland Purse. Arch Boy paid $53.80 and was strongly handled by Apprentice Johnny Regalbuto.

Arch Boy swung to the front and refused to back up, leading Mrs. J. B. Hatfield's Mi Scandal and R. B. Archer's Cape Cod, Jr., into the line, stepping the about 7 furlongs in 1:26 4-5.

Two well-played horses figured in a $40.60 payoff on the 5 and 3 combination in the daily double. Sylvia Huyett's Frank's Moose took the first at $4.80 under the handling of Willie Downs, while R. N. Boerner's Quick News, Sammy Palumbo up, accounted for the second at $6:40.

At Charles Town

DEAR FOLKS: The press box gang was discussing the public address systems at various tracks and laughing about funny cracks made by announcers. One recalled was concerning a horse named Robert E. Lee who delayed the start at Laurel one day and a certain fat guy sang into the mike, "We're Waiting on the Robert E. Lee." The yarn I like, however, comes from a Midwest track where a railroad was along the backstretch. A long freight was passing as the horses reached the straightaway and the announcer chanted, "so—and—so in front by five boxcars." Then there was the time a slightly beered-up P. A. man yelled, "They're off: That's my horse in front. Who cares about the others."—BILL.

For N. L. Batting Title

It's Official Now: Robinson Beats Out Musial by 4 Points

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—As had been strongly suspected, Jackie Robinson of the champion Brooklyn Dodgers led the National League in batting for the 1949 season with an average of .342, nosing out his closest rival, Stan Musial of St. Louis, by four percentage points.

Official averages released today show that the great Negro second-basemen, recently voted the most valuable player in the circuit, also led all league rivals in stolen bases, with 37, and tied Marty Marion of St. Louis for the most sacrifices, 17.

Musial, in addition to posting his .338 batting average, led the senior league in base hits with 207 to Robinson's 203, compiled the most total bases, 382, the most doubles, 41, and tied his teammate, Enos Slaughter, for the most triples, 13.

American Frosh Whip Tech, 43-40

The American University freshman basketball team withstood a McKinley Tech High rally and won, 43-40, last night at Uline Arena.

Tech whittled an eight-point A.U. lead to one point in the last minute, but Bob Jones sank a one-hander to insure the Eagle victory. A.U. frosh have a 3-1 record while Tech has 2-1.

Little Priory Makes Big Stir In School Basketball Circles

By Bill Gilbert

Priory High, a small school with a small basketball team, is fast elbowing its way into the big time of local scholastic circles.

The school on the hill in Northeast, which fielded its first basketball team in 1946, is creating a stir around the town after its 50-36 win over Eastern on Tuesday.

In addition to its win over Eastern, Priory has beaten St. Paul's, Kendall and Quantico High School while losing only to Montgomery Blair by a 46-42 margin.

Big gun of the Priory squad is Bernie Foley, a 5-foot 6-inch guard. He sets up the plays for the boys and is a good ball handler as well as a steady scorer from inside and outside. Bernie's brother, Jack, a 5-foot 10-inch senior, is the set shot artist.

Bruce Warring, 5-foot 11-inch forward, is the most improved man on the squad, according to Coach Bob Dwyer. Bruce has worked his way from the second string to the starting five. His specialities are hook shots and layups. He's also one of the better defensive men on the team.

Center Jerry Eckholm, 15-year-old soph, has been a surprise performer for Priory. In the Eastern upset, the 6-foot youngster led the scoring with 15 points.

A good all-around performer is Joe Hayden, veteran guard, who has played four years of varsity ball. Joe is only 5 feet 9 inches tall and teams up with Bernie Foley in setting up the plays.

One reason for Priory's sudden burst into bloom is that of the 72 boys enrolled in the all-boy school, 36, exactly one half, play either freshman, junior varsity or varsity basketball.

Metro League Names Stars

The Southwest Merchants and the Langdon Lions both placed six men on the Metropolitan Amateur Football League's All-Star team, announced last night.

Southwest and Langdon battled to a five-period scoreless tie last Sunday and the league has rescheduled another game this Sunday for the league championship.

FIRST TEAM

Honors Grid Team

Redskin Coach Herman Ball and Max Farrington, director of athletics at George Washington, were main speakers last night at a Landon School Father and Son banquet at which 25 varsity and 22 junior varsity players were awarded monograms.

Tony Popolaski, Hopkins Receive Bethesda Prizes

Tony Popolaski and George Hopkins dominated the Bethesda Country Club awards banquet last night, each receiving two trophies.

Poplaski won the club championship with Jerry Hart gaining the runner-up's prize. Popolaski also got the runner-up award in the President's Cup which was won by Alan Sherier.

Hopkins was the recipient of the Bethesda Bowl as well as one of three hole-in-one trophies. The other two hole-in-one trophies went to John Shearon and Chet Wiggin.

Lady Marksman Tops 3 Army Sergeants

Betty Balinger of the Arlington Rifle Club topped 41 men and another woman to win last night's District Rifle League shoot with a 288x300.

Three master sergeants from Fort Belvoir helped Fort Belvoir take team honors with an 1130x1200 score. Sergeant Boarright had 284 to finish second to Miss Balinger. Sergeants Wade and Wolf tied for third, each posting 283s at the National Capital Club

Harvard Meets Hoyas On Saturday

Washington's collegiate basketball season reaches its pre-holiday peak Saturday night with an Ivy-tinged doubleheader at the National Guard Armory.

In the 8 o'clock curtain-raiser, Harvard, charter-member of the Big Three, puts Georgetown's undefeated record to a rigid test.

Virginia, which prides itself as the "Ivy League school of the South," tackles once-beaten George Washington in the nightcap.

With only a 68-70 loss to Navy at Annapolis separating them from a perfect record, the Harvards come here with a good claim to the Boston area championship. They've already beaten Boston University, Boston College and Tufts.

Norman Shepard, former North Carolina coach, is in his first year at the Harvard helm. He's banking on 6-foot, 6-inch Eddie Smith and 6-foot, 4-inch John Rockwell, last year's leading scorer, to spoil the Hoyas' record.

Led by Tommy O'Keefe, its clever set shot and ball-handling artist, Georgetown shoots for its fifth victory. O'Keefe dropped in 21 points against Penn State the other night, and got a strong helping hand from hard-driving Johnny Brown, who slammed in 19. Tallest Hoya is 6-foot, 5-inch John Mazziotta, hookshot specialist.

After opening up with four straight victories, Virginia has tapered off with two straight losses, to Duke and Navy. But they hold a 10-point win over Maryland, and with Center Joe Noertker in there pitching the Cavaliers could give the Colonials plenty of trouble.

Six-foot, three-inch Noertker scored 442 points last year, finishing second in the Nation only to Yale's great Tony Lavelli.

Churchmen Discuss Protestant Unity . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

RELIGIOUS STRATEGY CONFERENCE—High Protestant church officials sit at a table in Seabury House, Greenwich, Conn., where a three-day conference aimed at unity among the Nation's Protestant churches is underway. They are (from left) the Rev. Dr. Theodore O. Wedel, Canon of Washington Cathedral and Warden of the College of Preachers; Bishop John S. Stamm of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church; and Bishop J. Balmer Showers of Harrisburg, of the Evangelical United Brethren

Protestants Study Plans For Unity

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 15 (NYHT).—The conference on Protestant Church Union meeting here today began consideration of methods for achieving a united church.

The conference, being attended by 36 delegates, observers and consultants representing nearly 20 million Protestant churchgoers, set up three committees to study some of the problems and to draft a statement that can be submitted to the churches.

This statement is expected to include a declaration on the purposes behind the union movement and the steps that can be taken to accelerate unification. It is to be presented tonight to an executive session of the conference and made public here Saturday.

Delegates Fear "Freeze"

The conference is being sponsored by seven denominations that have already committed themselves to the principle of organic union—the Methodist Church, the Disciples of Christ, the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the Presbyterian Church in the USA, the Congregational Christian Churches, the Moravian Church, northern province, and the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

Delegates seem to fall into two classifications. There are those who believe steps should be taken immediately to unify the seven groups, and others who contend any plan ought to be broad enough for consideration of all Protestants.

The Rev. Samuel M. Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, pointed out that the second group feels union of the sponsors now might tend to "freeze out" others.

One Plan Proposed

The only concrete proposal that has come before the conference was made by the Rev. Charles C. Morrison, former editor of the Christian Century and official delegate of the Disciples of Christ.

This proposal, which Dr. Morrison suggested might serve as a basis for discussion, would operate at four levels. Local churches would continue as at present, with congregations retaining traditional forms of worship, but the diocese, or its equivalent, directed by bishops or superintendents, would derive authority from local churches.

Regional synods would serve as advisory bodies on regional matters, and a national federation of synods, made up of representatives of the regional synods, would be organized along the lines of the Federal Council.

Gen. Donovan Will Assist Cancer Drive

Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, wartime head of OSS, has accepted appointment as national chairman for the 14½-million-dollar 1950 drive of the American Cancer Society.

"Success of our program can mean a future free of cancer's agony and tragedy," Donovan said in accepting the chairmanship. "Advances already have been made but our achievement to date must not lessen our zeal to see the fight against cancer fought to complete victory."

Dr. George C. Ruhland, executive director of the District division, said 25 cents of every dollar goes to national research and 60 cents is retained by the District division from funds raised here for the District cancer control program.

"To save lives at once, the District division emphasized education to teach men and women the facts that will take them to a physician in time," Dr. Ruhland said. "To save lives in the future we must rely on a national research program—the greatest ever launched against one disease."

Cotton Referendum Approves Restoration of Rigid Controls

By The Associated Press

The Nation's cotton farmers voted yesterday to return to prewar production controls to hold down surplus of the fiber crop.

Nearly complete returns from an Agriculture Department referendum showed last night that roughly 90 percent of those voting favored such action. Approval by at least 66 2-3 percent of those voting was required.

The control program is designed to hold plantings in 1950 to 21 million acres, or about 23 percent less than was planted this year.

Each grower is given a marketing share. Sales in excess of a share will be subject to a penalty tax equal to slightly more than the prospective market price of cotton.

The last time controls were in effect was in 1941. They were voted for the 1942 crop, but were suspended because of the war.

Returns from 18 of the 20 cotton growing States gave 539,614 votes for controls and only 60,003 against.

At stake was a department proposal that marketing quotas be set up on the 1950 crop as a means of preventing the production of unmarketable supplies. The proposal was advanced because current supplies are far in excess of prospective market needs.

Government officials anxiously awaited outcome of the referendum. They recognized that defeat of the quotas could easily bring about a selling wave in the cotton and other farm commodities market today.

Rejection of quotas would require the department to cut the price support on the 1950 cotton crop from 90 percent to 50 percent, or from about 28 cents to about 15 cents a pound.

Inasmuch as cotton prices are down to support levels, any reduction in the price support could be expected to be reflected immediately in market prices.

The 21-million-acre planting goal has been divided among individual farmers. Some are not satisfied with their shares. The department has said it recognizes that there are some inequities, but contends it has no legal authority to correct them. Congress, they said, could act before planting time.

Cotton farmers have never rejected quotas. They have approved them six times, the last in 1942 by a majority of 86.2 percent.

TV Aerials 'Unsightly'

London, Dec. 15 (U.P.).—The London county council has ordered television set owners to move their aerials indoors because they are "unsightly."

Fight Controls, U. S. Insurance Men Urged

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Nation's life insurance executives were urged today to start an immediate fight against a controlled economy and "dissipation of the country's money."

Speakers at the annual meeting of the Life Insurance Association of America, including Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota, warned that "individual ownerships and managements would be pushed aside" if the Federal Government were not curbed in its trend toward collectivism.

Stassen, now president of the University of Pennsylvania, said a world-wide trend toward turning all authority over to hte government had been developing for a generation.

He added, however, he believed the American people would reverse the trend before it proceeded anohter generation."

Asa V. Call, president of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Los Angeles and outgoing president of the association, said the United States Government had "become predatory" and called on the industry to combat its policies of deficit financing, increasing subsidies and artificial price support of Government bonds.

The association, the legal and legislative research branch of the life insurance industry, was told the life companies boosted their sales in 1949 to $23,200,000,000 an apparent all-time high and a little above the 1948 total of $23,150,000,000.

The members elected Carroll M. Shanks, president of Prudential Insurance Co. of Newark, N. J., as president of the association for the coming year, succeeding Call.

New directors elected included Edwin W. Craig, president, National Life & Accident Insurance Co., Nashville, Tenn.

Why Do We Fight Against It?

We all sell something, we either sell our backs, our hands or legs, or we sell our minds and thoughts. When we sell strength of our bodies to a man or to a company, our labor is turned into profit out of which we must take a limited weekly salary and be content with an uncertain future. However, if we direct our minds and thoughts into the right channel, there is no limit to the earnings that can be enjoyed. There is good money in sales-work, if you have something worthwhile to sell and any man can learn to sell if he is willing to apply himself to the job of selling. There is stability and continuous employment, too, if you are fortunate enough to make contacts with a liberal and well-established company and that is very important.

We are prepared to show you security and weekly earnings that will surprise you and then teach you every phase of the business. The short period of training may be worth thousands of dollars to you and yet it will not cost you a dime. Give us your mind and thoughts for 3 days and you will be prepared to "Go it" alone with confidence and assurance. If you are game enough to put this to a test, apply in person at

MEN READ CAREFULLY

Saturday morning at 9 sharp, I want to talk to 20 men who are really ambitious in securing a position that will give them steady employment the year 'round. In other words, there are no laying-off periods, and consistent income is the income that really counts. It doesn't matter what your past employment has been, all we ask is that you be willing to study and learn as we teach you our work. It will also be necessary that you be willing to get along on $75 to $85 per week for the first 4 or 6 weeks while learning our work. A car is essential. You must also be able to give the names of 3 people who will vouch for your honesty and integrity. We prefer men who are married or men who have some measure of responsibility. I would also like to talk to a few men who are mechanically inclined and who know a good thing when they see it. Therefore, if you are honest and of good character, willing worker, neat in appearance, come and talk with me.

Old Paintings Sought For Sesqui Art Show

Have you a fine old American historical painting hanging on a wall at home?

If so, and you are willing to loan it, Herman W. Williams, jr., Corcoran Art Gallery director, would appreciate hearing from you.

This is the message Williams sent yesterday to all Americans as he launched his search for the Nation's "most important" historical works for next summer's sesquicentennial American art show that will be held in the Corcoran Gallery.

Williams said he is especially interested in obtaining the significant paintings now in private hands which the public has never seen.

But the director made clear the gallery is seeking something more than "paintings of battles and inaugurations." He is more interested in canvasses on such events as Yankee shipping, the Gold Rush and other important moments in American history.

There are other stipulations. Portraits will be excluded, since the National Gallery of Art will have a concurrent sesqui exhibition of American portraits.

Accepted privately owned works must be of the highest quality, the painting must be generally contemporary with the event it depicts.

"We don't want artists, good though they be, who dipped into their imagination and came up with fanciful, inaccurate pictures," Williams commented.

Besides a Nation-wide search for privately owned works, Corcoran has sent out requests for material throughout art magazines.

The Daughters of the American Revolution have volunteered to unearth little-known treasures.

The gallery, recently granted $100,000 to finance the art display, expects the show to include about 300 works.

One amusement park operator has withdrawn an offer to run the Sesquicentennial's fun section because of delay in acting on his proposal, it became known yesterday.

The withdrawal came from Harry Batt, head of Pontchartrain Beach at New Orleans, and two others associated with him, according to a Billboard magazine story confirmed last night by a Sesqui official.

The Secret of Personal Power

Sometimes Listening's Better Than Talking

(A condensation of the book "Live a New Life," Doubleday & Co., Inc. Copyright by David Guy Powers. All rights reserved.)

Chapter Six

DR. THOMAS SHANAHAN, a well-known New York dentist, picked up his phone one day and was startled by the threats shouted at him.

An assistant had extracted a woman's tooth, and the husband was coming in to slaughter Shanahan. Her face had swollen, and the irate husband was going to make the doctor's face match it.

Sure enough, a few minutes later a burly man brushed his way into the doctor's inner office and proceeded to vent his rage. Dr. Shanahan listened patiently and offered no rebuttal as he went on and on.

Finally the man felt slightly foolish and yelled, "Haven't you got anything to say for yourself? Well, what are you looking at?"

"That loose tooth you've got there," murmured Shanahan. "Must be bothering you a bit, isn't it?"

"Oh"—he hesitated—"yeah, Doc. Meant to come and see you about that."

"Let's take a look at it. Maybe we can save it."

In a moment he was in the dentist's chair—a place where no man is brave—and Shanahan was in control. Interested listening had disarmed the man.

After all, his complaint concerned only his wife's jaw, and this was his own tooth.

Use Understanding

IF you would win anyone to your cause, you must give him sympathetic understanding.

It will enable you to avoid problems, and to win the people who might be problems.

Aristotle called it "empathy," the ability to feel the emotional intensity stirring others. Modern psychological thought has experimentally proved the value of this force.

What is "empathy?"

It's the feeling you get when you try to help your ball in a pinball machine. You become so identified with the ball that you sometimes tilt the machine.

Dr. Shanahan used emphathy with his violent visitor. He knew the fellow needed to blow off steam, and he also knew that a tooth must be bothering him.

So he identified himself with the man and simply said to him, "Let's take a look at it. Maybe we can save it."

He was helping to solve a problem that had been on this man's mind for a long time.

Try Listening

THE foremost technique in developing a sense of emphathy is one you can start using right now. It is creative listening. It will solve more problems and avoid more difficulties that any attitude known to man.

Let the other man talk and talk and talk.

"Whether it is an informal settlement or a formal arbitration proceeding, that is what I always do—listen," said Charles L. Eidlitz, the wise peacemaker of the electrical industry. "I encourage both sides to get everything off their chests. I never shut a man off, whether he is talking to the point or not. I never exclude any evidence, relevant or irrelevant."

Sincere listening is a forerunner of understanding. Especially is this true when you disagree.

This was an important element in the happy relationship of President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

"When we sometimes differed on important questions," said the renowned wartime Secretary of State, "the President never showed impatience as I argued the opposite side. He listened attentively through to the end, without interrupting. Each of us learned in due time to omit elaborate argument where one of us knew that the other, after full opportunity for consideration, entertained definite convictions."

Habit of Silence

WHEN Lloyd George was conducting negotiations with the French after World War I, he carried a group of interpreters with him, although he understood French perfectly.

He wanted to pick up cues not intended for him. He knew that expressions would convey moods, and translations would add time for consideration. He wanted to listen twice.

"The silent man heareth many confessions," wrote Bacon, the scholar of human nature, "for who will open himself to a blab or a blabber? Talkers are commonly vain and credulous; for he that talketh what he knoweth, will also talk what he knoweth not; therefore, set it down, that a habit of silence is both politic and moral."

It says, "Oh, Lord, help me to keep my big mouth shut."

Nothing is more important in one who would lead men. Keep what you hear to yourself. Don't violate a confidence. Don't become a carrier.

How Can You Lead?

PERHAPS you are thinking, "If I'm always listening, how can I influence anyone?"

The answer is that leadership is more than being out in front. That is mere physical leadership. Intellectual leadership directs the thoughts, actions, and plans of others.

It is the leadership of top management and the high command. Applied to you personally, it is the imprint you leave on those who come under your jurisdiction.

Moreover, creative listening is a skill to be acquired. To resolve to listen is not enough. You must patiently practice it.

You have to be alive, alert, and attentive. As Cicero said, "with ears outstretched."

But more, you must direct your energies as a cat concentrates on a bird before he springs. All your talents must be focused on the immediate work in hand. For no noisy cat ever caught a bird, much less a cat who worried about how his tail looked as he sprang.

If you would lead men, do this:

1. Let the other man talk and talk and talk.
2. Listen, listen, and then—listen.
3. Practice the skill of silence—and the art of understanding.

Beyond the Sea

Some day my ship will touch the bay . . . And I shall leave the sea . . . To take you in my arms again . . . And hold you close to me . . . Beyond the whipping of the wind . . . The lashing of the waves . . . And all the haunting images . . . Of deep and sodden graves . . . No more will there be loneliness . . . Along a distant shore . . . With empty streets and hollow sounds . . . That echo through a door . . . But I shall sit beside you when . . . The fireplace is warm . . . Surrounded by the walls of love . . . Against whatever storm . . . And I shall whisper all the hopes . . . And dreams that sailed with me . . . Beyond the blue horizon and . . . The reaches of the sea.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1949

DAUGHTER DIANA and her cat, Abdullah, are interested spectators as Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, jr., steals a few moments from her work to wrap Christmas gifts

Her Career and Her Dresses Are Both Made-to-Order

This is the last in a series of six articles on Washington women who combine a career with homemaking.

By Lucia Brown

"MADE-TO-ORDER" dresses are the heart of a career that seems made-to-order for the woman with a home and family.

It's one that has worked out successfully for chic and charming Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, jr., of Georgetown.

The whole thing started three summers ago when she got an idea for monogrammed linen frocks. Since then, her list of customers has snowballed until now she's turning out dozens of gowns that will star at Washington's smartest parties this Christmas.

The wife of a physician and mother of three youngsters, tawny-haired Mrs. Hardin lives in a tall row house at 3028 P st. nw. It was built in 1810, and remodeled so attractively by the Hardins several years ago that it is sometimes included in Georgetown's annual homes' tour.

The interior—done principally in shades of green with pale peach, ivory, and rich brown for contrast—reflects Mrs. Hardin's gift for color and line. So do her own clothes, ideally suited to her slender, titian beauty. It was this flair that led to her career as designer-dressmaker.

Built Up Business Together

ACTUALLY, Mrs. Hardin does little of the sewing herself. After she dreamed up her idea for linen dresses, she employed Mrs. Audrey Ivy, a skilled dressmaker, to come and make them in a workroom in the Hardin home. Together, they have built up the business.

Here's the way it goes: Suppose you see a picture of a handsome gown but don't know where to buy one like it. Or suppose you want to look particularly well for a special occasion but can't seem to pick out a dress that "does anything for you." Mrs. Hardin will act as consultant, adapting the design you have selected or suggesting something that will bring out your best features. Mrs. Ivy will make it, using either your own material or fabrics ordered through Mrs. Hardin. Right now, one of the interesting dresses they're working on is fashioned of an Indian sari that a customer had packed away in mothballs.

As an office, Mrs. Hardin uses one of the bedrooms in the house—a pretty room with open fireplace, pale peach walls and big white shag rug.

Children All in School

THE three Hardin children—sandy-haired youngsters with fetching dashes of freckles—are all in school. The two boys, Laurie and Teddy, attend St. Albans, and Diana, "almost 8 years old," goes to Potomac School.

Mrs. Hardin says she's had no particular training for her work. She is from Pittsfield, Mass., attended Miss Hall's School there and Miss Master's School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., but didn't specialize in art or designing. It's just that she knows and likes lovely clothes.

"The only trouble is that now I never can get anything made for myself," she laughs. "Everybody said when I started that I'd be my own best customer, but it certainly hasn't worked out that way!"

Market Memo

Sweets Make a Honey of a Yule Gift

THE MAKINGS for many Christmas good things are delightfully plentiful this year, the Department of Agriculture reports.

A HONEY of a Yuletide can be yours, with an extra large supply of the bee sweetening available. Use it in candy, cakes, and cookies for extra flavor.

HONEY NOUGAT is a welcome treat. Boil 3 cups sugar, ½ cup honey and 2/3 cup hot water together to the "soft-ball" stage. Remove 2/3 cup and beat into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Cook the rest of the syrup to the "hard-crack" stage before adding to mixture. As it thickens beat in 2/3 cup chopped nuts and 2/3 cup chopped citron or chopped candied cherries.

RAISINS can be used with a lavish hand this year. There are almost 15,000 tons more in this country than last year. Tree nuts are plentiful, too—almonds, pecans, filberts and walnuts.

FOR THIS WEEKEND you'll find fresh pork still the thriftiest meat buy. Abundant vegetables include various greens, yellow and white squash, broccoli, cauliflower and celery. String beans are scarce, following the Florida freeze. Oranges and apples are cheaper than last year and plenty of tangerines are on deck.

Scandinavians Celebrate Yule

MEMBERS of he embassy staffs of the Scandinavian countries met for their annual Christmas buffet supper and dance last night in the Louis Sieze Room of the Shoreham Hotel. Elovius Mangor, Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy, was in charge of arrangements. There were about 100 who attended.

Husband's Affair With Wife's Sister Years Ago Leaves Problem in Its Wake; The Man Refuses to Join Clan Gathering at Christmas

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About eight years ago my husband had an affair with a sister of mine when she was staying with us. At the time he said he loved her more than he cared for me—but she took it upon herself to leave and we have stayed together since.

My sister went home to my parents and Edward told me later that he was sorry about the whole thing. He said it was all a mistake. I love him and I think he loves me—but the affair leaves a problem in its wake.

My parents will celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary at Christmas and my brother insists that all of us must join in the occasion, but my husband flatly refuses to go. It is because of my sister that he won't go. She lives there.

Edward says he will keep the children here and I can go, but the children want to go, and he and I have always been together with the children at Christmas. What should I do? Should I take the children and go without him? Or go alone, leaving them with him? Or just stay home, all of us? I would like very much for the whole family to go—and Edward's attitude is very disappointing. Please give me your advice on the problem. A. C.

Sense of Shame Is Commendable

DEAR A. C.: All things considered, your complaint seems astoundingly shallow or childish, as if you lacked the range of feeling and understanding that a woman of your experience should have—after weathering the emotional storm that accounts for Edward's flat refusal to face your sister again in the bosom of her assembled family.

It would be my assumption that Edward's balkiness in this instance does him credit, and that it should enhance your regard for him, because it signifies a sense of shame about his affair with your sister—a mistake for which he feels much to blame, even though she may have conspired to promote it. And when a man is thus sensitive to his sins, it means that he has elements of decency in his character.

If Edward could go unblushing, untroubled in mind, with you and the children to a family festival where your sister is sure to be, he would be too hardboiled, too brassy and brutish in nature to be a lovable husband and father. It has been possible for you to [illegible] with him and love him despite the wretched affair because he is humanly sentimental and sensitive to moral principles, not grossly animal in nature, as his current anxiety proves.

EDWARD'S willingness to help you make any plans for the visit, short of going himself, suggests a spirit of affectionate friendliness in your mutual dealings. Also your report that you've always shared Christmas with him and the children, and your wistful desire to have his company this year too, reflect favorably on the substance of his married behavior.

Thus, since you value his allegiance and have a pleasant relationship, I advise against making an issue of his present attitude. I think you will find it a good investment in domestic harmony the year round, to respect his unspoken feelings in this matter. And the fact that you have young children and would have to travel by bus or train in holiday traffic, is a logical, sensible excuse for staying home at Christmas time.

However, I am not saying that you personally should relinquish the visit, if you have the poise to go alone as a tribute to your parents, and if the trip can be made in a few hours. If you can arrange to spend Christmas Eve and Christmas morning with your husband and children, and leave Christmas day to reach your parents' home that evening for the celebration, and then start back the following morning, the whole situation would be gracefully handled beyond criticism. M. H.

FASHION for 1949-50 shows a marked Far Eastern influence that is being felt in the fields of design, fabric and color. One example is the brilliant yellow quilted silk mandarin lounge suit, modeled here by Marilyn Earls of the George Washington University Players. Miss Earls is a member of the cast of "The Yellow Jacket," which opened last night, continues through Saturday, at Lisner Auditorium. Curtain time is 8:30 p. m. Fashions are by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Spiced Peaches Can Be Made By Short Cut

Here is a quick recipe for making "Spiced Peaches." You start with a can of cling peach halves and heat them with a little sugar, vinegar and spice. Then, lo and behold, in no time at all you have spiced peaches ready to serve with your holiday meals.

SPICED PEACHES

1 No. 2½ can peach halves
¾ cup granulated sugar
½ cup vinegar
2 (3-inch) sticks cinnamon
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 teaspoon whole allspice

Drain syrup from peaches. Combine syrup, sugar, vinegar and spices and boil 5 minutes. Add peach halves and simmer gently about 5 minutes or until fruit is heated through. Allow fruit to remain in syrup for 24 hours before serving. Serve chilled.

Sparkling All-White Stones for Evenings

I was dazzled, at the opening of the opera in New York three weeks ago, by the fabulous diamonds worn by the audience — brilliant diamond necklaces, earrings, bracelets and clips.

The necklaces were particularly wonderful — lacy diamond collars, festoons and even diamond lariats casually looped around the neck. The smartest earrings were either the new swinging chandelier type or big lacy rosettes that nearly cover the ear.

Diamond clips to match were worn two together at one side of strapless bodices, and bracelets—always flexible—were worn several at a time.

I've gone into detail about these wonderful diamond fashions because you can match them, fashion-for-fashion, in sparkling all-white rhinestones, which will look just as smart with your evening clothes.

Government Aide to Wed In Connecticut

The marriage of Miss Mary Witherspoon Hoyt and Lawrence Merritt Connell will take place December 30 in Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, Greenwich, Conn., followed by a reception at the Round Hill Club.

Miss Hoyt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Hoyt of Greenwich, and Mr. Connell, who is with the State Department in Washington, is the son of Mrs. Theodore S. Mead of Haverford, Pa., and of the late Lawrence Merritt Connell of Scranton.

The prospective bride has selected for her wedding attendants Miss Mary L. Connell of Sarasota, Fla., Mr. Connell's sister, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Douglas W. Lefferts of Port Chester, N. Y., as matron of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth C. Howard of New York, Miss Phyllis Bessemer Hughes of Washington, and Miss Joyce B. Kissock of New York.

Phelps M. Connell of Haverford, Pa., will be best man for his brother, and the ushers will be Capt. Michael M. Conrad of Kirkland Field, N. Mex.; G. d'Andelot Belin, jr., of Cambridge, Mass.; W. Lawson Chamberlin of Waverly, Pa.; William W. Scranton of Dalton, Pa.; Robert W. Skiff of Washington; George K. Tanham of Pasadena, Calif., and Wellington Vandeveer of Morris Plains, N. J.

Miss Hoyt is a member of the New York Junior League. She was graduated from Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield, Mass., and from Smith College. Her fiance is an alumnus of the Hotchkiss School, attended Williams College with the class of 1939, and was graduated from Stanford University, where he also received the degree of master of arts.

Annual Military Fete Held Minus Honoree

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

THE MILITARY of Washington were invited to a reception yesterday to meet the United States Chief of Staff. Invitations were issued by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. S. LeRoy Irwin, in honor of Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins and Mrs. Collins. Due to illness Gen. and Mrs. Collins could not be present, and Lieut. Gen. Wade Hampton Haislip, the Vice Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Haislip received in their place.

It was an annual function, held between the hours of 6:30 and 8:30 o'clock at the Officers Club at Fort Lesley J. McNair. All the military attaches and chiefs of foreign military missions and their wives attended. Flags of 64 nations were arranged alphabetically at the end of the long ballroom where the party was held.

Among the 450 guests who attended were Gen. Sir William Morgan, Commander of the British Army Staff; Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Paul Ely, Brig. Gen. Jacques de la Boisse, Military Attache of the French Embassy, and Maj. Gen. Estanislao J. Lopez of the Inter-American Defense Board, and Senora de Lopez.

Also, Maj. Count Yvan Du Monceau de Bergendal, Military and Air Attache of Belgium, and Countess Du Monceau de Bergendal; the Military Attache of Brazil, Maj. Gen. Edgar do Amaral, and Senhora do Amaral; Air Vice Marshal H. L. Campbell, RCAF, and Mrs. Campbell; the Military Attache of Thailand, Lieut. Col. M. C. Nitas Chirapravati, and Mme. Nitas Chirapravati, and Maj. Gen. Ivan A. Bolshakov, Military Attache of the Soviet Union, and Mme. Bolshakov.

Clarence Hewes Host at Luncheon

MRS. PAUL HEALY of New York and Palm Beach was entertained yesterday at a luncheon given by Clarence Hewes. And the day before, Mr. Hewes was host at a dinner honoring Miss Carolina Nabuco, sister of the Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco.

Capt. and Mrs. Anton Mare entertained last evening at a small dinner for Admiral and Mrs. E. W. Burrough and Admiral and Mrs. Richard Whitehead.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Coffin asked a few close friends in yesterday for a "Tom and Jerry," a specialite de la maison which Mr. Coffin prepared from his own recipe. In January Mr. and Mrs. Coffin will give another party, their first large entertainment since their marriage last summer.

Diplomats Honored At Cafritz Party

THE Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Erkin and the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer were honor guests at the dinner last evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz. There was music after dinner, with Mme. Erkin, a lyric soprano, and Senora de Berckemeyer, mezzosoprano, asked to sing.

Embassy of Israel Observes Chanukkoh

THE staff of the Embassy of Israel celebrated "Chanukkoh"—the Feast of Lights—at the embassy last evening, commemorating the victories of Judas Maccabeus and the miraculous rededication of the Temple. The feast lasts eight days, and the first of eight candles was lighted last night. The Foreign Minister of Israel, Moshe Sharett, who is on a visit to Washington, was present.

Luncheon Honors Last Year's Deb

MRS. JOHN CHRISTIAN HOLMES is entertaniing at a luncheon on Wednesday, December 28, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Henry, who made her debut last December 31 at the Washington Club. The luncheon will be held in Mrs. Holmes' apartment at 1911 R street.

Mrs. Gabriel Hostess At Chevy Chase Club

MRS. JEAN PIERRE GABRIEL was hostess to 22 guests at luncheon yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of Miss Drucie Snyder and Mrs. Jerre Boggs. Miss Snyder is the daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder. Her engagement to Maj. John Horton was recently announced. Mrs. Boggs, a recent bride, was Miss Adelina Copello.

Elkins' Daughters Home for Christmas

FORMER Senator and Mrs. David Elkins' "chicks" started arriving home for the holidays yesterday. First home is Maureen, a student at Ogontz School; then young Davis, who attends the University of Colorado, and Katherine, who's studying law in Boston. Joining them for Christmas will be John Rocca of Boston, who is a student at Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. Elkins will have a few of their children's friends for dinner Christmas night with dancing afterward.

Mrs. Effingham Townsend is already in Coconut Grove, Fla., to spend Christmas with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw, and their young son, Sandy.

DATE-BOOK DATA:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Ellis are among those entertaining at dinner preceding the debut ball of Miss Sylvia Nabuco, niece of the Brazilian Ambassador, on Tuesday evening.

The Military Attache of the Pakistan Embassy, Brig. N. A. K. Raza, and Mrs. Raza, will give a cocktail party this afternoon at their home on Fessenden st.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris will be hosts at dinner Saturday evening at the Lindens, their home on Kalorama rd.

Miss Reichman Engaged

The engagement of Miss Susan Reichman to Kurt Berlin has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Reichman of New York. Mr. Berlin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hersh Berlin of Washington.

Miss Reichman attended Brooklyn College and received her master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Berlin attended the school of foreign service at Georgetown University and served with Counter Intelligence Service in the Pacific area. He is presently employed as a civilian with Army Intelligence, and he is also a student at American University.

The wedding will take place in the spring, and the couple will make their home in Washington.

Treasury Executive Off to Mississippi

Nancy Robinson (Mrs. Joseph F. Robinson), director of the Women's Division, United States Savings Bond Division, Treasury Department, left yesterday for Meridian, Miss., where she will attend the wedding on Saturday of her niece, Miss Neville Duke, and Osborne Polk Collins.

She will spend Christmas at her home in Jackson, Miss., and on December 26 will attend the debut of her niece, Miss Frances Peake, at the Debutante Club of Mississippi ball. Mrs. Robinson will have open house on New Year's Day for her niece.

Mother-in-law Praises Her Wonderful Desserts!

I'VE NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT ELLA!

Have a Glamorous Dessert Tonight with Reddi-wip

The very first meal I served my new "mother-in-law" brought loud praise. She couldn't understand how I could serve such glamorous desserts with no fuss or bother—without beaters or bowls to wash.

The answer—Reddi-wip. Made with pure, rich cream, it "whips itself." Turns simplest desserts into party treats.

It's economical, too. 31 servings in the throw-away container. Get Reddi-wip today from your favorite grocer or milkman. Keep it in your refrigerator. Use it daily to add interest to all your meals—to win compliments from your family and guests.

About Starting a Home Business

Would you please if you can, tell me where I could get some information on starting a small catering business? I cook large dinners for my church, I also do the buying and plan all the menus, so I think I might as well do a little of it so that I can keep some of the money for myself. E. P.

"How to Make a Home Business Pay" by Julietta K. Arthur (Prentice-Hall, Inc., N. Y.) is a book which is filled with workable suggestions for starting a catering as well as many other kinds of home businesses. Very fittingly the author dedicates the book "To all women who have backbones instead of wishbones."

The book is divided into two parts, "Open Doors to Opportunity" and "How to Stay in Business." In the first part are listed many types of business which can be gainfully pursued at home, with suggestions for conducting such businesses. At the close of each chapter is a section titled "If You Want to Know More" which gives innumerable sources for additional information on the subject discussed in the preceding chapter. Also, after each chapter is a complete case history of a successful business. These case histories are a step-by-step reporting of actual home industries complete even to such details as the bookkeeping method used. Probably the most helpful section in these case histories is the one in which the business woman gives specific advice to others hoping to enter a field similar to hers.

Listed in the book are many specific ideas for home businesses. Under the heading "If You Can Cook" are suggestions for developing eight different businesses with cooking as the basis. Some of these are "Canapes and snacks for cocktail parties," "party boxes for students away at school," "hot dinners delivered to people who can't or don't cook."

The book can be purchased at most bookstores.

I have an imported cashmere sweater which I do not intend to store at any season of the year. How can I guard against moths? I simply keep the sweater in a bureau drawer when I am not wearing it. Could I use some sort of spray? How should it be stored if I do put it away? A. C.

Some dry cleaning firms mothproof garments as they clean them. For instance, one of the cleaning firms in the Shirlington Shopping Center, which is near you, offers this service. This mothproofing will last for six months or until the garment is dry cleaned again.

If you wash the sweater yourself, you could spray it after each washing with one of the moth preventive sprays on the market, but this should not be necessary unless you have been much troubled with moths. Moths do not usually damage fabrics which are in use and are frequently washed. As a precaution it would be a good idea to spray all the cracks on the inside of the drawer to remove any larvae which may be lying in wait.

If you put the sweater away, it should be cleaned, either washed or dry cleaned, just before storing. Spray it well with a good moth preventive and place it in a mothproof bag.

We have just bought a house. I would like to carpet the downstairs. Knowing it is an expensive proposition, I would like to find some information as to how to determine what kind of carpet is good, which wears well, which shows dirt least, etc. Do you know any place I can get such information? R. S.

A bulletin which would be helpful to you is "Floor Coverings—Better Buymanship, Use, and Care" issued by the Consumer Education Department, Household Finance Corp., 919 N. Michigan ave., Chicago 11, Ill. This bulletin contains a complete discussion of factors to be considered in selecting a rug such as color, design, materials used in rugs, and how they are made. Whether or not you get your money's worth is determined not only by selection but its care. Recognizing this, the bulletin contains complete sections on laying, daily and periodic cleaning, and methods used for professional cleaning. Also, there is a discussion on moth and insect protection.

The bulletin can be obtained by writing the Household Finance Corp. at the above address. Send 5 cents for mailing costs.

Can you suggest how to remove or lessen the odor of rubber substitute from a rubber foam pillow? I have aired it and sunned it and let it be rained on, and have used air deodorizer spray on it, to no avail. Except for the odor which is offensive to me, it is a delightful pillow to use. E. W.

Foam rubber pillows are made in two halves which are fastened together with cement. Since foam rubber itself is odorless, the odor you object to is probably coming from this cement. To remove the odor do this: Remove the fabric cover from the pillow and wash the foam rubber in clear, warm water to which ordinary baking soda has been added. Use a tablespoon of soda to a quart of water. After the soda water has been squeezed through and through the rubber, place the pillow where it can drip and turn an electric fan on it to hasten drying. Do not dry in the sun.

While it dries, wash the outer cover in mild soap and water, taking care to rinse several times to remove every trace of soap. Dry it and return to the dried pillow.

Would you please tell me how to care for velveteen and velvet? The skirt of my black velveteen suit has become shiny at the seat. What can be done about that? Also, how can velveteen be pressed? C. J. S.

You may be able to remove the shine by brushing it with a stiff brush while damp. Continue to brush it as it dries.

Velveteen can be pressed by placing it on a heavily padded board and using a warm iron on the reverse side of the fabric. Do not use much pressure. As you press, sponging it with a damp cloth will help to improve the appearance.

Youth Centers in Germany Teach Democracy the Easy Way—Through U.S. Games

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LIEUT. GEN. CLARENCE HUEBNER, commanding general of the United States Army Europe (or to the initial-minded, USAREUR), during a recent flash-visit to Washington took time out to tell about the German youth activities organization.

The GYA was launched unpretentiously about four years ago by GIs who, in off hours, gathered small batches of forlorn German kids and commenced showing them how to play American games.

This idea snowballed until today, some 800,000 teen-age expellees and Germans are being profitably as well as painlessly indoctrinated into democracy as it is practiced in the USA.

One GI summed the GYA aims as follows: "If, from all this mess of kids, we get only half a dozen who learn the meaning of independence and later become leaders, we will have accomplished our mission."

Youth Centers Are Havens

GI'S ALONE couldn't carry on the increasingly complex program. Wives, other females among the 39,000 United States dependents living in Germany, stepped in and 300 centers were set up throughout the American zone and Berlin. The centers are almost always in requisitioned buildings which the youngsters themselves have helped to repair. These warm spots, open day and night, are real havens to youngsters who must exist in unheated rooms and often in damp cellars of bombed-out houses. They can study as well as play at the centers, and read books from libraries made specially available. Besides games, they're taught all sorts of things: English manual trades, sewing and knitting.

Approach to these kids, children of professional as well as laboring-class parents, is psychologically interesting. To foster community spirit, the children elect their own officers, make their own bylaws. The girls, when they're given materials with which to make clothes or household items, have to make three identical articles. The first is for a child who is poorer and less well off; the second is sold to pay for zippers, hooks, eyes and such, while the final creation is the maker's very own.

CARE Takes Over

ALL THIS costs money, of course. During the first years demands were met entirely from GI pockets. But the operation got beyond them and reluctantly, since the Army is pretty independent, outside contributions became a necessity.

Now CARE, because of its efficient know-how, is handling both GYA publicity, contributions and purchasing of materials. Naturally, money is needed, not only at Christmas but all year 'round. Checks should be made out to the General Clay Fund and mailed to CARE at 1344 Connecticut ave.

Incidentally, it's wonderful, as well as pathetic, to see some of the articles contrived in GYA centers—ruffled confirmation dresses made from dotted Swiss window curtains, tablecovers, embroidered in gay wools from burlap flour sacks; sweaters knit in charming Bavarian and Tyrolean designs.

Kansas-born General Huebner is specially able at pleading the GYA cause because he earned his generalship the hard way—up through the ranks. Without benefit of West Point or other military preparation he enlisted as a private back in 1910.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University and national chairman of the Citizens Reorganization Committee which pow-wowed in Washington earlier last week, tells a pleasing story about the general.

One day chatting on this and that, a taxidriver asked Johnson if he knew General Huebner. When Bob Johnson replied in the affirmative, the driver, risking sudden destruction, turned around to grin at his fare.

"Say, he's the grandest guy. We used to go to high school together and, believe it or not, he never forgets. Whenever he comes to Philly, he calls me up, blows me to lunch or dinner."

Berards Announce a Birth

FROM Bonn comes a card announcing the birth on November 4 of a second daughter, Monique, to the Armand Berards. The amiable Armand, until last July French Minister in Washington, is now holding down the ticklish post of Deputy to France's High Commissioner Francois-Poncet. He and titian-haired Isabelle have settled in the Villa Hentzen, one of the handsome houses in the new capital of western Germany.

Junior Wins a Friend

MOST FOND parents have difficulty figuring out just what books are good for junior to read—books of sufficient appeal to wean the small growing mind from the wrapping complexities of comics.

Well Elizabeth Hamilton, authoress of a batch of juvenile tomes, has come up with an idea which lift's all responsibility. It's a personal book-shopping service which includes a book a month plus a Christmas gift bonus, each selected individually with age, sex, interests and foibles as criteria.

The "works" comes to $25 a year which includes mailing charges and exchange within five days should the brat own a duplicate. Mrs. Hamilton, who's wife of Minard Hamilton of the State Department, has turned out such junior best-sellers as "Go West, Young Bear," "The P Zoo," "The C Circus." In case the latter titles prove baffling to adult minds, animals in the "P Zoo" all have names which commence with the letter "P" and, of course, ditto with respect to C in the circus.

Helping Children With Christmas Shopping

Helping children with Christmas shopping can be fun or it can be a headache. Difficult enough at any time, shopping under the crowded conditions of stores at the Christmas period adds to parental trials and tribulations. Fathers and mothers experienced in chaperoning shopping trips have some hints for us.

First: Think through with the children the kinds of things they believe they want to buy. A little preparation of this sort assures a minimum of aimless wandering from section to section, counter to counter.

Second: Shop early in the day before too many other customers have crowded the aisles. Clerks are likely to be more helpful and congenial at this time of the day, too.

Third: Make the shopping period a short one. It is better to make two short trips than to drag one out until everyone is tired and peevish. Sometimes it is possible to break a shopping trip by going to a quiet place for a mid-morning snack.

Fourth: Whenever possible, do your shopping at smaller stores.

Undoubtedly, if you give a little thought to the way in which Christmas shopping with the children can be as pleasant as possible, you'll come up with other ideas, too.

Baroness Wed To U.S. Major In Civil Rite

Baron Renaud Ungern-Sternberg announces the marriage of his sister, Baroness Irene Mary Ungern-Sternberg, to Maj. Ralph Brewerton Jenkins, USMC (ret.) The civil ceremony took place yesterday in the office of Judge Nadine Gallagher.

The bride's first husband was Jan de Kucharzewski, nephew of the former Premier of Poland. She later married Albert James Myer, grandson of Gen. Albert J. Myer for whom Fort Myer was named.

Major Jenkins is the son of the late Dr. Ralph Jenkins, who was chairman of the National Red Cross during World War I.

Witnesses at the wedding included Charles K. Moser and Mrs. Moser (the former Princess Eristoff), Maj. Daniel Waters, Comdr. William Crawford, and Mrs. Fred French of New York City.

A reception for the bride and bridegroom was held last evening at the Sulgrave Club.

Cooking Cues . . .

Leftover vegetables can be added to canned soups. Green peas or snap beans are good in tomato soup. Carrots are excellent added to cream of mushroom.

Mix mashed turnips and carrots together for a flavor change; season with salt, freshly-ground pepper, celery salt and a dash of nutmeg.

Fresh pears make a delicious salad. Peel them just before serving, halve and core; fill the cavity in each half with a generous spoonful of thick commercially-prepared sour cream and dust lightly with paprika. Serve on a bed of watercress.

Christmas Shopping

With Peggy Preston

IT IS USUALLY easy to find gifts for your young friends, but it's Grandma and Great-Aunt Susan who can present a problem. These are the girls who generally—(not always, of course, bless 'em)—put on a bit of weight as the years go by, and have turned into stay-at-homes, preferring the luxury of their nice warm rooms to theaters and night clubs. What would they really like for Christmas?

Well, the other day at the new headquarters of the Stout-Slender Shop we saw some items that might fill the bill very nicely. There is a complete range of glove-silk rayon undies in sizes from 38 to 50.

There is also a pretty selection of lacy bedjackets, lounging robes, housecoats and stockings, in sizes sometimes hard to find.

BUT if you still have a lively teen-ager or a dashing young career gal to take care of on your list, you might be interested in a new novelty compact which may be found in the gift department of Raleigh Haberdasher. It looks like an ordinary gold-toned powder box, but inside, moving against the mirror is an automatic "windshield" wiper. The gadget, sliding up each time the top is opened cleans the mirror of powder—gives a clear view for grooming.

Lucky Clubhouse Gets All the Gifts When Democrats Play Santa

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

WHEN members of the Woman's National Democratic Club turn up at the annual Christmas party on Saturday at 7:30 p. m., they will be laden with gifts. Yet none will leave with a package. The recipient of all the presents will be the clubhouse itself, at 1526 New Hampshire ave. nw.

In the collection will be such practical items as tea kettles, silver, napkins and—everyone hopes—a loud speaker. Following the buffet supper, Mrs. Walter Maloney will present a program of Christmas music.

Will Celebrate Anniversary

THE Columbia Heights Art Club will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a Christmas party on Monday from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. at 1851 Columbia rd.

Featured on the program will be readings by Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, vocal solos by Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig and Christmas carols led by Mrs. George A. Cook.

Women Underwriters Lauded

IN THE National Association of Life Underwriters there is an exclusive club to which members earn their membership by selling a quarter of a million dollars of life insurance or more in a year.

Mrs. Elsie Doyle of Cincinnati, Ohio, chairman of the Women's Quarter Million Dollar Round Table, spoke briefly at the luncheon meeting of the Women Underwriters of D. C. Life Underwriters Association yesterday at 1515 New Hampshire ave.

According to Mrs. Doyle, "selling life insurance is a reason for living, not a means for deriving a living."

She considers women underwriters "fortunate because our work is that of bringing security and happiness into the lives of others. That we may profit by this is a double experience, that of helping others and earning a livelihood at the same time."

There are approximately 3000 women in life insurance today, of which 187 belong to the local club. In Washington there are two women who are qualified for the Quarter Million Dollar Round table: Miss Helen Pendergast and Mrs. Thelma Davenport.

St. Nick to Attend Party

OLD SAINT NICK himself is going to attend the Washington Soroptimist Club's party on Wednesday, December 21.

There to greet the Old Gentleman at the party in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel will be the Soroptimists and their guests—21 children from Washington settlement houses and eight elderly women from the Aged Ladies' Home in Georgetown.

Members will bring toys and cuddly dolls to be distributed between the Children's Hospital and the Women's and Children's Clinic, 4704 Georgia ave. nw.

ON TODAY'S CALENDAR . . .

Mrs. Ernest L. Etchison, State president of the United States Daughters of 1812, will preside at the annual Christmas party at national headquarters, 1461 Rhode Island ave. A board meeting will precede the party at 2 p. m. Col. C. I. Kephart will be guest speaker . . . The Hillcrest Chapter, Women's American ORT, will hold a bake sale at the Naylor Gardens Community Center, 30th st. and Naylor rd. se., 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. . . . The Federal Transportation Association will hold its annual Christmas dance at the Burlington Hotel from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. . . . The Barnard Alumnae Club of Washington will hold its annual Christmas silver tea at the home of Mrs. Wentworth W. Pierce, 57 Observatory cir. nw., from 4 to 6 p. m.

Carols to Be Multilingual

CHRISTMAS carols in several languages will be the feature of the Mortar Board Alumnae Association of Washington dinner meeting, 6:30 p. m., Monday, at the Y. W. C. A.

NEW! A quick, easy way to give your child mashed potato

Children love French's Instant Potato. Rich nutritional values and flavor kept in—not boiled out or peeled away!

● With this amazing new product you can make mashed potato in just one minute! French's Instant Potato is made from top-quality potatoes, precooked by a special process that keeps in important nutrients. So economical! Makes exactly the amount desired—never any waste.

Look for French's Instant Potato in the baby foods or canned vegetable section at your grocer's.

Doctors recommend French's INSTANT Potato for baby's diet*:

"Very enthusiastic about your new product and recommend it highly as an excellent food for infants, children and convalescents."

"Worked wonderfully for my baby son—shall recommend it for all my pediatric patients."

"Fine for baby and everybody else, too!"

"My children like it better than fresh potatoes."

"They taste wonderful—and oh the time they save!"

'Private Stock' of Party Snacks Helps Parents of Teen-Agers

Holiday-happy youngsters have a way of being hungry all the time—especially between regular mealtimes. But there's no reason why their stampedes after skating, movies or dances should upset parents' schedules. The secret is to stock up well with the wherewithal and then let them have the galley to themselves.

Here are some suggested "set-ups" for those teen-age snack parties, culled from House Beautiful magazine.

BEANS AND 'BURGERS—They'll be singing "Flip, flop and out" (make mine rare) with this supper of beans and 'burgers. You prepare the beans and keep them hot in a handy simmer-crock. Prepare the chopped steak patties, get out the chili sauce, mustard, raw onion slices, relish and pickles. The kids have fun building their own combination of condiments.

PIG'N' PINEAPPLE PARTY—This is one of those fingers-before-forks routines. You cut fresh pineapple into fingers, slice ham to paper thinness, and let the youngsters package the fruit in the ham. Have plenty of paper napkins on hand. Supplement with potato chips, Triscuits, cheese crackers. Wash this down with pitchers of frozen orange juice, thawed and mixed beforehand.

ICE CREAM CONE PARTY—Younger teens will go for this in a big way. So buy cones and ice cream in bulk. You can get half-gallon or gallon containers of ice cream and keep it chilled in your refrigerator or freezer. Best fun here is covering the cone with "galop": chocolate sprills, chopped nuts, crushed peppermint-stick candy, grated coconut, etc. Have these trimmings in dippable dishes on a convenient table. For drinks—an abundant supply of coke or cream soda.

One on the Aisle—

Belasco 'Opening' A Bit Premature

By Richard L. Coe

THE CHRISTMAS CAROLS which have been flooding the Muzak wires since November 5 seem to have given our august con-nporaries delusions of premature joy about the lease of the Be-co Theater.

While it is indeed cheering to read, "Belasco Theater to Reopen Stage Plays in April," in the town's other journals, the matter by no means settled. Several hurdles have yet to be overcome d further prodding of the Public Building Administration is neces-ry.

Here's the situation: ANTA—the American National Theater and ademy—has submitted a bid to the PBA offering to—

1. Lease the building for 10 years subject to termination of the ase by the Government on one year's prior notice to ANTA.

2. Refurnish the theater at ANTA's expense, it being understood at should the Government cancel the lease, such furnishings and uipment would be removed by ANTA.

3. ANTA to pay the cost for substitute space elsewhere in this ty for the records now occuping the theater; that this space not larger in square footage than that used in the Belasco, and that ch cost not exceed $20,000 a year.

This was submitted in writing the PBA 10 days ago, but as yet BA has made no answer to the fer.

Officials concerned point out at the third clause is likely to rove troublesome. Whether such pace can be procured, whether the les can be moved from the thea-er in time to prepare for an April pening is decidedly iffy.

ANTA naturally has been trying set a target date for putting the heater into operation. Producer Leland Hayward has indicated he would like to have his "Mister Roberts" as the opening attraction, ven going to the extent of switch-ng the New York and touring companies for the reclame of bringing ive theater back to the National Capital. Mrs. Irene Selznick has ong made it known she'd like to use the house for "A Streetcar Named Desire," of which, after Saturday night's closing in New York, two companies will be touring.

Cagily taking into consideration that Marcus Heiman might return the National from the land of the shadows should the Belasco break the bottleneck, ANTA has gotten the promise of the leading New York producers that they will route their offerings into the Belasco, reserving the larger musicals and spectacles for the National. Engineers now estimate the Belasco might seat 1350, whereas the National's capacity is some 330 more seats.

All this planning and crystal-gazing, however, should be taken only for what it is. While with proper attention a lease could be signed within a week, no lease has yet been signed nor has even a mutually satisfactory agreement been reached.

Washingtonians who have worked to get theater back to the Capital, and ANTA, which made its first rental attempt nearly two years ago, know only too well how often a solution has seemed in sight. Hosannahs are as yet premature.

THIS AFTERNOON at 3:30 there'll be the annual Christmas toy and canned food parties at the Sidney Lust theaters, the Hyattsville, Cheverly, Kaywood, Marlboro and Milo, with such organizations as the Prince Georges County Christmas Bureau, station WGAY, the Rockville Rotary Club, the Marlboro Lions Club, the Enquirer-Gazette and station WANN as cosponsors . . . The Bethesda's party will be held Saturday morning, with radio artists and the Police Boys Club and among the performers sponsored by the Divver Motor Co., the Bethesda Kiwanians and busy S. Lust . . . Only admission charge to the matinees is a toy or canned food, to be distributed to needy families in the areas.

YESTERDAY'S Christmas party was staged by the Honeywell Foundation at the Hiser Theater, which presented a new version of the British pantomime, "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

UNIVERSITY LIFE on the dramatics side is hitting all four local campi . . . Catholic University is winding up its run of "The Real McCoy" Saturday night . . . G. W. last night opened a three-night run for "The Yellow Jacket." . . . The University of Maryland concludes "Cyrano de Bergerac's week-run Saturday night . . . And tonight Georgetown University's Mask anad Bauble Club will present "Command Decision," with a repeat performance Saturday night in Holy Trinity aauditorium, 36th and O sts. nw., 8:30 each night.

THE NATIONAL City Christian Church will present its annual Christmas Pageant Sunday night at 8 in the church sanctuary, 14th and Thomas Circle nw . . . This year's play is "Christmas Under the Stars." . . . Mrs. J. Warren Hastings has directed and music will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir.

FRIENDSHIP HOUSE will present its annual Christmas program Sunday afternoon at 4 in its home at 619 D st. se. . . . Miss Etta Gifford, of the staff, has written the pageant, "The Story of Christmas," which traces the evolution of the international celebration.

THE ADA will hold its annual eggnog reception Sunday afternoon as one more honor to the returned players of Howard University . . . The party will be at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 N. Y. ave., from 4 till 7.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—The current psychoanalyst story is of a patient who complained of his dreams. "If you understand your dreams, they won't disturb you," said the analyst. "What's your dream?" The patient said he dreamed of being in a rowboat, rowing for hours, when a whale rose up and swallowed him. "That's simple," said the analyst. "It means you're in love with your mother" . . . Some months later the analyst saw the patient, who was happy and who gayly reported that his new dream no longer disturbed him, because he understood it. "I now dream of being in a luxurious room with velvet walls, fighting my father for the attentions of my mother. I know what it means, so I'm untroubled" . . . "What . . . er . . . do you think it means?" asked the analyst. The man said: "Simple. It means I want to go rowing."

Noel Coward's newest film, "The Astonished Heart," will have its New York premiere for the benefit of Helen Hayes' polio fund, established in memory of Mary MacArthur. The premiere will mark the Golden Year of Noel Coward, celebrating his fiftieth birthday . . . Coward, incidentally, brought a dozen of his own paintings from England. Each one is a seascape, painted near Dover. "How is it," a friend asked him, "that you've only painted ships?" . . . "I paint as a form of relaxation," Coward replied. "I prefer to paint ships, because ships don't talk back."

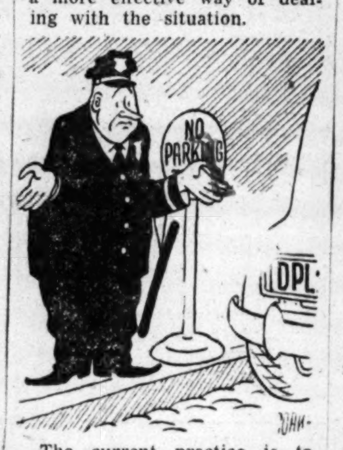
Immunity of Diplomats Adds to District's Traffic Woes

With local traffic problems becoming steadily worse, enforcement officials privately wish they could do something about diplomatic cars that disrupt rush-hour traffic.

Parking is restricted on one or both sides of main thoroughfares during peak morning and evening periods. The purpose is to provide an extra lane for the movement of traffic.

But a single DPL car illegally parked in the curb lane wrecks the whole idea and sets up a bottleneck that can snarl traffic for blocks. Similarly, a car parked in the right-turn lane at a busy intersection ties up everything behind it.

Officially, our police can do little more than be gracious hosts to the foreign colony. Unofficially, they wish they had a more effective way of dealing with the situation.



NO PARKING
DPL

The current practice is to write a ticket for a car which is snarling traffic, but to turn in the ticket at the precinct, where it is automatically "adjusted."

Only when a great number of citations turn up for the same car, or the same trouble area, is action taken. Then a report goes up to Major Barrett. He writes to the State Department; State contacts the embassy, and the ambassador issues a prompt rebuke to the offender.

But the process is so long and involved that most policemen don't even bother to write out a ticket, except in extreme circumstances. So the violations continue at a troublesome rate.

Most that I have traced down were caused by small cars, driven by minor employes—some of them American citizens. Top men in most of the foreign missions are scrupulous in their observation of our laws, and want their underlings to be just as conscientious.

Concerned over the situation, the diplomats have advanced two suggestions for improvement.

The first recognizes the fact that our police, as an official instrument of Government, prefer not to cite anybody who enjoys diplomatic immunity. It suggests that private citizens who observe violations write a polite note to the State Department, outlining all the facts. Culprits quickly will find themselves summoned before their superiors for stern rebukes.

The second wonders whether it might not be advisable to set a generous but non-flexible limit for traffic tickets, with the understanding that any diplomatic employe who exceeds his limit would be declared persona non grata and shipped home.

It is pointed out that if a definite limit were established, our police might be more apt to record the violations they encounter, because each ticket would bring the inveterate violator one step closer to banishment and serve as a powerful deterrent to the culprits.

Coming from inside the diplomatic corps itself, I think those suggestions demonstrate a remarkably cooperative attitude. As one top statesman put it to me.

"Your traffic problems are bad enough, without our making them worse. I want my people to obey your laws, and be good neighbors."

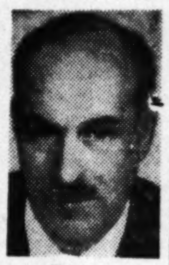
Tax Frauds Called Scandal

By Drew Pearson

One of the worst scandals in the Nation today is income-tax fraud and the way certain politicos or friends of politicos are able to get away with it.



Pearson

With the country facing almost certain tax increases next year, it remains a fact that every man who dodges his taxes sends the tax bill up higher for the other fellow.

Recently this column cited various tax cases where the little guy got prosecuted, but the big guy—able to hire political influence—got off. This is far more frequent than the public realizes, and this column herewith begins a series to show how income-tax fraud is put across.

For instance, in Mobile, Ala., Joe Mitchell and his brother-in-law, Sam Ripps, organized the Gulf Coast Tobacco Co. during the war and sold millions of dollars worth of jewelry to Army post exchanges.

Then, a couple of years later, alert Treasury agents caught them keeping two sets of books, and after long investigation, recommended criminal prosecution.

The two men who were so eager to sell jewelry to GIs had not been so eager to pay their taxes and Treasury agents claimed they owed a minimum of $700,000; perhaps as much as $1,200,000.

Ripps and Mitchell immediately began to pull every political wire south or north of the Mason-Dixon Line. First they tried to hire Joseph Nunan, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Then they negotiated with Martin Sweaber, a good friend of Nunan's. Then they retained William Nicholson of Charlotte, N. C., former law partner of Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division.

Scrupulous Caudle, a conscientious public servant, phoned his former partner, asked him to withdraw from the case. He did so.

Finally, however, Mitchell and Ripps approached Will Walter Bankhead of Alabama's politically powerful Bankhead family, and through him retained Ben Leader, former law partner of the U. S. attorney in Birmingham, John Hill. Significantly it was Hill who was to try the case.

That case, however, has never been tried. It was sent by the Justice Department to Hill for prosecution, but that was as far as it got. U. S. Attorney Hill held a conference with Justice and Treasury men in Birmingham at which he contended he did not have sufficient evidence. In the end, and with their concurrence, the prosecution of jewelry profiteers Ripps and Mitchell was sent back to Washington as closed.

Meanwhile, this column, probing the tax fraud, unearthed some interesting facts. Ben Leader, when questioned, admitted he was Hill's former law partner; also admitted he received a fee of $12,000, but made a long speech about the case having been decided on its merits.

This column also discovered, however, that this is not the first time Joe Mitchell has slithered his way out of trouble with the law.

Graduating from New York University in 1923, Mitchell became an Internal Revenue agent, but was permitted to resign in 1929 after a scandal over falsifying expense accounts.

In 1930 Mitchell was caught tapping the city water main to supply a Negro tenement that he owned in Mobile. He was allowed to settle the water bill out of court. In 1942, when rent ceilings were clamped on his property, he was caught finagling rents above the ceiling price. And in 1943, when tires were rationed, Mitchell was caught stealing two tires from a Tupelo, Miss., filling station.

When arrested for this theft, his pockets were found bulging with $100 bills from which he posted $1000 bond. Congressman Boykin of Mobile then sought the intervention of Congressman Rankin of Mississippi, and Mitchell escaped prosecution. He even got back $500 of his $1000 bond.

In 1945, Mitchell was convicted of violating the election laws, and sentenced to 60 days hard labor. However, the Supreme Court threw out the case on the ground of an improperly drawn indictment. While the case was up for appeal, two witnesses disappeared, and, when picked up in Pensacola, swore that Mitchell had paid them $100 a week to stay out of Mobile.
